THESE ALMONDS WERE BITTER

LONDON (AP)—A British charter airline today reported discovering a plot to smuggle arms to African trouble spots in airfreight boxes labelled as nuts.

Officials said they suspect the Chinese Communists were behind attempts to use the airline as an unwitting carrier of arms destined for Angola and Algeria.

One of Scotland Yard's top agents, superintendent George Gale, was called in to investigate.

Air Safaris, the charter firm, said it received an order to pick up a consignment of almonds in Libya and fly it to the Canary Islands.

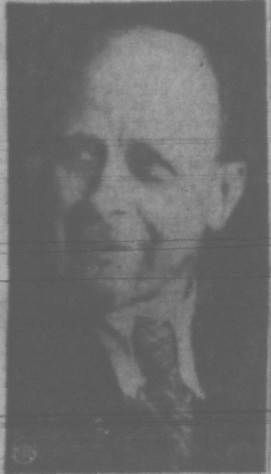

The two British pilots, suspicious about the weight of one box, pried it open and found mortars, mortar bombs and grenades. All bore Chinese markings and inside each box was a book of instructions in Chinese.

The airline was forbidden to disclose from whom it received the charter.

TALKS ON BERLIN

Ministers Map Road to Peace

PARIS (AP)—Four Western foreign ministers met this afternoon to map plans for a peaceful solution to the Berlin crisis.

EAST GERMAN Communist chief Walter Ulbricht was reported to be in Moscow today, seeking Soviet approval to close off the border to West Berlin. Meanwhile, rumors persisted that Ulbricht may be on the way out because of the troubles in East Germany.

The ministers, informed sources said, were considering how to propose negotiations to Moscow on the basis of the West's own timetable. There was no indication, however, that they actually had decided to take the initiative and ask Moscow to negotiate.

The Berlin crisis, while still dangerous, seems headed now toward negotiation.

Informants suggested that the Western powers would be willing to make the first diplomatic move to get the Russians to the conference table if they were not rushed or bullied into it.

The start of the three-day conference coincided with intelligence reports of mounting anti-Communist unrest in Communist East Germany.

The theory was gaining ground in Western circles that Soviet Premier Khrushchev, whose threats to sign a peace treaty with East Germany touched off the current crisis, now is in some danger of running into trouble in the puppet state.

Intelligence reports indicate the rulers of East Germany are unable to contain the growing anti-Russian feeling there. The situation is even being compared with 1953 when the East Germans revolted briefly.

PUGWASH, N.S. (CP)—

Crowds of highland dancers and pipers greeted Soviet spaceman Yuri Gagarin today when he arrived at this northern Nova Scotia village for an afternoon of relaxation.

Major Gagarin arrived here after a three-hour drive from Halifax where he landed this morning.

In the small villages and towns along the 100-mile route small scattered groups of people waved as he went through.

The first stop was the "Thinker's Lodge" where he ate with Russian Ambassador A. A. Aronovitch and industrialist Cyrus Eaton, his host. The lodge is named after groups of scientists Mr. Eaton invites to his birthplace for conferences.

Scheduled for this afternoon was a program of Scottish music and dancing.

The big flyushin-18 airliner bringing Gagarin to Canada was 34 minutes late when it touched down at Halifax International Airport this morning.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union has offered $28,000,000 to Tunisia to help finance the construction of a dam and a proposed Tunisian training institute for technicians.

A government spokesman said the Soviet credit was solicited by a Tunisian technical delegation that went to Moscow several months ago.

It was also announced that Premier Khrushchev will visit Tunisia at a date to be fixed later.

BOYS FORCED INTO 'FRIDGE'; TWO PERISH

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP)—Two boys were found dead in a walk-in refrigerator in a school here today. A third boy found alive with them told police officers an older boy with a knife forced all three into the refrigerator.

Roger Keith Bias, 9, and Johnny Carter, 11, were dead, apparently of suffocation. Henry Carter, nine-year-old brother of Johnny, was pulled alive from the refrigerator — disconnected during the summer — and taken to hospital where he was reported in good condition.

Sheriff's officers went to the Altizer school today to check a reported breaking and entering there. A woman who went with them opened the two-door refrigerator and discovered the missing boys.

ALGERIA

Fugitive General Sounds Call

ALGIERS (Reuters)—A clandestine radio station today broke into an Algiers radio broadcast with a call by a fugitive ex-general for continued opposition to President Charles de Gaulle.

Everything was calm in Algiers capital as the voice of ex-Gen. Paul Gaudy, condemned to death in his absence for his part in the abortive April military coup in Algeria, began a half-hour broadcast on the same frequency as Algiers radio.

The official station had just finished a weather bulletin and was preparing to relay a broadcast from France when Gaudy's voice broke in to declare:

"Radio France... the OAS is speaking to you."

OAS are initials of the extreme right-wing Secret Army Organization.

A few seconds later a second voice began a severe criticism of de Gaulle's policy followed by references to the Bizerte crisis. Martial music followed.

The 28-minute broadcast ended with an announcer declaring: "You have just been listening to Radio France, the voice of French Algeria. Frenchmen arise. We shall stay in our Algeria."

Algiers radio said everything was normal at the radio station. It was believed the surprise broadcast was achieved by a hookup with one of the station's regular supply cables.

Fast Start Made On Huge Project

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

The new, publicly-owned British Columbia Electric Company has borrowed $75,000,000 to make an immediate start on development of the vast Peace River power project.

The loan from the Royal Bank of Canada was announced following a meeting of the new BCE board of directors only a few hours after their appointment was made Friday by Premier Bennett.

Board chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum said the loan is the biggest single credit bloc ever extended in Canada.

The new directors, appointed to run the power utility which the government took over through legislation earlier this week, also made these decisions:

1. Agreed to apply for a water licence to develop the Peace River project.

2. Asked the present BCE executive, headed by BCE president Dr. Harry Purdy, to stay on with the company.

3. Appointed director Einar Gunderson as secretary of the BCE board.

4. Arranged payment of $110,000,000 to B.C. Power Corporation for BCE common shares.

The development followed fast on the heels of Premier Bennett's announcement Friday.

day of the makeup of the new board headed by Dr. Shrum and of the government's intention to float a $100,000,000 BCE 5 per cent parity bond issue next Wednesday. The issue will form the major part of the $110,000,000 paid to B.C. Power Corporation for BCE common stock acquired in the government takeover.

Full complement of the new board of directors, in addition to Dr. Shrum, is as follows:

Frank M. Ross, former B.C. lieutenant-governor; Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston;

W. G. Mearns of Victoria; Arthur Fouks, a Vancouver lawyer;

And Mr. Gunderson, who was briefly finance minister for B.C. and is vice-president of the PGE Railway.

Dr. Shrum warned the public not to expect a big change in electrical rates as a result of nationalization of the BCE. He predicted there would be staff changes and moves for more economical operation of the giant utility, to which the government handed the job of developing the Peace.

At the same time Dr. Shrum disclosed that he will also

Any funds above that figure must be deposited in a special account by the persons holding them, and converted to new bills a week later.

$50,000 SWINDLE AROUND DOUBLE LIFE

With Thanks From 'His Grace'

NEW YORK (AP)—The Federal Bureau of Investigation and local police swarmed over the offices of the Twentieth Century Travel Agency here Friday in quest of travel information.

They want information regarding the travels of Lou Bennett, 30, who until last weekend was one of the most willing and energetic employees the firm ever had.

Co-owner Harry Brown and Leonard Gold said Lou was so energetic he did them out of about $50,000. He was hired six weeks ago.

The New York Daily News said Brown and Gold told this story to police:

Lou, they said, had been living a double life — the quiet, unassuming travel consultant named Bennett on weekdays, and the dashing British playboy, Sir Douglas Bedford of London, on weekends.

Bennett, it seems, armed himself with a hefty supply of time payment devices, and set out on a one-man mission to improve Anglo-American relations.

During the Fourth of July

weekend, they learned, Bennett struck up an acquaintance with a navy warrant officer who directs a band aboard the carrier Independence.

To show good will, he tossed a $300 shindig for the boys of the Independence at a New York restaurant.

On July 14, Bennett rented a chauffeured limousine and drove to Norfolk where he met his navy friends and tossed another party — all on credit cards.

He then invited the boys up to New York for a weekend party and ran up a $1,300 whiskey, food and entertainment bill.

He wrote to the hotel thanking the management for its treatment of Sir Douglas and added "your bill has been sent to His Grace and as soon as it is approved we shall see that it is paid in full." His Grace, he added, was in Honolulu.

Last Friday and Saturday, Bennett set up a couple of lavish affairs for his navy pals at swank Island Inn, Westbury, Long Island.

Friday he flew his navy friends up from Norfolk, had them met at the airport by limousines and put on a warm-up party, costing only a modest "few thousand dollars."

Saturday, he purchased a $300 cake and had $600 worth of flowers sent to the party with cards from such as "Chief Justice and Mrs. Earl Warren," "The Eddie Fishers," "David Sarnoff" and "Tony and Margaret Jones."

He apparently got cold feet Saturday and skipped out, the agency owners said.

carry on as chairman of the B.C. Energy Board.

The board in a recent report found electric rates for both the Peace and the stalled Columbia River project would be almost identical in the vicinity of four mills per kilowatt hour if developed publicly.

The Columbia project is stalled for want of agreement of financial arrangements between the federal and provincial governments.

Dr. Shrum told the Times he will seek the services of consulting engineers on the Peace project Monday.

During his first day as chairman of the new public utility he called two meetings and received their authority to negotiate with Ipe Engineering of Vancouver.

If the firm—which has already done work on the Peace—is hired, it will advise exactly where to start on the $600,000,000 hydro project.

Dr. Shrum said he thought first steps would be to build roads to the Portage Mountain damsite in northeastern B.C., let clearing contracts and then build a tunnel to divert the river.

He summed up his attitude to building the Peace this way: "I never like to have a job and fool around with it."

Speedy go-ahead on the Peace raises grave doubts that the Columbia River scheme will be built at all.

This depends now entirely upon a change of policy by the federal government, which at present opposes export of the downstream benefits.

"Dr. Shrum said there will be 'some economies' in B.C. Electric operations as a result of public ownership."

Dr. Shrum said he had asked the president of the old company, Harry Purdy, to see all employees carry on as usual for the time being.

However, there will be some staff changes "up near the top," he added.

The rank and file employees probably would not be much affected.

Economies Hinted

"I have great admiration for the way B.C. Electric has been run. It will be my hope we can run it as efficiently," he said.

"Under public ownership there are some economies that can be effected."

Department which will be reviewed include public relations, personnel formerly dealing with the Public Utilities Commission and the federal income tax which was paid by the private company.

Dr. Shrum did not offer an opinion on the future of B.C. bus services in Victoria and Vancouver.

"This we have to study," he said.

Would they be turned over to the cities?
"Somebody has to run them."

Dr. Shrum summed his approach to his new job this way: "It is a new and exciting adventure."

The adventure began when Premier Bennett announced Friday that a $100,000,000 parity bond issue goes on sale next Wednesday to finance the government's takeover of the company, approved at the special session of the legislature which ended Thursday.

He said the B.C. government will never again use the government-guaranteed parity bond method of financing.

One Shareholder

Mr. Bennett said he as premier will act as the sole official shareholder, representing the people's ownership of the company.

Mr. Williston has resigned his post as a member of the B.C. Power Commission, the other big power utility. Minister Kiernan, already a member, will remain as the government's representative there.

Mr. Bennett said the new directors' board "has fine balance and its members offer great breadth and experience."

"I am confident that they will provide excellent direction for the employees of the B.C. Electric and for the people of B.C. who are the new shareholders of the company, in carrying out the vast development projects which lie ahead."

PEACE PROJECT FINANCED

The $100,000,000 bond issue will bear interest of 5 per cent, and will mature on Sept. 1, 1965, said Mr. Bennett.

"It will be the last offering of parity development bonds," he added—this year of any year.

Only refunding of present issues will be made in the future, he said.

The other bond issues already made are $50,000,000 for the Toll Authority, $35,000,000 for the PGE and $25,000,000 for the power commission.

A cheque for the total amount was sent Friday from B.C. Electric to B.C. Power, he said.

Takeover of the remainder of the B.C. Power operations—a subsidiary company and other assets—is optional, but expected, for about $60,000,000 or $38 per share.

Smiths Paged to Host 'Kin' From Wyoming

A Victoria family of Smiths is wanted to entertain a Smith family from Wyoming Aug. 23-24.

Interested Smiths are invited to write to Box 246, General Post Office, Victoria, so that their qualifications may be considered.

The final choice will be made by a committee appointed by Victoria Auto Courts and Resort Association and Victoria Hotel Association, with Kenneth King as chairman.

The visitors to be entertained are Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton B. Smith of Rock Springs, Wyoming, and their two daughters, aged five and nine.

"We would like them to be entertained by Victoria Smiths who have daughter around that age," said Mr. King. The Wyoming Smiths will be met at the Mahatma Look-out at noon on Aug. 23 and presented to their Victoria hosts. They will be entertained in Victoria until 6 p.m. the following day.

'HOPPER-FULL GULLS CLOG AIRPORT

LETHBRIDGE (CP)—Grasshopper-stuffed seagulls are waging unsuccessful war with airplanes landing and taking off at Lethbridge Airport.

Airport manager Andy Congas says one of the birds met a fast end when sucked into the engine of a CP-100 jet and many others have battled unsuccessfully with the whirling blades of propeller-driven aircraft.

The birds are attracted to the free and available diet of grasshoppers at the airport during a current infestation in the area.

There have been as many as 2,000 birds on the runway.

Attempts to drive the birds off using trucks, screaming down the runways with sirens blasting have proved temporarily successful, but the birds always return.

LATIN TALKS

Politics Before Economics

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (Reuters).—Delegates from 21 nations in the western hemisphere prepared for the start today of the inter-American economic and social conference.

With the conference hardly under way, politics was already seen as superseding the formal agenda of the meeting which will include the launching of President Kennedy's "alliance for progress" program of aid for Latin America.

When U.S. Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon arrived in nearby Montevideo on his way here Friday a crowd of 2,000, out to greet Cuban Industrial Minister Ernesto "Che" Guevara, all turned their backs.

When Guevara, the bearded No. 2 man in Cuba, arrived shortly after Dillon the crowds cheered wildly.

Later Friday night police in Montevideo raided the Communist youth centre and found guns, pro-Castro propaganda and cocaine.

Then from Buenos Aires, a government spokesman announced that the Cuban consuls there and in Montevideo had asked for political asylum from the Castro regime.

The conference, which ends Aug. 16, is being attended by all the independent nations in the western hemisphere with the exception of Canada, Canada, which is not a member of the Organization of American States, sent seven observers.

CASTLEGAR—John A. Makotoff of Shoreacres was charged Friday with making an explosive device.

Before Makotoff was remanded until Sept. 6 for preliminary hearing in magistrate's court was told the offence is alleged to have occurred "at Shoreacres or elsewhere in the Kootenays between Feb. 27 and March 6, 1960."

Bail was set at $10,000.

RCMP's arrest of Makotoff at his home Thursday night culminated a year of investigation.

VANCOUVER—Civic Auditorium Commission has named a small theatre built as an annex to the Queen Elizabeth Theatre after Indian poet and artist Pauline Johnson. The commission was dedicated for weeks over choice of the name until chairman Reg Rose cast the deciding vote. "I'm not personally in favor of the name Pauline Johnson but I think public opinion is for it," he said.

TREE FALLS ON BOYS

ENDERBY—RCMP said Friday a 14-year-old boy was killed when a tree fell and struck him on the head.

Robert Bell of the Kamloops Indian Agency died of a fractured skull following the mishap while he was playing on the banks of the Shuswap River a mile east of here Wednesday.

Another boy, Gordon Paul, about 14, suffered a bruised back when he was struck by the tree, a tall cottonwood about 18 inches in diameter, which was apparently blown over by a light breeze.

VANCOUVER—Police said Friday Vancouver narcotic addicts have been thrown into a panic by a sudden and unexpected stoppage in illicit drug deliveries.

An RCMP officer said the shortage of drugs became apparent Thursday. It was not the result of a police crackdown or arrests.

One theory is that suppliers are holding back drugs in hope of pushing up the price of capsule which usually sell at $5 each.

Potato Tariff Up, Mollifying Growers

Demand for potato growers in the interior of the province that the federal government protect them from competition from United States growers who can sell American potatoes in Canada cheaper than Canadians can grow them have been met, with a directive today from Ottawa ordering a higher tariff.

The prime minister's office sent a telegram today to British Columbia agricultural minister Frank Richter saying that the "fair value for duty" on potatoes has been raised to $2.78 per 100 pounds in Canadian funds.

Application for a tariff was made June 14 by the marketing board of the B.C. interior through the Canadian Horticultural Council, as farmers threatened to leave between 800 and 1,200 tons of potatoes in the ground unless government protective action was taken.

The $2.78 value will be used at all customs ports from Port Arthur, Ontario, through all the western provinces.

LIFE SENTENCE LAW URGED

Crackdown on Hijackers

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration asked Congress Friday to meet the menace of "air drunks, flying fools and spies in the sky" by passing a law to make airline hijacking punishable by life imprisonment.

This would put airline hijacking in the same class of crime as piracy on the high seas.

Najeeb Halaby, federal aviation administrator, cited Thursday's abortive plane hijacking in Texas.

He said that, if Congress passes the new law, no longer would "a defenceless girl, a preoccupied crew, or local police" be the only barriers against would-be hijackers.

At present, no federal law covers such hijacking. Leon Bearden and his son Cody were charged with violating the federal kidnapping law. It also is difficult to charge hijackers under state law. For one thing, it is very hard to figure out where the plane was flying when the crime was committed.

For another, the arrested man likely would land in a state different from the one in which he committed his crime, making extradition action necessary.

Halaby, discussing the recent series of hijackings, said the last three cases evidently were carried out by foolish men who felt by some "heroic act" they could make some progress in their individual lives—psychopathic as they may be.

GIRL GIANT INJURED IN FALL OVER CURB

TORONTO (CP)—A 16-year-old Collingwood, Ont., girl seven feet, 10 inches tall and weighing more than 350 pounds was brought to hospital here Friday night after she tripped over a roadside curb and fell in front of her home.

Carol Hare suffered severe facial lacerations and hospital officials suspect broken neck vertebrae. After the fall, she was conscious but paralyzed in her arms and legs.

A Collingwood ambulance was too small to accommodate the girl and she was placed in an enclosed furniture truck. A hospital bed had to be extended with boards.

Carol left public school two years ago measuring seven feet tall. Two brothers are of normal height.

5,000 Die

LUCKNOW, India (Reuters).—Officials today blamed annual religious fairs for the spread of a cholera epidemic which has killed more than 5,000 persons in the two north Indian states of Uttar Pradesh and Bihar this year.

Many of the millions of Indians attending these fairs contract the disease and then carry the infection home to their villages, the officials said.

But they added that the peak of the epidemic was now over and hoped it would be possible to curb it in the next few weeks.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce is appealing to local residents to entertain officers and men of the Royal Navy frigate HMS Londonderry when it visits here Aug. 18-22.

Those who wish to act as hosts to the British sailors are asked to phone John Coppinger, managing secretary of the Chamber, at EV 3-7191.

"We hope the sailors will have an opportunity to meet Victorians in their own homes and explore the scenic beauties of Vancouver Island," Mr. Coppinger said.

"It would be a fine thing if our citizens could offer them, drives, picnics, and meals at home."

Mr. Coppinger said about 120 Royal Navy officers and men are expected to take shore leave on Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 19 and 20. They will come ashore at 12.30 p.m. Saturday and earlier, possibly 9.30 a.m. Sunday.

HMS Londonderry will be open to the public in HMC Dockyard Aug. 20 from 2.30 to 5 p.m., and a party will be held on board Aug. 18 for 30 underprivileged children.

'DANGEROUS TOYS'

'Death Mask' Cry Hits Snorkel Use

By The Canadian Press

Eleven-year-old Gordon Histed was pulled dead from the municipal swimming pool at Hamilton, Ont., recently, his hand clutching a rubber snorkel headband which had wound tightly around his throat, his teeth clamped securely on the mouthpiece of the $1.49 snorkel.

Near Saint John, N.B., another 11-year-old, Kenneth Arthur Tufts, dived too deep while wearing a snorkel, panicked and drowned.

In Nova Scotia a 13-year-old boy became entangled in lake bottom weeds and drowned. He wore snorkel equipment.

Robert Woods, 16, Midhurst, Ont., drowned in 10 feet of water in Lake Huron while swimming with a snorkel. A swimming companion could not reach him because of high waves.

A cross-Canada survey by the Canadian Press found that each of the four drownings this year of persons wearing snorkels was followed by outcries from incensed officials.

"It's criminal that this type of equipment can get on the market," said Hamilton diving expert Jack Bathurst.

Dr. Robert J. Imrie, chairman of the planning and coordinating committee of the Conference of Child Safety, Ontario Medical Association, said legislation to govern snorkels "will have to come—just like the legislation on life preservers."

Eli Boyaner, chairman of the Canadian Red Cross Society's water safety service for New Brunswick, condemned snorkels and underwater masks as "a great hazard." He said cheap quality models should be banned as dangerous toys.

In British Columbia, where no drownings have been blamed on snorkels for more than two years, Gino Gemma, president of the B.C. Council of Diving Clubs, said snorkels using ping-pong ball valves or combining breathing tubes with face masks are "death masks."

No action has been taken against firms selling cheap underwater breathing equipment in any of the three provinces reporting snorkel drownings this year.

Snorkels, masks and other underwater equipment are banned from municipal swimming areas in Toronto, Hamilton, Peterborough and Ottawa.

The Canadian Red Cross Society branded as "dangerous" any "floating toy or aquatic equipment that can be punctured; masks which cover the nose; any type of snorkel equipment; skindiving equipment in the hands of untrained people or children too young to handle it."

Ontario Attorney General Kelso Roberts said parental control and commonsense would probably be as effective as any law in controlling the sale and use of snorkels. He said his department had no immediate plans for snorkel-control legislation.

SPCA VIEW

Trapping Licence For Cats?

A one-man crusader against stray cats may have to get a provincial trapper's licence if he wants to trap tabbies which wander through his property.

That's the opinion of SPCA manager Norman Stephens who Friday met Ald. Millard Mooney and city solicitor T. P. O'Grady to discuss the society's role in controlling stray cats in the city.

Mr. Stephens said he believes it will be necessary for Jack Redmond of 1738 Davie, who wants to get rid of stray cats which have been bothering his family, to buy a licence if he wants to trap the animals.

"Cats are fur-bearing animals," said Mr. Stephens. "Mr. Redmond is going to wire up a lot of cat traps on his lawn. I think he'll need a licence to do so."

Mr. Stephens said the SPCA is opposed to waging an all-out war against stray cats.

"We will have no part in an indiscriminate attack upon wandering cats," he said. "We might pick up respectable cats along with the loafers—and then where would we be?"

HOPE OF WATER BOARD

Sooke Lake Tunnel by 1969

Greater Victoria Water Board hopes to complete construction of a $4,500,000 tunnel between Sooke Lake and Japan Gulch reservoir by 1969, water commissioner Ronald Upward told Victoria Lions Club Friday.

About 40 per cent of the 28,800-foot tunnel will be done on a "pay-as-we-go" basis, he said, and the remainder will be financed with borrowed money.

Mr. Upward said if the water board borrowed all the money necessary for the tunnel it would have to pay back about $9 million over the next 20 years.

About 3,000 feet of the tunnel has been dug so far, and a work crew is lining the first 1,500 feet with concrete. This is expected to take until the middle of September.

Second 1,500 feet will be finished next summer, he said. "We hope to have 30 to 40 per cent of the tunnel completed by 1967," he said, "and we hope to have it all completed by 1969."

Cost of the tunnel works out at about $150 a foot, he said.

MARY MADIGAN

Babies 'Hugged To Death'

DUBUQUE, Iowa (AP)—A 29-year-old spinster baby sitter described by acquaintances as one who craved love and affection was held today by police, who said she admitted that three small children she tended died in her arms.

No suspicion had been attached to Mary Kathryn Madigan until a medical examiner determined that three-year-old Gail Memmers, who had been left in her care Thursday night, died of suffocation.

Then police Capt. Byrne O'Brien began looking into the death of another child of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Memmers, 22-month-old Karen, on July 12, and the death of four-month-old Michael Fitzpatrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Fitzpatrick on July 14.

Charges were expected to be filed today.

Miss Madigan, who had acted as baby sitter for both of these families, told police after her arrest and after her recovery from hysteria, that she liked to "hold babies tight."

"I was trying to give them love and affection," she said. "They seemed to gasp for air and their bodies went limp."

In each case she put the babies back in their beds but Thursday night, after Gail Memmers stopped breathing, Miss Madigan telephoned the widowed woman with whom she lived, police said.

Court Clears Road Official

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Walter J. Smith, provincial public works superintendent for the Kamloops area, was acquitted in police court here Friday on a charge of illegal possession of a power saw, rifle and other articles worth more than $50.

Magistrate D. M. MacDonald said the facts of the case did not support the charge.

Mr. Smith, a former election campaign manager for Highways Minister Gallagher, was charged after the articles were taken from a cabin owned by John Litwin.

Hospital Wing Gets Go-Ahead

The B.C. government has given Royal Jubilee Hospital the go-ahead to call tenders for a $3,000,000 new wing to house 195 beds.

Tender call will now be up to the hospital board. Architects for the project are Townley and Matheson of Vancouver.

The government will pay half the cost of the project, said a joint announcement Friday from Health Minister Eric Martin and Works Minister W. N. Chant.

A further grant will be made of one third the approved cost of furnishings and equipment.

The big L-shaped wing will have five storeys.

Top floor will be entirely for surgery, including special operating rooms for heart and brain cases.

Three floors will contain 164 beds, with space for 31 more partially finished.

There will also be a seven-room radiology department; a cobalt bomb in the radiotherapy department and 10 operating rooms.

Much Talk, No Action

IN 1957 THE NEWLY-ELECTED Diefenbaker government promised to revise Canada's immigration laws which it had long attacked in its opposition days.

By August, 1958, Mrs. Fairclough, the minister of immigration, informed Parliament that the nation's whole immigration policy was under careful investigation.

Then, in April, 1959, the government passed an order-in-council narrowing the range of close relatives who could enter Canada, if they were sponsored by immigrants already established here. But this order, which caused wide protests, was quickly withdrawn and Mrs. Fairclough again announced that the Immigration Act, still under study, would soon be revised.

By May, 1960, the minister appeared for the revision at last. Speaking to the Canadian Ethnic Press Federation, she said: "I know that many have been pressing for a revision of the present legislation and that such revision is indeed imperative."

In the following month she informed the House of Commons that she would make a draft of her new legislation available to interested groups before it was formally presented to Parliament since "I do not want to bring in a half-baked piece of legislation which will not stand the test of time."

Parliament met again in November, 1960, and it now appeared that the government was ready to act. The Speech from the Throne announced that "a Bill to revise the Immigration Act will be laid before you." That session continued until a few days ago and adjourned until September but it produced no legislation from Mrs. Fairclough. After four years of office, the government still has no policy, though it had spent far more than four previous years attacking the former government's policy.

This remarkable record, as summarized by The Toronto Globe and Mail, a loyal supporter of the government, must make Parliament wonder whether the government intends to do anything at all. As the Globe and Mail recalls, the last word from Mrs. Fairclough, on the last day of the recent session, was that she could not say when she would be ready to act.

"It becomes very apparent, however," The Globe and Mail concludes, "that the government does not have the stomach for revisions which it assured the Liberals were so essential in 1957."

Another Chance to Talk

AS ON SEVERAL PREVIOUS occasions, a period of Soviet bluster over Berlin has been followed by an offer to negotiate. It appears to be Mr. Khrushchev's standing policy to create a crisis and then slacken it when he has gauged the Western response to his threats.

Nevertheless, the Russian leader's latest expression of willingness to negotiate the Berlin problem will be received by the West with relief and approval. There can be little doubt that the Soviet offer is the direct result of the strong stand taken by the West: Mr. Kennedy's sombre words at the recent Vienna meeting have had their effect. Mr. Khrushchev has recognized that the West would go to the verge of war—and perhaps beyond it—to defend its position in West Berlin and carry out its commitment to the West Berlin people.

As a realist himself, Mr. Khrushchev must understand that Berlin is a point which the West can not evacuate. And also as a realist he must appreciate the fact that he would gain nothing by precipitating a war over the question.

The proposal to negotiate is a respite in the war of nerves. It in no sense carries any guarantees that the problems will be solved, that agreement will be reached, or that the war of nerves will not be resumed.

But along with the determined Western stand as a factor in Mr. Khrushchev's decision must be taken the wobbly situation in East Berlin. The continuing vast exodus of refugees from East to West, the growing belligerence of certain labor groups in their approach to the Soviet authorities, and the increasing restrictions on East Germans who cross daily to work in West Berlin indicate that Mr. Khrushchev and his German puppet regime are sitting on a powder barrel. He finds that the East Berlin situation is deteriorating, hence his anxiety to establish a new order.

It will be a mistake if Mr. Khrushchev tries to hold a negotiating conference under the threat of unilateral action if things do not go his way. A final settlement is obviously going to demand compromise by both sides, and for the West that compromise can in no way include abandonment of the city.

The whole concept of Berlin as a democratic island in a Communist sea is such a difficult one that only co-operation can solve it. Bluster, military or otherwise, by either side can only make the situation worse.

Tragedy at Elk Lake

THE TRAGIC DEATH OF JACK Thompson, fine athlete, competent swimmer and expert in a small boat, has cast gloom over a large section of this community. The young man had enjoyed wide popularity in his active lacrosse days and, a native son, had a large circle of friends throughout Greater Victoria.

The accident which claimed his life at Elk Lake was of a type that may never happen again. Thrown from his turning outboard as it circled into its own wake, he went down when he apparently sought to intercept the craft containing his small daughter, and was presumably struck by the propeller. The fact that he had been handy in a small boat since early boyhood only adds to the poignancy of the tragedy which leaves a young widow, a mother and small daughter bereft of a husband, a son and father. Yet it might have been his very expertise in a boat which contributed to his death.

He wore no lifebelt and the only other occupant of the boat was a very small child. When disaster overtook him he lacked the regulation equipment and the required competent second person in the craft.

Such precautions must have seemed superfluous to Jack Thompson who had, in fair weather and foul, mastered far more treacherous water in the Strait.

The tragedy which had occurred serves, in its heart-rending way, to prove that no one can afford to ignore safety measures, not even the most expert under conditions which superficially appear devoid of danger.

Near Accord on Duncan Hospital

AFTER SEVERAL SECOND thoughts, North Cowichan Council appears to have found a passable way around the roadblock which it had placed in the way of a new hospital in Duncan.

The new hospital requires financial contributions from several districts in the Cowichan region. North Cowichan rejected the bylaw to raise its share of the money for the project and the entire plan was thereby stalled.

Having given the issue further consideration, and recognized certain probable results of their action, North Cowichan councillors no doubt realize they may be cutting off their own nose to spite their face. If they block the big hospital, they foresee difficulties in modernizing or replacing the smaller institution in Chemainus. To look after the latter, they must have good will and support beyond their own boundaries.

Accepting that reality, the council now looks favorably on a face-saving proposal advanced by a councillor who supports the big Duncan hospital project. Stripped of detail, that proposal would permit North Cowichan to make its contribution to the main project and establish some protection for the smaller Chemainus unit—protection which would presuppose financial aid when the latter is renovated or replaced.

After complications arising from different groups working at cross purposes, a means seems to have been found for co-operative action to build the Duncan hospital without detriment to any plans Chemainus may evolve for its own centre in the years ahead.

If this course is taken, the general Cowichan region stands to profit from a modern, enlarged and efficient replacement for King's Daughters' Hospital in the near future.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

AS we wander along the roads and trails and note the different plants, do we know how many of them have been introduced into the province from other areas?

Many of these "foreign" plants are dominating the landscape and often are choking out some of our native species.

Some, like the stinging nettle, seem to like to follow man, for wherever man has been, even back in some of the old logging trails, the nettle establishes itself.

Did it come in the olden days when they used oxen and horses to haul out the timbers? This could have happened because of the feed that was used, and in most cases the feed was shipped in from other places.

Along the sides of our roads at this time of the year we see a bright blue flower growing, the chicory.

There is the false flax or as it is sometimes called, the butter-and-eggs plant.

It cannot be mistaken: with its intricate yellow flower with its orange tone, the blooms are clustered at the top of the erect stalk. It likes an exposed place in the sun.

There are a large number of plants that have become acclimatized here, and like us have now taken up their permanent residence as belonging to B.C.

TOO BIG FOR THEIR PLANNED LOCATIONS

The Saddest Endings Often Beget Hopeful Beginnings

THE specimen wisteria, one must admit, was always something of a disappointment. It was a rare variety, from somewhere in northern Japan; its unusual qualities—flowers much bluer and a blooming season six weeks later than the average—were just as advertised. But it never lived up to expectations. The truth was that being an ungrafted, unhybridized, uncivilized wild vine of the Japanese woods, it had not learned good garden manners. It was stiff, ungainly and careless about displaying its beauties to the best advantage. Above all, its flower trusses refused to drop generously downwards, the better to be seen.

Looking upwards at it from the terrace, you might easily have supposed that it hardly flowered at all. You had to climb a ladder to the roof and look down at it, in order to see the perfect riot of periwinkle blue blossom which it produced all through the month of June.

Hence the problem of a replacement was being pondered, long before the need for a new wing to accommodate a new family—doomed both the wisteria-trellis and all the rest of the old garden.

All the same, the specimen wisteria long survived the clipped magnolias and the feathery tamarisks and the two sweet-scented lime trees and many other things which had been much cherished.

When the old garden was grubbed up, the wisteria was left, by accident, upon a pile of earth where its roots were covered, again by accident, by further earth removals. With its wild vigor, it did well there, blooming as usual, but this time pouring out its flowers over the raw soil for all to see.

Only this morning, the necessities of grading led to its final removal. Clyde the carpenter took it to ornament his house in the suburbs. Although it had been unwanted for so long, the wisteria's going caused a surprising pang. It was the last, the very last memento of twelve years hard, but unsuccessful work on the old garden.

Anyone who has ever made a garden at all, knows that a first garden is a little like a first born child, being set apart from all that come after because of the maker's previous inexperience.

Gardens are like children, too, in the sense that they never quite turn out in the way you had expected, sometimes exceeding and sometimes falling sadly short of all the fond, first hopes.

Green gardens, such as the lost wisteria inhabited, tend to be particularly cranky and difficult. You think you will have a green garden, because upkeep is bound to be easier, and pure, unrelieved cool greenness is pleasant, anyway, in a city. The design is made. The plants are set out. The new-born garden positively glows with promise.

For the first two or three years, all goes quite wonderfully well, even although you soon discover that green gardens also want a lot of upkeep, in the form of incessant pruning, clipping, spraying, fertilizing, draining, training, and titivating.

Then comes the first shock. The shrubs and trees and vines have now reached a size that makes them irreplaceable (at least by any normal expenditure).

At this crucial instant, the red spider, or a scale, or a fungus, or a virus, or a sinister, invisible nematode, attacks the very shrub that is as vital to the whole design as front teeth are to a pretty woman's mouth. So you spend a summer all but sitting up every night with croup kettles, to save the life of a cotoneaster.

There are other shocks too. The worst, perhaps, come in the tenth year, when all the things that seemed so puny when first planted quite suddenly grow too big for their breeches—or at any rate for their planned locations. Walks, become impassable, being blocked by rampant hedges. Trees that were to, pass their lives as neat espaliers all but overwhelm the walls they stand against. What was too sparse everywhere becomes too rank. The neat grows shaggy; the graceful, heavy; the well-formed, altogether formless.

For this, there is no remedy except to be ruthless which probably means pulling up that same cotoneaster that was saved with croup kettles only a few years before.

That is quite painful enough. But consider grubbing up an entire garden, which has gradually grown and changed and has been improved and coaxed into well-doing, so that the first, stiff amateurish little idea has finally brought forth a green and quiet refuge. That is also painful, very painful—but only for the moment.

For Clyde the carpenter has all but finished, and Clyde the nurseryman and gardener arrives next week to begin the new garden that will replace the old. The mere notion of the new garden is downright exhilarating. And in these times, it is particularly pleasant to be reminded that the saddest endings often beget hopeful new beginnings.

FROM OTTAWA

A Peculiar Admixture . . . And a Powerful Amount of Talk

SOCIALISTS are the greatest talkers ever. Trace the life of any socialist leader, and you will find an unbroken record in discussion groups, debating organizations, and political forums. Lenin and his merry band of political exiles spent days without food in Paris and Vienna as they talked of the philosophy of government. It has always remained to others to do the work.

Those socialists attending the New Party convention in Ottawa's disreputable Coliseum, were no exception. They talked interminably. A newspaperman who tried to keep count of the points of order and questions of privilege raised during the convention gave up after four hours of the first day.

But the delegates were so hopped up with their display of knowledge of the rules of procedure that they somehow forgot to discuss to a significant degree the most important question facing them: Why form a new party?

At the end of the week, the question remained unanswered, and it is possible there is no answer.

From the outset, it was apparent three distinct divisions of political opinion were represented. First, the trade unionists, many of them, indeed most of them, without experience in the strange world of politics, a world loaded with pitfalls for the unwary and the unlearned.

The bulk of them came from the industrial areas of Ontario, where a strong conservative streak has pervaded the trade union movement from its earliest days. To many of them, socialism is a dirty word.

Then there were those representing the New Party clubs. A spokesman for this element made his position clear. The club members, he said, fancied themselves as small "I" liberals. They, too, were not interested in a radical program.

The third group, the never-give-up socialist CCF'ers, still clinging desperately to the principles and policies set forth by those who attended the historic meeting in Regina 29 years ago to draw up the Regina Manifesto.

There was considerable overlapping, but on the basis of what happened during the convention it is fair enough to generalize and categorize.

The trade unionists, allied with the New Party Club delegates, ran roughshod over the CCF minority. The anguished voices of Dorothy Stevens and Colin Cameron, and many others, were heard, but not heeded.

As a consequence, the New Party came up with a program that is a far distance from that advocated down through the years by the forces of socialism in Canada. The program in matters of domestic policy is, in fact, of a nature that would appeal to many members of the Liberal Party.

It is not radical, it is not basically socialist in concept.

Where it is unique, it differs on the side of a reactionary form of conservatism.

Why then a New Party? That is what the CCF'ers wanted to know throughout the convention. If the trade unionists and New Party club people knew, they weren't in a mood to tell. The entire mood of the convention was summed up by the delegate who said the word socialism was in bad odor, and that he prided himself in being a small "I" liberal.

Since small "I" liberalism is not unique in this day and age, the New Party's program is also not unique.

From the CCF point of view, this is political expediency at its worst. The fact that socialism is unpopular in the mind of the voters, in itself, doesn't mean that it is wrong. It doesn't mean they were wrong in their advocacy of socialism down through the years.

For the political idealists and dreamers in the New Party clubs, the appeal of the New Party seems to be founded in a belief that the Conservative and Liberal parties are somehow full of corrupt politicians who are unable to run the country because they are in the grip of huge corporations. That is patently nonsense, and again is no reason for the formation of a New Party.

The trade union delegates don't understand political theory, and seemed to be attending the convention simply because the hierarchy told each local to send its quota of delegates. They voted with the powers that be.

The result was what one might expect, a peculiar admixture of neo-socialism, political idealism, flashes of conservatism, and a powerful amount of talk.

A LOOK AT THE RECORD

Summers Past: Never a Silly Season That I Can Remember

WE are now, I see, entering upon the silly season, which, the old gentlemen who compiled the Oxford Dictionary define as "the months of August and September, when newspapers supply the lack of real news by articles or discussions on trivial topics." I call them old gentlemen because in my own lifetime there does not seem to have been any conspicuous lack of hard news in August and September. I don't go back to 1914 quite, but I believe there was something to report that summer, and for a few summers thereafter, up to 1918. I joined the piece the following year, and although I don't pretend to have followed the news closely, I observe that there was plenty to follow: Turkey, Afghanistan, Hungary all boiling over, and dear old d'Annunzio acting up in Fiume.

American women got the vote in August the following year, which must surely have stimulated the columnists and cartoonists to a little activity; Russia and Poland were at it hammer and tongs; and the League spent part of September giving Eupen and Malmédy to Belgium. Must have been a story in there somewhere.

So in 1921 I was two, and still only reading with great difficulty, but August and September produced some pictures for me to look at: the French occupying the Ruhr; for instance; American representatives signing peace treaties with Austria, Germany and Hungary; a German finance minister being assassinated; and a slump in Britain.

I know one paper that must have had something to fill its pages in 1922 during August and September, and that was the Toronto Star, because they had a youth called Hemingway filing some crisp stuff from Smyrna where Greek-Turkish relations had deteriorated to the point of massacre. And the Bavarian papers must have made more than a passing reference to something called the "National Socialist German Workers' Party" which was just beginning to add to the gay political life of Munich.

Japan would not complain of any lack of news in 1923 during the silly season—they had an earthquake that wrote up; American papers probably mentioned the death of Harding and the succession of Calvin Coolidge; in Palestine, the mandate came into force; Italy occupied Corfu while Primo de Rivera was on the eve of assuming power in Spain; and Germany abandoned the policy of passive resistance. If there was no hard news in this lot, you could always look for an angle: a cheese cake shot of Strasseman's secretary, or something.

There was a Reparations Conference in August, 1924, and the Dawes Plan came into force in September. Nineteen twenty-five was undoubtedly quiet, but there was something for the Church pages in an Occumenical Conference at Stockholm, and the news that the Old Country had annexed Spitzbergen must have made all those of Norwegian extraction quietly proud.

If I was reading the newspaper while

I was wrapping up my bucket and spade for the seaside in the summer of 1926, I must have caught the hot news from Geneva, where Germany had joined the League and Spain had left it while Greece and Yugoslavia exchanged tokens of undying friendship, and Pilsudski became Premier of Poland.

Nineteen twenty-seven, and the Peace Bridge between Canada and the United States was opened, and if you were there I bet you looked terrific in that hat, and those swinging beads, and that short, short skirt. In the summer of 1928 it is (don't laugh) the turn of Italy and Abyssinia to swear a pact of mutual amity, but there is nothing much else to report, apart from ructions in Mexico, the signing of the Kellogg Pact in Paris, and the nationalization of oil (how can they do such things?) in Argentina.

So now I'm ten, and Jews and Arabs are fighting in Palestine, there's trouble in Lithuania, and if you like reading the financial page this summer is the last time there's going to be any good news on it for almost a decade. 1930, and the lady in the knee-length swimming suit has made a paper hat of the headlines which tell of the advent to power of Mr. Bennett's Conservative ministry, and the revolution in Argentina. In the small print somewhere were the German election results—107 Nazis returned.

Gandhi's in London in 1931; Britain's off gold; Alfonso on the lam; Austria and Germany are really on the fair, and Japan is into Manchuria. Anything in the paper, dear? It's hot in Strass in 1932, and Hitler still in the "Gran Chaco. More German elections—230

Nazis returned. In 1933 yet more German elections, and now they're all Nazis. Russia joins the League in 1934, Hindenburg dies, and fella name of Hitler becomes Chancellor. Plenty of news from Germany from now on, summer and winter alike.

Roosevelt signs the Social Security Act in the summer of '35, and the name of Schuschnigg crops up to irk the newsmen. The next summer it's Chiang Kai-Shek, and for light relief the Moscow State Trials, an army insurrection in Spain, and it's all over in Abyssinia. Russia and the U.S. are signing a trade pact in the summer of 1937, there's plenty of news from Spain, and the Japanese have taken Peking.

Nobody will pretend that there was any silly season to speak of after 1938. Do I have to jog your memory with a few of the names that made headlines in the summers of the following years? Have you forgotten Berchtesgaden, Godesberg, Munich? The Moscow-Berlin pact? The Athenian, the Battle of Britain, Sollum and Bardia and Capuzzo, the Atlantic Charter, and then from the summer of 1941 onwards that litany of tongue-twisting Russian names that taught us so much geography. And finally 16 years ago, Hiroshima, the name which has banished silly seasons in the narrow sense.

And now, on a more parochial level, old Mr. Bennett has lived up to our season for us. It may or may not be silly, according to your views, but you've got to admit it's pretty funny. As I said, those old men who put that Dictionary together must have been very old. Never a silly season that I can remember, man and beast, this forty year and more.

Gerald Waring REPORTING

OTTAWA—The official song book of the New Party convention was a significant document. The 28 selections included such old favorites as "On Top of Old Smoky," about a false-hearted lover, and "Red River Valley," about a true-loving cowboy. The book contained labor songs like "Joe Hill" and "Solidarity." But nowhere could you find a socialist song.

This should have been the tip-off to the course this convention would take; the fact that the convention planners preferred "Alouette," say, to the international anthem of democratic socialism, "The Red Flag."

Anybody out at the Coliseum the last five days who belted out the refrain of "The Red Flag"—

Then raise the scarlet standard high!
Within its shade we'll live or die;
Thou towards flinch and traitors sneer
We'll keep the red flag flying here—probably would have been put down as a Communist—or at least some kind of a nut.

This bypassing of the great socialist song was merely the precursor of the convention's action in bypassing socialism. By the time the delegates rushed through the last of the party program, it seemed fairer to call this a little liberal party. Or a pseudo-socialist party.

Today, as never before, the adherents of the third party deserve the description Louis St. Laurent applied to them in 1953: "Liberals in a hurry."

With the Grits and Tories having moved to the left, and the convention having eschewed socialism, the New Party may have to discard the old CCF shibboleths that the only difference between Liberals and Conservatives is that the former are out of office and the latter in. The narrowed space between the NP and the Grits puts the NP in a glass house.

This bunching of the starters for '62 in the middle of the ideological track will make for tough competition. New Party, out of CCF by CLC, will be on the outside—not the favored position in a race with a rangy horse like New Grit, out of Fifty-Eight by Tory Mistakes.

People tend to be classed simply as Tories or Grits or what-have-you. The wrangling in the convention emphasized how hard it is to reconcile ideological and sectional differences. Big Labor controlled this convention. The leftist CCFers did most of the talking—you could tell them by the "comrade chairman" they used to address the chair, while labor speakers said "brother chairman"—but labor's more conservative views prevailed.

Interesting too was the French-Canadian delegates' proposal that the New Party espouse Quebec nationalism. This was a straw in the wind. But following the strong Quebec representation at the Social Credit convention here a month ago, it causes one to wonder how many Quebec voters, dissatisfied with the Tories, may be refraining from going Grit at least until they have shopped around.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

The New Agenda

By SILENUS

SELDOM does this column get involved in the mysterious trade of reporting the news, but it cannot refrain on this occasion from divulging the happenings at the annual meeting of Moose Pasture Mines Ltd. (NPL) which took place yesterday. For some mysterious reason, the press, not even the financial editor, was there. Only the directors, six other shareholders, and this column, intent on preserving its modest investment, were present.

The chairman, after running over the highlights of the business in the last year, added a few remarks.

"As you know, friends," he said, "the activities of your directors over the last few years have resulted in your company showing a modest annual profit since 1950. We are, if I may say so, a well managed little facet of the great free enterprise system which has turned this Canada of ours into a mighty world power. But greater things are in store for us as we face a future fraught with difficulties and dangers and the ever present possibility of a decline in base metal prices."

Neither I nor the other directors will be with you when the great future unfolds before you. As you know, the passage by our legislature of the Free Enterprise Act last week, has made certain changes in our organization; as of 3 o'clock... in about four minutes... we will be deemed to have resigned.

As shareholders, friends, we will be spared, for instance, the tedious chore of electing a new board of directors. We will be spared the nuisance of meetings. And I will not have to make these long reports to you about the way your fortunes are faring.

Under the Free Enterprise Act, new directors will be appointed by the government... just think, friends, no tiresome electing for you to do... and they will run your business in the best traditions of free enterprise according to the most modern and enlightened ideas. At the conclusion of my remarks I shall ask for, and expect, a vote of confidence in your new board of directors.

One further matter I should mention is our shares in the company. These have so increased in value over the years that our business has appeared sufficiently attractive for the government to bring it under the Free Enterprise Act, and this I am sure is a source of pride and satisfaction to us all. The government has redeemed our shares at their par value, and in exchange will in due course issue to us the solid security of Free Enterprise Perpetual Self-Liquidating Non-Redeemable Guaranteed Debt Free LOU's.

At this point a shareholder pointed out that the par value of the shares was only 1c. The chairman frowned, and concluded: "These interjections will be impossible under free enterprise. In any event, it is 3 o'clock, and you will have to take it up with the new management..."

The tramp of heavy boots was heard in the passage, and the shareholders adjourned via the fire escape.

WEEKEND WEATHER PICTURE ACROSS CANADA

SYNOPSIS—A surge of cooler and moister air pushed in from the Pacific Friday and is now heading eastward through the interior of B.C. Showers were very few but thunderstorms will develop over interior ridges this afternoon and evening. On the coast cloud cover is variable with almost clear skies in the south and overcast with rain in the north. Some increase in cloud cover over the south coast can be expected during the day but showers are likely only along the ridges. In general, temperatures will be considerably cooler in all regions.

SUPPORT LOST OVER TUNISIA

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Diplomats believe the United States has hurt its chances of getting UN action on Berlin by alienating many Afro-Asian nations through its neutral position in the French-Tunisian dispute.

These delegates claim the United States lost much support in the 46-member group by failing to denounce France's military action against Tunisians blockading her Bizerte naval base.

Coe African moderate said the United States now would have a hard time getting the two-thirds majority needed for General Assembly condemnation of any Communist pressure on West Berlin.

He predicted the United States would get few if any votes from the Afro-Asians if the Berlin crisis is brought before the 99-nation assembly.

One informed observer said the U.S. stand on Bizerte cancelled out the support the United States had won from anti-colonial nations when it sided against Portugal on the African-Angola issue in both the assembly and Security Council last spring.

The United States voted for a Security Council resolution favoring a cease-fire in Bizerte and calling on both France and Tunisia to pull back to their pre-battle positions. But it shied away from any proposals that implied criticism of France.

American sources said privately the time was inappropriate for a stronger U.S. position. The United States has been careful not to offend France while the Berlin crisis is brewing.

Delegates noted that several countries that usually side with the United States have come out in favor of a special assembly session on Tunisia—a move strongly opposed by the United States.

They include Iran, Pakistan, The Philippines, Thailand and Turkey.

The Afro-Asian group, promoting the special session, is only three votes short of the 50-nation majority needed to call one. It seems likely to get the extra three early next week.

ISLAND VIEWPOINT

More Care

COWICHAN LEADER—The federal government and the Crown agency are seeking to eliminate some of the frenzied financing which has been associated with home building. There is now to be more careful inquiry about the financial capacity of applicants before the ink has a chance to dry on agreements.

Approved lenders are obligated to obtain proof that the minimum 5 per cent equity is there and that it does not consist of a temporary loan, with strings attached, from a builder or broker acting as agent for the builder.

It is easy to see how this minimum-equity provision can be surmounted in this way. The trouble begins when the lender wants the temporary loan repaid, perhaps in a hurry, and the prospective home owner finds his credit stretched that he is unable to repay. In such instances, cases of arrears develop and if they once become sour it is not easy to sweeten them.

Vandalism

CAMPBELL RIVER COURIER—The outbreak of vandalism at Quinsam campsite last week is an incident which should raise the greatest concern among residents of the whole district. Not only is it the type of action which is an affront to decent citizens, but it is a direct blow to tourism, one of our greatest industries, and one on which a great deal of effort and money are spent. Few things can be imagined which would make it more unlikely that visitors should return than the wanton destruction of their property.

By ARCH MACKENZIE
OTTAWA (CP)—The New Democratic Party's platform is political gospel according to the prophets of left-of-centre moderation.

Few substantial changes in the draft program were made at this week's founding convention—either from the convention floor or in the prolonged discussion where the program committee processed 700 resolutions.

Those closed committee sessions shielded any doctrinal dispute on such questions as the degree of public ownership, greater Canadian economic independence, full employment, trade, farm policy or federal-provincial relations.

NATO, excepted, left-wing elements tended in public discussions to register their criticism only as suggestions for more socialism and not by efforts to amend.

BUSINESS UNFINISHED
At Friday's conclusion, some program sections remained unapproved, most of them non-controversial topics in the field of social security or human rights. These were left for the 82-member national council of the New Democratic Party to handle.

In staking out its claim as Canada's progressive party, the new party has attempted to combine emphasis on social and moral consciousness, economic reform and what the majority regarded as political realism capable of appealing to the most electors. The platform preamble sets the general tone when it omits any mention of public ownership but says:

"Unemployment, waste, political corruption and commercialization of taste and values continue and have even increased... because economic development is still un-planned, unstable and operated chiefly for the benefit of the few owners of great corporations."

JOBS FOR ALL
Full employment would be sought through a guaranteed employment act, subsidizing the retraining or moving of workers and providing jobs as a social right on application to the public local employment office.

So-called social spending—roads, hospitals, schools and the like—would be used to provide job opportunities. Full employment wouldn't be possible the day after the New Democratic Party took office, it was emphasized.

The stand on public ownership is this:

"The New Democratic Party will expand public and co-operative ownership for such purposes as the operation of utilities, the development of resources, the elimination of monopoly concentrations of power and the operation of major enterprises immediately and directly affecting the entire nation."

There would be a national investment board and expanded opportunities for "genuine private initiative."

Compromise Over NATO 'Victory' for Opponents

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The New Democratic Party hurled the contentious NATO issue Friday but at a heavy cost in the form of compromise.

At that, it took the full weight of new leader Tommy Douglas, CCF national president David Lewis, M. J. Coldwell, the most respected man in Socialist ranks in Canada, and British Labor leader Hugh Gaitskell to win over the convention.

This was a crisis in the convention.

Many delegates held passionate views on the subject of NATO. A large group of CCFers, as they did at their last national convention, wanted the New Democratic Party to resolve to get out of NATO.

Trade Union delegates, on record in their last convention in favor of continued membership in the most powerful collective security alliance in world history, were in violent opposition to the CCF stand.

In the end, those who were opposed to NATO won.

Not in Speeches

It will not appear that way in the speeches of Mr. Douglas, when he starts stumping the nation in search of electoral victory, but an examination of what was done here Friday morning leads to no other conclusion.

Mr. Douglas did not have to go as far as he did to win support for the compromising resolution submitted by the program committee; he could have left the resolution as it was written.

But Mr. Douglas, as he had been since the start of the convention, was gravely concerned at the lack of unity in the party. He will have to lead in the next election.

The resolution said Canada should stay in NATO, until such time as that organization assumes responsibility for nuclear weapons, or starts distributing nuclear weapons to member nations.

There was every indication it would have carried with a good majority. But Douglas apparently decided the delegates who were for pulling out of NATO felt so strongly on the subject he had to make further concessions to their views.

Rapacki Plan

So he told the convention that a New Democratic Party government would impose further conditions on continued NATO membership. He said that NATO must accept the New Democratic Party's plan for economic co-operation (unspecified by Mr. Douglas). He said NATO must put itself under the control of the United Nations. And he said NATO must accept the Rapacki plan for a nuclear-free zone in Central Europe.

And, said Mr. Douglas, if NATO doesn't accept these conditions, Canada should pull out.

It is obvious from NATO policy in the past, worked out in conference after conference by the member nations, that NATO cannot accept these conditions.

That much wasn't apparent to the delegates. They were tired of hearing argument pro and con; they wanted to vote.

Emotional Appeal

The convention decision will create a difficult situation for the CCF MPs in the House of Commons. Their foreign affairs spokesman, H. W. Herdridge of Kootenay-West, made an emotional appeal for getting out of NATO.

It was a speech unusual for Mr. Herdridge, whose views are normally moderate. "Let's bring the boys home so they can spend their money in Canada, and help unemployed in Canada," he said.

The problem now is whether to allow Mr. Herdridge to speak for the New Democratic Party caucus on foreign affairs. Although he prides himself on being a democrat, Mr. Herdridge cannot in all conscience support NATO, even with the conditions established by Mr. Douglas.

WOODROW LLOYD

EX-SCHOOL TEACHER

Lloyd 'Most Likely' To Succeed Douglas

REGINA (CP)—Political limelight, sometimes shunned by Woodrow Stanley Lloyd, focused sharply on him Friday following the selection at Ottawa of Premier T. C. Douglas as national leader of the New Democratic Party.

Treasurer and deputy premier of Saskatchewan, Mr. Lloyd, 48, is considered by many as the man most likely to succeed Mr. Douglas as CCF leader and premier of Saskatchewan.

Mr. Douglas is expected to remain premier to pilot a compulsory medical care plan through a fall session of the legislature and resign as party leader at a November party convention.

A former school teacher, Mr. Lloyd is one of the original CCF members who swept into office in the 1944 general election. He became education minister and has remained in the cabinet ever since. He was named treasurer when Clarence Finnes retired from politics last year.

He represents the rural constituency of Biggar, in west-central Saskatchewan and prior to this year's session was known as one who avoided the limelight. This year his climb to prominence was marked by a major speech during the throne speech debate in addition to the traditional speech by the treasurer in bringing down the provincial budget.

OFTEN TOOK OVER

He sat next to the premier in the House and took over regularly during his absence.

The big question now is: Has Mr. Lloyd the color and personality to be a successful provincial leader?

Some of his close friends say he will. They believe he has remained in the background by choice, leaving the colorful Mr. Douglas at the front. They say Mr. Lloyd will be able to project his personality to the electors when necessary.

Of Welsh parentage, Mr. Lloyd first attended a rural school. He graduated from the University of Saskatchewan with a bachelor of arts degree.

Before entering politics he was president of the Saskatchewan Teachers' Federation and the Saskatchewan Educational Conference and vice-president of the Federation of Home and School Clubs.

He is a member of the United Church of Canada. Mr. Lloyd married Victoria Marie Lennan of Lennan, Sask., in 1936. They have four children.

IWA Demands CLC Suspend Carpenters

OTTAWA (CP)—The International Woodworkers of America (IWA) has demanded that the Canadian Labor Congress suspend one of the CLC's biggest affiliates, the 63,000-member United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners.

The IWA has charged before the CLC that the carpenters union is breaking Congress policy and is raiding the IWA jurisdiction among Newfoundland loggers.

Claude Jodoin, president of the 1,150,000-member congress, confirmed Thursday that the suspension demand has been received.

He said it would be processed according to the CLC constitution "as soon as possible."

H. Landon Ladd, president of the IWA eastern district, said a formal protest has been laid before the CLC, charging that the carpenters union has been flouting CLC policy that seeks to thwart any inter-union strife over the Newfoundland workers.

The charge of raiding led to the expulsion of the Seafarers International Union and the Teamsters Brotherhood from the CLC last year.

The 36,000-member IWA move brings the stormy Newfoundland labor situation to a head presenting the CLC with a major crisis that could have far-reaching implications for labor solidarity.

ART IN REVIEW

By ARTHUR CORRY

Features Canadian Art

From a press release by the National Gallery I note that Canadian artists are to be represented at the Sixth Sao Paulo Biennial, held in the Museum of Modern Art, Sao Paulo, Brazil. In a special room devoted to Canada, paintings by Alex Colville, Saskatoon, N.B.; Marcelle Ferron, Louiseville, Que.; Harold Town, Toronto; Ronald Bloore, Regina; and Gordon Smith, Vancouver, will be displayed and add greatly to this international showcase of contemporary art.

A number of styles will be represented in the Canadian section; for example the abstract expressionism of Harold Town; the magic realism of Alex Colville, and the "tachist" technique following along lines developed by the late Emile Borduas, by Marcelle Ferron.

Corry

This will be the first time Ronald Bloore's work has been exhibited internationally, although his painting won wide acclaim at the recently opened Fourth Biennial of Canadian Art in Ottawa.

Gordon Smith was awarded a Canada Council scholarship in 1960 and spent a year travelling and painting in England and Europe. Last November the Victoria Art Gallery purchased a painting by Mr. Smith by means of an invited jury selection and a matched grant from the Canada Council.

The Vancouver Art Gallery has assembled an outstanding exhibit of color linocuts and etchings by Pablo Picasso.

On loan from the collection of Daniel-Henri Kahnweiler, Paris, the linocuts will have a one and only Canadian appearance at the Vancouver Art Gallery. The etchings come from the National Gallery collection.

To compliment this display Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Graham have generously lent a group of Picasso's ceramics, and so in conjunction with the Vancouver International Festival, an outstanding show has been produced. This exhibition closes August 20.

Vancouver Art Gallery has suffered a great loss this month with the appointment of Dr. William S. A. Dale to the position of assistant director, National Gallery of Canada. For the past two years he has served as an outstanding director of the Vancouver Art Gallery and a replacement of such calibre will be difficult to locate.

In this distinguished career Dr. Dale has served as a staff member of the National Gallery and curator of the Art Gallery of Toronto. He is a specialist in the history of medieval art and has delivered lectures and written articles on a wide variety of European and Canadian art subjects.

It is gratifying to see the tremendous support given to the Victoria Film Festival at the Band Shell in Beacon Hill Park. On three separate evenings I counted well over 500 in attendance and the fine selection of prize-winning documentaries held the audience spell-bound.

Sponsors responsible for this Festival are: Pacific Command Royal Canadian Navy, Victoria Public Library, Parks Department of the City of Victoria and the National Film Board.

It is hoped that this event will be made an annual festival and in 1962, Victoria's Centenary, should prove a prime attraction to the many expected visitors.

Among these excellent documentary films offered for the balance of August are: "D for Design," "Story of Peter and the Potter, "Loon's Necklace," "Craftsmen of Canada," and "Shaped by Danish Hands."

DR. W. S. A. DALE

The Children's Library, with a registration of 800 youngsters for the Summer Reading Clubs, has had an average of 1000 book reports turned in every day. This section of the Public Library is like a stirred-up beehive these days.

I was most intrigued by a mural, called "Turtle Hill," painted by an unnamed artist, where the boys and girls pin, and advance their nut-shell turtles towards the top of the mount, in accordance with the quality of books reviewed.

Pith of Tense Novel

LAST SCORE OF THE PRIVATE LIFE OF SIR RICHARD ORNSTON, by Storm Jameson. MacMillan Company of Canada, Ltd. 276 pages. $3.50.

Reviewed By J. C. M. Ogelsby
(Assistant Professor of English, Royal Roads)

Why is man so inclined to be afraid of accepting responsibility?

Last Score shows what happens to one man whose responsibilities become too much for him. The novel which Storm Jameson has created is hard, tense and exciting, but it fades into unrealistic banter in the end.

She is inclined to let her leading character, Sir Richard Ormston, governor of a British colony that has all the terror and turmoil of a Cyprus striving for freedom from British rule, suddenly break under the weight of the enormity of what he has done in trying to suppress the rebellion.

She did not have to do it, but having chosen to do so she fails to be convincing.

Sir Richard has had his growing-up problems. His mother dominated his early childhood and continued her hold upon him right until the climax. It was she who pushed him into striving to reach the top of the ladder even though it meant pushing off his best friends.

He has a wife with whom he has nothing in common, and he has a son involved in a love affair with the editor of a liberal newspaper whose editorials attack the government at every opportunity.

Sir Richard also has a mistress whose husband happens to be a childhood friend.

It is all very, very interesting, and when the underground movement suddenly involves him in a deep personal action in his attempts to suppress it the novel finds its real strength.

The day is past when one in a position of public responsibility could do what he felt was right and be able to withstand public disapproval. In this instance Sir Richard chooses to defy approved standards of morality in order to save hundreds of lives.

The grievousness of his decision and its subsequent consequences, even with the novel's faults, make Last Score worth while reading.

Comprehensive
For Centenary

A businessman is primarily responsible for a unique book to be published in celebration of Canada's Centenary in 1967. He is Gordon Trent of Toronto, who first conceived the project on his own and found an editor and a publisher who shared his enthusiasm. The book is The Canadians, 1867-1967: A Record of Achievement; the editor, Maurice Careless, chairman of the Department of History at the University of Toronto; and the publisher, Macmillan of Canada.

The Canadians, 1867-1967 will run to about a quarter of a million words divided into two main parts: "Part I—The People Through Ten Decades" will treat the hundred years chronologically with emphasis on the social and cultural; "Part II—The Pattern of the Nation" will be a topical treatment of all fields of Canadian achievement through the century—human and natural resources, manufacturing, transport, communications, construction, finance, science, the arts, education and many others. There will be numerous illustrations.

Many distinguished scholars and experts have agreed to contribute: among others, Donald G. Creighton, Kenneth McNaught, J. T. Saywell and C. P. Stacey of the University of Toronto, Roger Graham of the University of Saskatchewan, William Kilbourn of McMaster, W. S. McNutt of the University of New Brunswick, Blair Neatby of Carleton University, George Stanley of Royal Military College and W. L. Morton of the University of Manitoba. The list is not yet complete.

The Canadians, 1867-1967 will be published in the fall of 1966.

World's Only Drive-In Volcano

HILO, Hawaii—The hottest attraction in the Pacific is Hawaii's drive-in volcano. The temperatures in the fire pit reach as high as 2,400 degrees, which is warmer than New York in August.

The organized volcanoes out here are mostly located inside the National Park, but none of them blows on schedule after the manner patented by Yellowstone's Old Faithful. The record shows that eruptions occur every two or three years, but when it comes to where, or when, Mne Pele, the goddess of volcanoes, is Old Unpredictable!

Pele lives, of course, in the Halemaumau fire pit, a hole in the floor of Kilauea's crater. Looking very much like the shell of a boiled egg from which someone has sheared the top, Kilauea's crater measures two and a half miles long by two miles wide.

When Pele lights the fire-cracker either in her own underground lair or elsewhere on the Big Island of Hawaii, eruptions of a different sort occur all through this chain of islands. When the volcanologists call a volcano alert, the airlines are the first to jump into action—if she blows at night, which volcanoes have a habit of doing, both Hawaiian Airlines and Aloha Airlines must call in pilots, hostesses and counter people from their homes all over Honolulu.

A press plane flies over at the first possible moment and special flights and ground tours are organized. The first tourists are the volcano buffs who leave standing orders for a seat on the initial volcano plane and a room in Volcano House, a resort that teeters on the edge of the rim.

We happened to have been in a semi-conscious state under a banana leaf here the other day when Pele lighted the fuse. Grabbing a sweater, a hat and some shoes, three items of equipment not ordinarily necessary for the good life in Hawaii, we roared off to Hawaiian Airlines' new terminal and caught the five o'clock Conair for the tour flight to the big show on the Big Island.

Barkers stood at the doors of Hilo's flower-flooded airport offering taxi rides to the volcano. It was a beautiful twilight 45-minute drive past the tiny villages of Keauau and Mountain View, under the arches of giant tree ferns, between the rows of trumpet flowers that seemed about to sound a fanfare.

"This Way to the Eruption," said the sign set out by the National Park Service and we followed it to the Chain-of-Craters Road. The fissures along the side of the road were smoking as we joined the line of cars threading single file around the circumference, but there was no lava flow to be seen. "Gee, what's the big deal?" said a small boy who is related to me. Pele answered him very quickly, sending a rainstorm of pumice cascading down on our tin roof.

Then the glow began to show against the darkening blue sky, and we burst suddenly on a parking area for hundreds of cars. A park ranger in a heavy mackinaw, a ranger's wide-brimmed hat and clear goggles directed the traffic.

Here at the world's only drive-in volcano, it is perhaps 50 feet from the parking lot to the crater's edge. The Park Service has provided a raised platform, almost like a grandstand, where you can look down into Pele's home. The jets we dropped by the lady was obviously having a hot time.

A brilliant fountain was spitting a jet of pure gold 400 feet into the air. The lava was falling back and running off into a lake that had formed on the crater floor. Crazy golden doodles ran in zigzag lines around the surface of the lake. It had been going like this for days with no signs yet that Pele was about to turn off the jets.

P&O-Orient Lines' 28,000-ton Orcaedis sails for the Orient this September.

Now you can sail to Japan and the Orient for less than it costs to vacation at home!

P&O-ORIENT LINES now offer vacations to the fabulous Orient—Japan, Hong Kong, the Philippines, Singapore—for as little as $17 a day!

For example, a round trip to Manila costs less than you'd spend at a resort hotel by the day. You'll see the Orient on your way. And you have a choice of any one of frequent sailings, timed for the best seasons.

A glance at the map below shows you your course. You board your graceful P&O-Orient liner at Vancouver, San Francisco or Long Beach.

A few short days later you're in Honolulu where you can pick orchids, ride a surfboard or learn the hula. Seven days later you step ashore in Japan at Yokohama. (Suggestion: take the trip overland from Tokyo to Kobe on the beautiful Inland Sea where you can pick up your ship again three days later.) Your next stop is Hong Kong with its treasure-trove for shoppers.

The last port of call on your trip can be

Manila, Singapore, Australia or even Europe, depending upon which ship you take.

Travel in the Grand Manner

The service on P&O-Orient liners is delightfully British. A steward is never more than a finger's wave away. Your meals are in the great Continental tradition. Your ship has two swimming pools (one in tourist and one in first class) and thousands of feet of open deck for sun and games. There are movies, parties, dances, concerts and all the time in the world for catching up on your reading and meeting new friends from every part of the world.

And it's all yours whether you shoot the works and go glittering first class, or gayly informal in tourist.

Sailing Dates

P&O-Orient's Orsona sails from Vancouver August 10, Orcaedis sails September 6, Orsona sails October 29, and Iberia sails March 6.

There are return sailings through the Orient leaving Manila for Hong Kong, Japan, Hawaii and the West Coast in October, April and June.

Dates of other sailings are available upon request from your travel agent.

Round trip fares to Japan start at just $806 first class and $672 tourist class.

Fly there—sail back

If time is short you can have the best of both worlds by flying out to the Orient and sailing back on P&O-Orient with no worries about excess baggage charges for your loot.

'Dream' Mood, Character Reflected in Britten Score

It was impossible not to wonder, as I sat in the Queen Elizabeth Theatre, Wednesday night, what had been in the minds of the capacity audience as it approached this moment of the first North American airing of Benjamin Britten's "Midsummer Night's Dream" opera.

During the first act of the fourth Vancouver International Festival opera, there were vague stirrings of restlessness; mild spatters of mystified applause, muttered expressions of puzzlement.

Audrey Johnson had been some expectation of a Puccini-esque score or, at the least, something as melodically simple and likeable as Menotti's "Amahl."

Obviously few, even among the more initiated, had asked themselves, "How well has Britten captured the airy off-beat magic, the tongue-in-cheek love quadrangle, the typically Bardian lusty comedy?"

Yet these were all important questions with which to prime oneself as the lights dimmed and the curtain rose.

WAITED FOR ANSWERS

All the answers were not forthcoming immediately. When are they ever in a new worthwhile work of art? It took me well into the middle of the second act before I settled down to appreciate the clever, characteristic score.

Visually, however, and from every standpoint of production, enchantment was complete and long-lasting.

This, however, is an opera and cannot be discussed only in terms of its visual appeal. Shakespeare's play has been produced many times with incidental music, but not even on those occasions was it as incidental as implied Wednesday night by one matron: "It's lovely, isn't it? Of course I don't like the music... but then the music isn't important."

One hearing is not sufficient for any summation of the opera's qualities of permanence, but the score does emerge as fresh, imaginative and brilliantly interpretive of the atmosphere and moods that pervade this inconsequential bubble of Shakespeare's genius.

MAINLY WHIMSY

There are moments of lyrical beauty—mostly provided by Tityania, delightfully sung by soprano Mary Costa—but these are brief, whimsy being the all-prevailing element of the music as it is of the play.

A charming interlude of fairy orchestra and some lively rhythmic invention characterizing the loutish exhorting during rehearsals and performance of the "play within a play" are highlights of the score that have come home with me from my single hearing of the "Dream."

A thoroughly expert interpretation of the score was provided by Meredith Davies, who conducted the original production at Covent Garden.

Also from the Gielgud-directed London premiere the Festival production had American counter-tenor Russell Oberlin.

Singing the part of Oberon, King of the Fairies, Mr. Oberlin displayed one of the rarest voices of our modern age. Its high range—from D below middle C to an octave and a third above—has created a great demand for his services all over the world.

VOICE OVERPOWERED
Its unusual purity and clarity was understandably fitted to a fairy king role, but one could not help but feel that he was over-powered, not only by the size of stage and auditorium but also by the more "earthy" timbre of Miss Costa's voice as his queen.

Much as I admired Miss Costa's artistry—and she looked utterly beautiful—I feel that either Tityania should have been sung by one of those almost disembodied English lyric sopranos or Oberon should have been a slightly heavier female mezzo soprano.

Vocally, the opera was exceedingly well served by most of the adult members of the cast; especially Ilona Kombrink, Jan Rubes, Karl Norman, Davis Cunningham and Richard Fredericks.

The host of children were at-

tractive and convincing "little people" although their movement lacked any sense of style and their singing was lost on the Queen Elizabeth.

AN IMPISH PUCK

Outstanding was Joy Coghill's sparkling, truly impish Puck. Her movement was excellent and her words far more distinguishable than those of most other members of the cast.

What most people will remember best about Britten's "Dream," I am afraid, is the exquisite beauty and magic of Harry Horner's stage design and directing.

It seems doubtful that anyone has seen or is likely to see a vision of greater enchantment than the cobwebby, misty moonlight effect of purples, blue-greens and silver, carried out with perfect consistency in sets, costumes and even make-up, as well as lighting.

The revolving centre stage piece of rocks, stylized foliage, caves and multiple levels, the projected patterns of leaves and a spell-binding golden moon on a misty backdrop, added up to what can best be described as visual poetry that matched Shakespeare's own.

(Royal): Needless to say, it is almost impossible to produce a poor picture when one has at his disposal such proven artists as Leslie Caron, Maurice Chevalier and Charles Boyer.

That they, plus comparative newcomer Horst Buchholz, are all in "Fanny," lend it an aura of invincibility before the plot gets fairly under way. Nor do they let you down. They carry most of the situations, both serious and funny, off with an élan and expert professionalism that cannot be denied.

Unfortunately the plot has been kicked about for quite a while as a play, a musical and so on. Perhaps that is why, at infrequent intervals, an air of ennui intrudes to take away from the zing and pell-mell rush of what has gone before.

It is the story of Fanny, played fetchingly by Miss Caron, a waterfront girl of the port of Marseilles, who is hopelessly in love with Buchholz, son of tavern-keeper Boyer. Sad to relate, however, as much as he loves her he loves sailing ships and faraway ports more.

GETS NEW ASSIGNMENT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—William Bloom, who currently is producing "The Tiger" Among Us, has been signed by Columbia Pictures to produce the comedy, "Man From the Diner's Club."

The picture will be based on the operation of the international credit organization.

Gallery Production For Intimate Stage

Intimate Stage, which last summer entertained Victorians and visitors with experimental fare at the Old Yates Street theatre—now a boys' club—returns to the Art Gallery next week with two short plays.

It was at the gallery that some of the group's earlier successes were recorded, including Walpole's "The Old Ladies" and Fry's "Phoenix Too Frequent."

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday director Tony Nicholson will present Strindberg's "The Ghost Sonata" and Ionesco's "The Bald Soprano," using central stage technique.

Eugene Ionesco's play has been described by himself as "a parody on the theatre which, in turn, is a parody on life."

Casts of the two plays include Katie Robertson, Yvonne Cleary, Sandra McKeachie, Marilyn Taylor, Tony Nicholson, Michael Horne and Robert Taylor.

Performances will begin at 8:30.

Benny Bounces Back in Biz With Big Band

By BOB THOMAS

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP)—Can Benny Goodman make it with another generation?

You'd think so, watching Benny swing out at Disneyland. Such excitement hasn't been seen since the 1930s, when the famed Pied Piper led the continent into a whole new world of music.

"It's amazing," says Benny, pleased with this new turn in his long career.

He recently organized a big band composed of a few old-timers but mostly young musicians. The first date was Disneyland.

The results were sensational. Crowds packed before the bandstand 20 deep, and couples were jitterbugging—not rocking, not rolling—jitterbugging. Benny played the clarinet with the same facile style, and the crowd cheered every solo.

GIVES WITH BOUNCE

Still youthful at 52, Benny bounced and grinned as he led the numbers. They were strictly vintage stuff—"Sing, Sing, Sing," "Jumping at the Woodside," "And the Angels Sing," "One O'Clock Jump" and so on. The youngsters ate it up. Benny has stuck mostly to small combos in recent years, but he said he'll continue with the full band if the demand continues.

"Big bands, small bands—I'm in the music business," he said. "I'll play whatever the people want."

LATENT TALENT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Actor Jack Lemmon says he's written over 200 songs, including some with such intriguing titles as "The Bottom's Dropped Out of Everything," "But You," "Won't You Be My Chorus for Tonight?" "The Bar Stool Blues," "Row Out the Bathtub and I'll Do a Bubble Dance for You," and "Belly Roll Concerto for French Horn and Ukelele."

Rodgers Chooses New Opus

Richard Rodgers has found that property he wants to serve as both composer and lyricist before he settles down to the previously announced plan to work with Alan Jay Lerner as lyricist and librettist, replacing the late Oscar Hammerstein.

He has settled on a musical play with a book by Samuel Taylor, author of such successful plays as "Sabrina Fair" and "The Pleasure of His Company." It will be an original modern story for the stage, the idea being conceived by both Rodgers and Taylor.

Plans call for rehearsals late in the fall or early next winter. Both men have their parts of the work well under way. Rodgers still plans to collaborate with Lerner on a show for the fall of 1962, but he felt the rich to get busy before Lerner would be free to work.

SIDELINE SLANTS

BY

Doug Peden

Senator Estes Kefauver and a lot of other guys who sit around the U.S. Congress profess to be goshawfully worried about a professional baseball monopoly. Investigations by Congress more than any one thing incited plans for a third major league and eventually forced expansion programs on the American and National leagues.

Other people holler that the monster called television is slowly killing the American pastime, some mean that fantastic bonus payments for untold rookies are undermining the game.

You can take your choice, but from this corner it seems that those who are sentimentally and financially interested in organized baseball might well be fretting about a more imminent danger—the concentration of players on money matters rather than on playing the game.

The athletes who covet in flannel knickers have drifted into a mutual aid society.

If there was any lingering doubt about their hunger for money, it was removed this week when the players voted to again have two major league all-star games in 1962.

It was their greed that first brought about the idea of a second all-star game. The original idea three years ago was to take advantage of the huge crowds watching the Dodgers in Los Angeles to fatten the players' pension fund; which gets all receipts from all-star games.

Robs Baseball of Public Confidence

Now they have had three doubleheaders for the stars and just about everybody—owners, fans, writers and even some players—proclaim that a second all-star game is a mistake. One may have some significance. Two means nothing. A second game is merely a benefit for the players and asking that it be continued is robbing baseball of public confidence, which is a danged-sight more vital than a fatter pension pot.

Today's stars don't seem to care a used blue blade what happens to baseball and the next generation of players. They have it made. By the time they're 50, they'll be cushy remittance men.

You can't blame the people who shell out money at the box office for believing that diamond celebrities being paid from $12,000 to $80,000 per year spend more time worrying about how much they can make now and get when they are washed up than they do about winning games.

They're Financiers, Not Fielders

Established big leaguers have become bankers, not batters; financiers, not fielders. They make as if they feel every time a star smites a home run or pitches a shutout he immediately starts figuring how much it will increase his endorsement value. His standing in the shaving cream, cigarette, bubble gum and deodorant business soars with his average.

How can you have faith in athletes who make as much or more in a month as the average working guy does in a year of toil and still insist on making a farce of their profession by voting for two all-star games?

It must seem to those who have been around long enough to remember the likes of Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Pepper Martin and Dizzy Dean that baseball is fast losing its sense of competition. As author Arthur Mann once put it while testifying before a Congressional committee, "the players are destroying the intangible golden thread that holds baseball together."

The owners encouraged the trend. Moving of historic franchises and getting in and out for a quick million encouraged players to get all they could while the getting was good.

Owners and players had better not completely destroy the illusion that baseball is a sport and a civic enterprise, not just a business venture.

That, and public confidence, is what the game was built on, but the intangible golden thread is looking mighty tarnished and dangerously thin today.

SHORT SHOTS: Pro football players don't have it so good in their annual game—the NFL champs against the College All-Stars—played Friday night in Chicago. The charity running the show shells out $28,000 in insurance premiums as protection against injuries and the gridders' pension fund gets a meagre 1 per cent slice. . . . Percy Cridle has started work on his golf and country club near Vancouver, clearing space for three fairways this week. Percy, who has had several queries about "memberships from Vancouver, will soon survey local golfers to learn how many prospective members he might have in this area. . . . B.C. Lions kick off their grid season against Edmonton Monday and we'll pick the Leafs to finish second if they beat the Eskis, third if they lose. . . . Umpire Gordie Perkins will finish up the season with the Northwest League. He started calling balls and strikes in the U.S. baseball circuit last night.

Venturi Vaults Into Golf Lead

BALTIMORE (AP)—Ken Venturi, battling wind and rain, vaulted from home, stormed through Friday to hold the lead in the 72-hole Eastern Open golf tournament with a score of 137, seven strokes below par.

The 30-year-old Venturi clipped three strokes off par through 13 holes before a deluge fell on the Pine Ridge course. He conquered tricky winds and a muddy course to equal par the rest of the way for a 68 behind Thursday's opening 68.

Venturi moved a stroke in front of defending champion Gene Littler, Gary Brewer Jr. and Doug Sanders, who finished their second rounds before the rains came.

OLYMPIA, Wash.—Beat

Pasco . . .

That was all Victoria Carnarvon All-Stars had to do today to win the P.O. League sectional baseball final.

The teams meet at 2 p.m. If Pasco, 1-1 in the tourney, won, both teams left with 2-1 records would decide it all in a sudden-death final tonight at 6:30.

Victoria tripped Pasco 10-8 here Thursday. But Pasco came back with victories over well-rated Kennewick and Richland. Pasco is still the class of the tournament, according to Victoria coach Ken Murphy, who would like his boys to drop the Washingtonians into a lower class.

An impressive 8-1 win over Portland Friday gave Victoria a 3-0 record in the double-loss elimination tournament. Murphy has his "airlift" pitchers—Bruce MacKenzie and Gordon Strongman—ready for Pasco. The pair, flown to Olympia and back home in the early part of the tourney, will remain with the club now that summer school classes have ended.

Bruce MacKenzie and his brother Brian were the main noise against Portland.

BRUCE MOPS UP

Brian toiled six innings, gave up one run and three singles. Bruce finished by allowing only one single, set down the side in order in the seventh.

As potent as the plate as he is stingy on the mound, Brian whacked a bases-loaded double for three runs, a single and scored twice himself.

Victoria ran up a 7-0 lead after three innings and played errorless ball all the way.

Victoria runners stole six bases Friday night, bringing their total for three games to 14.

Strongman, leading hitter of the tournament, batted two for three.

B.C. Lions Cut Four Players, Pick Up Pair

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia Lions have picked up two Ottawa castoffs on waivers and has signed one of them.

Herb Capozzi, general manager of the Western Football Conference team, said the men, both guards, are 215-pound Joe Dean from Ohio University and Canadian Bill MacDougall. Capozzi said with the cutting of four players and the signing of these two players the team will have the 40 players it is permitted at the opening of the conference season here Monday night.

Lions chopped American lineman Bob Lowler and Bill Eurich and Canadians Doug Mitchell, a middle guard, and halfback Gary Bruce. Mitchell played for Lions last season.

Irish Pro Wins $2,800, Cup Spot

LONGNIDDRY, Scotland (AP)—Christy O'Connor of Ireland won the £1,000 ($2,800) prize Friday in a British professional 72-hole golf tournament.

He finished two strokes ahead of John Panton of Scotland and Harry Weetman of England.

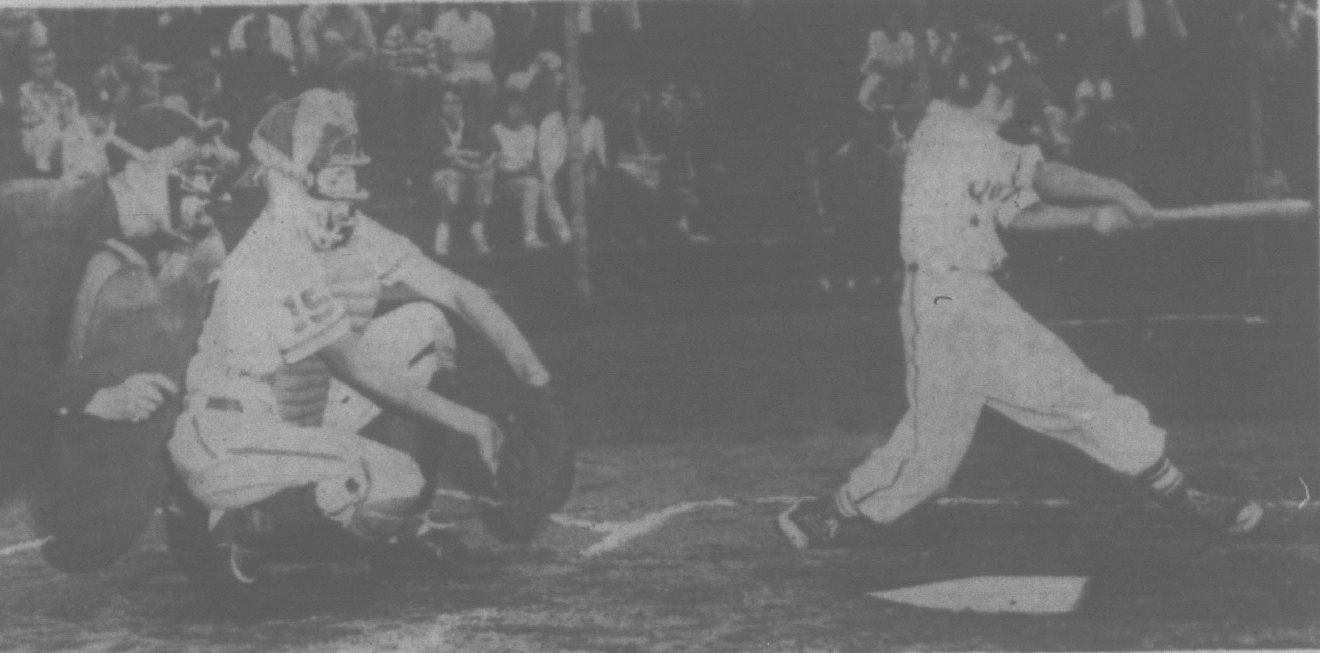

The tournament was the last one in which British professionals could win points for the Ryder Cup matches against the United States at Lytham St. Annes, England, in October. Britain's team against the U.S. now will be O'Connor, Peter Alliss, Bernard Hunt, Ken Bousfield, Neil Coles, Dai Rees, John Panton, Ralph Moffitt and Tom Halliburton.

'No Asphalt Acres' For Big Development

TORONTO, June 21 (UPI)—Real estate tycoon William Zeckendorf said today that he had "buried the automobile" in his new Flemington Park development in Toronto.

"We have confined the automobile to underground passages in Flemington Park as soon as it approaches the home or office and it is kept in underground garages," he said. "So we have eliminated the dreary pattern of asphalt jungles that disfigures modern cities."

Flemington Park, formally opened today, is a complex that ultimately will include 6,000 dwelling units in row houses, garden apartments and 20-story elevator buildings.

The commercial part of Flemington Park consists of a 117-acre "radio-TV" city and an "office campus," which will be occupied by the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., the Ontario Hospital Association, the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of Canada, and several industrial firms.

A school, a golf course, tennis courts and a swimming pool already have been completed in the project.

In house or garden, on porch or patio—just touch the handy push button and get rid of gnats, mosquitoes, moths or plant pests. Pleasant scent. Contains no DDT. Large economy size.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Wage War on Couch Grass But Watch Those Poisons

By JACK BEASTALL

One of the plants used by nature to cover bare ground and keep it from being baked, blown, and eroded, has several common names of which the local one seems to be couchgrass, pronounced cooch or couch. In the United States it is more often referred to as quackgrass, while the English gardener calls it scutchgrass, or twitch; but gardeners everywhere consider it a pest.

However, couchgrass is by no means the worst of our native ground covers, for it is much easier to control than convolvulus or thistles.

Left to its own devices, couchgrass prefers to keep its roots in the top three inches of soil, going deeper only when turned under by man. In new soil it can be controlled by plowing three to four inches deep, removing the sod and stacking it with layers of fresh manure. In two years it will have decomposed and be ready to return to the garden, or used as potting soil in the greenhouse.

Difficulties begin when the soil has been turned deeply and the roots buried, for some of these deep roots will persist for years.

TOXIC TO MOST

Gardeners who are not adverse to using chemicals on the soil and have sufficient ground not to do damage to neighboring property, can kill out couchgrass with dalapon. This chemical (2,2-dichloropropionic acid) is available under trade names. It is toxic to most grasses, including the lawn.

The extent of damage it will do to broadleaf plants depends on the amount of spray which reaches the foliage or the amount of acid picked up from the soil moisture by the roots.

The damage can be kept to a minimum if the greatest of care is used in protecting plants (and lawns!) from spray drift, and by allowing as little as possible of the liquid to reach the soil.

Very often these precautions result in a poorer kill. When the grass and the soil are thoroughly wetted a double killing action results, first through the foliage and later through the roots.

The sprayed area should be dug, rotary-tilled, or plowed, 10 to 14 days after the spray has been applied and the soil (after regular cultivation) is considered ready for the planting of some crops in five to six weeks, although a lot depends on the moisture in the soil and whether the acid has leached beyond the reach of crop roots.

Since extensive damage can be caused when any hormone sprays are used in built-up areas, it is worth considering other means of eradication, especially when only a small area like a city lot is involved.

NOT IN SPRING

The gardener's thoughts usually turn to couchgrass control in spring when the annual urge to give nature a hand is at its peak.

This is not the best time by any means, because the roots cling to the wet soil and break roots free and, if the back flap of the tiller is left open, roots are thrown out with the soil and can be raked from the surface.

RESORT TO FORK

Weekly cultivation, as late into the fall as the ground can be worked, will continue to bring out pieces of root. Every piece possible should be taken from the ground.

When deep cultivation becomes difficult after the fall rains have penetrated a few inches into the soil, it is best to cease cultivating and resort to the spading fork.

By this time most of the large roots should be out of the soil, although small pieces may still be underneath and in the moist, warm conditions their presence will soon be revealed by a green blade.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Bulbs of Liliun candidum (Madonna-lily) should be planted this month. They are the first to flower next spring and need to make early growth before cold weather. Plant shallow. Try to get some of the improved strains.

Disbud dahlias wanted for flower show purposes. Remove faded flowers before petals drop.

A sand base in a covered coldframe can be used for rooting the following cuttings: yellow alyssum, Iberis (candy tuft), mauve aubrieta, cistus (broom), genista (also broom), cistus (rock-rose), cotoneaster, helianthemum (sun-rose), lavender. Spray the cuttings frequently with water while weather is warm, keep shaded, and closed except for brief period of ventilating during day. By fall the cover may be off for all, except severe cold or excessive rain.

Pick the early apples, do not allow them to drop and become bruised.

Cut out raspberry canes which have fruited. Remove just below soil level.

Sowings of spring greens such as Flowers of Spring cabbage, green sprouting broccol can still be made, and carried over in coldframe or put out under cloches. In sheltered areas they may go into open garden.

Fever Haven

Add areas boasting of the relief hay fever sufferers can find: Nova Scotia. The Canadian province boasts at least 14 areas rated as "good" or "excellent" in a report on Canada's hay fever havens from the nation's minister of northern affairs and national resources.

Some Signs Of Stirring In Limp TV

By DICK KLEINER (NEA)

There are signs of stirring in the lethargic limp that is television today. Perhaps under the prodigious of FCC Chairman Newton Minow and perhaps for other reasons, there are some indications that the worst is over. Next fall, there will be a few improvements; more will come later in the season and, by the fall of 1962, we definitely should be on the way back.

One of this fall's major hopes is CBS' "The Defenders." It is a major hope because it is the product of two creative men and because it will be made in New York.

The Defenders comes from a 1957 two-part studio One show by Richard Fleiss. It was called "The Defenders" then, when it starred Ralph Bellamy, but an "s" was added to the title for some reason.

Rose and his partner, Herb Brothman, who has a long record as one of TV's finest producers (Shogun, One, Playhouse 90, etc.), are trying to forge a TV series which will be exciting and, at the same time, artistically acceptable.

E. G. Marshall and Robert Reed are featured as a father-and-son legal team. Don't for a moment confuse this with such a momentous conflict with such a momentous conflict with such a momentous conflict.

There are other signs of better things ahead on the video horizon. CBS is considering a one-hour weekly drama series, such as those great programs of the past, for the fall of '62. NBC will offer some live drama this season, done by the brilliant Fred Coe, under the title "Theatre '61" with the expectation that the title will be updated, after New Year's Day. Steve Allen is coming back, live, and, among the three networks, CBS' "Frontier Circus" is the sole new Western.

Durante Show Wednesday Hope, Moore Join Veteran Comedian At 10 p.m. on 5

'Campus in Clouds' 10 P.M. Monday; 'Potlatch' on CHEK 11.25 P.M. Monday

Three programs next week should be of special interest to many.

First takes place Monday night at 10 when Channel 6 will present an hour-long, live, one-act play, "Potlatch," by the late, famous Canadian actor, Philip Gagliardi. The play, which is a comedy, is set in the 1920s and is about a group of men who are trying to make a living in the Yukon.

Those who enjoy musical variety will be interested in the new show, "Campus in Clouds," which will be presented on Monday night at 10. The show is a musical comedy and is set in a college.

Also of interest, because it is both local and live, is "The Defenders," which will be presented on Monday night at 11.25. The show is a legal drama and is set in New York.

Among those on hand will be E. G. Marshall and Robert Reed, who are featured in "The Defenders."

Captain in the Clouds

ON NEW SHOW MONDAY: When CHEK-TV presents a new hour-long show entitled "Potlatch," Monday night at 10, Philip Gagliardi, minister of the Yukon, will be the principal guest. He will be joined by other guests, including G. E. Mortimer, Buddy Dwyer, and his wife, Chuck Dwyer.

MONTE ROBERTS

This is the time of year when My Favorite Wife is apt to pack up and leave town.

Because she is in grave danger of being exposed to a mess of steamed clams.

This is not due, actually, to the season of the year; it is due to the fact our friend Lou is in town.

Our friend Lou is a type who dearly loves to participate in all piscatorial pastimes, down to and including the pursuit of the panting clam.

I can only explain this strange behavior by stating he is (a) in the army and (b) in Edmonton, except for the time he escapes each year to return to these parts.

And as soon as he scents tidal waters, he gallops to the seashore, pall in hand, ordering the tide to about-face so he can get with it. (Otherwise known as dig me, boy.)

Usually his endeavors are too, too, successful, and the last time he was here, I was presented with a bucket of clams calculated to care for the chowder needs of the Edmonton garrison.

Which would have been fine, had not MPW removed the lid from the bucket while the clams were having their pre-steam last meal, thus causing her to kick the bucket. (Literally, not figuratively. I am happy to say.)

Now Lou is in these parts again, steam in eye, and bucket in hand.

I can see no hope for continued domestic bliss in our house, unless our friend from Edmonton becomes exposed to a certain waterfront character who was approached the other day by a visitor from—let's say Texas, because that covers a lot of ground.

The visitor ups to this waterfront denizen, and he says: "I'm a stranger here, and I've been told you can capture clams right out of the water."

"Could be," says the waterfront character.

"How do I go about capturing these clams?" asks the visitor.

"You get a clam gun?"

"Well, no."

"Got to have a clam gun."

"Could I rent one?"

"Nope. Have to buy one."

"Where can I buy one?"

The waterfront character reeled off the names of a half-dozen sporting goods stores.

"They cost much?"

"Nope. Unless you want a silver-mounted, double-barreled model, made to measure. Of course, double-barrel is better, in case you miss first time."

"Maybe I better get a double-barrel."

"Yes," says the waterfront character. "Say, you got a licence to capture clams?"

"Gee, no."

"You ever captured clams before?"

"Of course not."

"Then you'll have to get a learner's licence first, and if you can pass your test."

"How long will that take?"

"Depends. Three, maybe four days."

"Ah, shucks. I have to catch the ferry in an hour."

"Too bad."

Do you think, if our friend from Edmonton met this waterfront character...

LOOK OUT, DEAR, DON'T TAKE THE LID OFF THAT BUCKET.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

City playground tennis is booming but instructors are running out of space.

The situation, according to playground superintendent Gordon Hartley, is becoming desperate.

"There are literally hundreds and hundreds of children anxious for tennis instruction in the parks," he said; "and we can't provide it due to a lack of public courts."

Hartley spoke at the windup of the city tournament, which attracted 94 entries in four divisions. Winners were Linda Weicker, Barbara Maysmith, John Maysmith and Dave McNeill.

Charged with breaking and entering with intent to commit an offence, Robert William Woodford of Victoria, was remanded by Magistrate J. A. Byers in city police court today until Monday for plea.

Harvey Moran, also of Victoria, charged with unlawful possession of transmitter radio, was also remanded until Monday without plea.

The RCAF bombardier Esquimalt—but not Victoria—with leaflets this morning, advertising Air Force Day at Comox Aug. 13.

An expedition aircraft was to drop the leaflets on numerous island communities today. But Victoria was not on the list since city council did not vote to allow the drop.

Pleading guilty to careless driving, Frank Hugh Humphrey, 3771 Saanich Road, was fined $35 in Saanich police court today.

Final Rites Set Monday For Thompson

Funeral for Jack Thompson, 35, 3888 Persimmon Drive, who was killed in a freak boating accident at Elk Lake Thursday, will be held at 1:30 Monday at McCall's.

Thompson, a former member of the Victoria Shamrocks senior lacrosse club, was killed when run over by his own outboard motor boat in a water-skiing accident.

Deputy coroner H. E. Alder announced that there would be no inquest into the death. He will conduct an inquiry.

Pallbearers will be George Etherington, Jack Thomas, Earl Darling, Bud French, Bob Monaghan and Doug Campbell. Members of the Shamrocks will be present in a body.

Thompson is survived by his widow, Doreen; a daughter, Margot, 4; a son, David, 18 months; his mother, Mrs. Mary Thompson, of 124 Beachwood, and three brothers, Stan of Victoria, Alan of Haney and Robert of Seattle.

Private planes from throughout the northwest will drop in at Patricia Bay airport Sunday between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. as Victoria Flying Services stages its second annual fly-in.

Breakfast for the visiting flyers will be served until noon. The public will be offered a chance to go on short hops over Saanich Peninsula.

A total of 302 guests were registered in the Empress Hotel Friday night, setting a postwar record.

Previous high was about 300 recorded in 1936.

A figure of more than 700 is quite normal for this time of year but our new motor lodge operation has contributed the extra," manager Cyril Chapman said today.

Next regular meeting of Esquimalt council will be held in the municipal hall, Esquimalt Road, Monday evening at 7:30 p.m.

Kenneth R. Ebbs-Canavan was fined $20 in Oak Bay court when he pleaded guilty to being a minor in possession of liquor on Friday. He was found to have beer in his car upon being checked.

ANY RESPONSES TO OUR AD-YET? CHARLIE BROWN?

NO, I HAVEN'T HEARD A THING.

WELL, IT'S A LITTLE EARLY YET. I'M SURE SOMEBODY WILL OFFER YOU A JOB AS MANAGER, THOUGH.

I MEAN, THERE MUST BE A TEAM SOMEPLACE THAT IS SO DEEP IN LAST PLACE, AND IS SO PANIC-STRICKEN THAT IT'S WILLING TO TRY ANYTHING!

I DIDN'T PUT THAT VERY WELL, DID I?

NO, YOU DIDN'T!

It made for exciting flying, to say the least.

The event was recalled to-day when Rideout, of Victoria and Vancouver, arranged for presentation to the provincial archives of a pictorial document commemorating the historic flight.

The trip to Seattle took all day, counting delays.

"We set out at about 10 a.m. from Victoria," recalled Rideout, "but near Port Townsend we ran into a headwind so we had to set down on Whidbey Island to avoid stalling. We landed there at about 11:15."

FARMER JOLTED

"We came down in a pea field and was the farmer ever surprised. It was the first plane he'd never seen."

"Along about 5 o'clock the wind died and we took off. Fifty minutes later we landed in Jefferson Park Golf Course in Seattle."

He laughed. "There was a big white 'T' on the course for us to land on, but I missed it and the tail of the plane slewed around and dug a furrow on one of the greens. They weren't happy."

But, happy or not, the flight was then history.

It was the first airplane flight between Canada and the U.S. west of Toronto, and it was also the first airmail flight in the region, since Rideout carried letters on board.

Two weeks later Eddie Hubbard of Seattle implemented a regular mail service by seaplane between the two cities. He landed in Cadboro Bay.

Rideout, who spent his younger years in Victoria but now lives in Vancouver, was the main participant in another historic "first" on June 1, 1919, when he made the first commercial flight in Canada, dropping leaflets advertising soap from Victoria skies.

The two events formed milestones in a flying career that carried Rideout to distant places about the globe.

Shot down twice in First World War when he started flying at the age of 18, he ended the conflict with five enemy planes to his credit. Following the war he flew in Sumatra, China and the Galapagos Islands, to name a few of the spots he has seen from the air. He piloted Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews of Rochester, N.Y., to the Gobi Desert in 1928, when Dr. Andrews found his famous fossilized dinosaur eggs.

In Victoria Rideout operated out of Willows race track, and it was there that his most exciting experience occurred.

"We were stunting," he remembers, "taking folks up and giving them a few loops-the-loops and spins. I took this one fellow up and wanted to really give him something to remember, so I started a loop."

"Only in the excitement I'd forgotten to do up my safety belt. We were upside down and I came right out of my seat. I would have fallen except for the fact that the control stick had a knob on it that I managed to cling against."

"I was pretty shaken," he said.

What poor duty cannot do. Noble respect takes it in might.

The CCF might have added the last two words of Shakespeare's sentence: "Not Merit."

They complained Mr. Bennett had gone Socialist for the wrong reason—to do Ottawa in the eye.

There's no doubt the fate of the Columbia River plan is now very uncertain. Whatever happens B.C. will get a Peace hydro development; if Ottawa plays ball and allows power exports, then it will get both developments.

The legislative wag, North Vancouver Liberal J. Gordon Gibson played a clever gag on an Empress Hotel maid the day after the takeover was accomplished.

She asked him what the army and the guns were doing on the lawn of the Legislative Buildings.

"Mr. Bennett took over the B.C. Electric yesterday; he's taking over the CCF today," said he solemnly.

(Actually they were there to fire a 21-gun salute for the Queen Mother's birthday.)

The session was a good show for the tourists. It attracted good crowds at all times in the public galleries.

The 52 MLAs didn't do too badly, either, despite the fact that only six government members spoke at all from Tuesday to Thursday. They were the Premier, Attorney-General Robert Bonner, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston, Herbert Bruch, Dan Campbell and John Tisdalle.

Nearly all the CCF and all the Liberals had a go, though.

But everybody earned at least $400 for their trouble: $350 indemnity, $15 a day living allowance, plus travel expenses.

Probably the man who came off best of all was Premier Bennett.

The public power takeover seems to be popular, and Mr. Bennett always has his eye on the next election.

The wraithlike, bent old lady solemnly marched into Premier Bennett's office Friday afternoon with an envelope.

"Be sure to give this to Mr. Bennett immediately," she told his secretary. She added in a lower, confidential tone, "It's very important."

Cartoonist His Own Model

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

One way to draw a cartoon is to caricature yourself.

That is the recipe followed by Bob Barnes in the creation of his daily husband-and-wife cartoon "The Better Half," published in The Victoria Times and some 200 other newspapers in Canada, the United States and Europe.

Bob and his wife, Ruth, regard themselves as a typical middle-class couple in the 40-plus group—and it is the little everyday absurdities in their domestic lives that provide the material for "The Better Half."

For instance, a crescendo of month-end bills prompted Bob to draw his little man sitting at a table slitting envelopes and saying to his wife:

"Well, we're at the bridge we were going to cross when we came to it!" (Times Aug. 2.)

In Victoria today Bob and Ruth met a local housewife who said: "You must have peeped into my bedroom."

And that is an average reaction. People enjoy "The Better Half" because they see in it a reflection of themselves.

Dark, good-humored Bob Barnes has been a cartoonist for more than 20 years. His first married-couple drawings appeared in the Saturday Evening Post more than 20 years ago but without the title. They have been syndicated as "The Better Half" since 1945.

From their home at Carmel, California, Bob and Ruth are now on a motoring tour of the Pacific Coast and everywhere they go people ask them:

"How do you become a cartoonist?"

Bob says the chief requirements are an understanding of human nature, a sense of humor and topicality, plus power of observation and the ability to draw.

LITTLE TRAINING

"Formal art training can be very helpful," he said, "but in my case this was limited to high school and spare-time art classes."

"Most cartoonists begin by working for the smaller magazines, but they must study and practise all the time. There is no easy road to recognition and it usually takes years."

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"If you grew a beard people would think your head was on upside down."

Storm Whips City, Aids Northern Area

A storm which gave Victoria winds in excess of 40 miles per hour early this morning went to the rescue of a threatened sawmill community in the fire-ravaged Prince George district.

A 3,500-blaze on Taber Mountain, 15 miles southeast of Prince George, was within four miles of Six Mile Lake summer resort when the storm, blowing winds of 65 miles per hour, fanned the fire in the opposite direction.

The wind change helped suppression crews hold fire guards protecting the Schlitt Brothers sawmill, but it was reported to have caused outbreaks along other portions of the fire's broad front.

The crew—part of a ground party fighting a 500-acre blaze along the Dean Channel near Prince Rupert late Thursday—was cut off from the main party by wind-driven flames.

The party took refuge on a high, sparsely-wooded knoll but the fire, for some reason, never went to the crest of the hill.

Visiting Artists In Open Air Show

Two visiting artists will add a new touch to the painting exhibition on the Causeway Sunday.

Lytle Smith of Chicago and Mrs. Dorothy Boyd of New Zealand will give a one-day display, starting at 11 a.m. and continuing through the afternoon.

Interest has been shown by a number of favorable telephone calls today, the president said.

"I feel quite optimistic. I think people didn't know that the matching government fund could not be used for operation, just for building."

Ald. Edgewood suggested donors might send money to City Hall, where receipts might be issued.

FROM THE LEGISLATURE

Summer Fantasy Brief, Bright

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

The midsummer night's dream is over and B.C. politics can go back to sleep for the rest of the year.

And what a dream it was; though for some it had nightmarish aspects.

Premier Bennett played Purk to the hilt, aided by his other Social Credit good fairies, Peaseblossom, Cobweb and Mustard Seed, in one of the most dramatic sessions ever held in the B.C. Legislature.

Since they gave a stirring performance as the honest workmen, the CCF must be cast in the roles of Quince and Bottom and Co.

Social Credit became the good fairy when it transferred a major CCF policy into a government takeover of B.C. Electric and the Peace River power project.

It was something the CCF had honestly worked for through all its years in existence.

In the 14½ hours of actual debate over three days this week the "Secrets" swirled.

Quote, Thebes in Shakespeare's version of the dream:

"What poor duty cannot do. Noble respect takes it in might."

The CCF might have added the last two words of Shakespeare's sentence: "Not Merit."

They complained Mr. Bennett had gone Socialist for the wrong reason—to do Ottawa in the eye.

In Victoria today Bob and Ruth met a local housewife who said: "You must have peeped into my bedroom."

And that is an average reaction. People enjoy "The Better Half" because they see in it a reflection of themselves.

Dark, good-humored Bob Barnes has been a cartoonist for more than 20 years. His first married-couple drawings appeared in the Saturday Evening Post more than 20 years ago but without the title. They have been syndicated as "The Better Half" since 1945.

From their home at Carmel, California, Bob and Ruth are now on a motoring tour of the Pacific Coast and everywhere they go people ask them:

"How do you become a cartoonist?"

Bob says the chief requirements are an understanding of human nature, a sense of humor and topicality, plus power of observation and the ability to draw.

LITTLE TRAINING

"Formal art training can be very helpful," he said, "but in my case this was limited to high school and spare-time art classes."

"Most cartoonists begin by working for the smaller magazines, but they must study and practise all the time. There is no easy road to recognition and it usually takes years."

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"If you grew a beard people would think your head was on upside down."

Storm Whips City, Aids Northern Area

A storm which gave Victoria winds in excess of 40 miles per hour early this morning went to the rescue of a threatened sawmill community in the fire-ravaged Prince George district.

A 3,500-blaze on Taber Mountain, 15 miles southeast of Prince George, was within four miles of Six Mile Lake summer resort when the storm, blowing winds of 65 miles per hour, fanned the fire in the opposite direction.

The wind change helped suppression crews hold fire guards protecting the Schlitt Brothers sawmill, but it was reported to have caused outbreaks along other portions of the fire's broad front.

The crew—part of a ground party fighting a 500-acre blaze along the Dean Channel near Prince Rupert late Thursday—was cut off from the main party by wind-driven flames.

The party took refuge on a high, sparsely-wooded knoll but the fire, for some reason, never went to the crest of the hill.

Visiting Artists In Open Air Show

Two visiting artists will add a new touch to the painting exhibition on the Causeway Sunday.

Lytle Smith of Chicago and Mrs. Dorothy Boyd of New Zealand will give a one-day display, starting at 11 a.m. and continuing through the afternoon.

Interest has been shown by a number of favorable telephone calls today, the president said.

"I feel quite optimistic. I think people didn't know that the matching government fund could not be used for operation, just for building."

Ald. Edgewood suggested donors might send money to City Hall, where receipts might be issued.

Summer Fantasy Brief, Bright

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

The midsummer night's dream is over and B.C. politics can go back to sleep for the rest of the year.

And what a dream it was; though for some it had nightmarish aspects.

Premier Bennett played Purk to the hilt, aided by his other Social Credit good fairies, Peaseblossom, Cobweb and Mustard Seed, in one of the most dramatic sessions ever held in the B.C. Legislature.

Since they gave a stirring performance as the honest workmen, the CCF must be cast in the roles of Quince and Bottom and Co.

Social Credit became the good fairy when it transferred a major CCF policy into a government takeover of B.C. Electric and the Peace River power project.

It was something the CCF had honestly worked for through all its years in existence.

In the 14½ hours of actual debate over three days this week the "Secrets" swirled.

Quote, Thebes in Shakespeare's version of the dream:

"What poor duty cannot do. Noble respect takes it in might."

The CCF might have added the last two words of Shakespeare's sentence: "Not Merit."

They complained Mr. Bennett had gone Socialist for the wrong reason—to do Ottawa in the eye.

There's no doubt the fate of the Columbia River plan is now very uncertain. Whatever happens B.C. will get a Peace hydro development; if Ottawa plays ball and allows power exports, then it will get both developments.

The legislative wag, North Vancouver Liberal J. Gordon Gibson played a clever gag on an Empress Hotel maid the day after the takeover was accomplished.

She asked him what the army and the guns were doing on the lawn of the Legislative Buildings.

"Mr. Bennett took over the B.C. Electric yesterday; he's taking over the CCF today," said he solemnly.

(Actually they were there to fire a 21-gun salute for the Queen Mother's birthday.)

The session was a good show for the tourists. It attracted good crowds at all times in the public galleries.

The 52 MLAs didn't do too badly, either, despite the fact that only six government members spoke at all from Tuesday to Thursday. They were the Premier, Attorney-General Robert Bonner, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston, Herbert Bruch, Dan Campbell and John Tisdalle.

Nearly all the CCF and all the Liberals had a go, though.

But everybody earned at least $400 for their trouble: $350 indemnity, $15 a day living allowance, plus travel expenses.

Probably the man who came off best of all was Premier Bennett.

The public power takeover seems to be popular, and Mr. Bennett always has his eye on the next election.

The wraithlike, bent old lady solemnly marched into Premier Bennett's office Friday afternoon with an envelope.

"Be sure to give this

Barriers in Berlin Lifted by Religion

Berlin, divided by military barriers and warring ideologies, found a temporary union lately during the week of an Evangelical church assembly held in the Olympia Stadium that attracted nearly 50,000 delegates from both sides of the Iron Curtain.

The subject was dealt with in a recent issue of the English language Bulletin, published by the German federal government information office.

Politics were not an issue of the assembly, which concerned itself with the religious task of present-day Christians, but at the closing rally Dr. Kurt Scharf, chairman of the council of the German Evangelical church, said:

"The mission with which our Lord has charged Christians in Germany in the political situation of 1961 is this:

"Return to your home, to your neighbors, and be a true Christian to them."

"Christians should meet non-Christians in a spirit of love, and should be prepared to suffer. But they should also be ready to assist those who are suffering or are threatened, against those who threaten them with violence."

Top Gladiolus Prizes Awarded

Winner of the grand champion award this year in the 15th annual gladiolus show at Christ Church Cathedral Memorial Hall was Mrs. Anne Steers.

Exhibit of Mrs. Winnifred Turner was named reserve champion and also won the award for the best women's spike.

Grand aggregate award was won by Mrs. Steers; best seedling was won by Milton Jack; best novice spikes, Mrs. W. H. Broadbeer; best recent introduction, Mrs. Doris Boshier.

Other winners were Ferncliffe Gardens, best six spikes; Mrs. Steers, best three spikes; Robert Pederson, best two spikes.

PREACHER during the month of August in Centennial United Church will be the Reverend Pieter de Jong, of St. Andrew's College, Saskatoon. A graduate of Amsterdam and Utrecht Universities, Rev. de Jong occupies the chair of Systematic Theology and Christian Ethics in the United Church College in Saskatoon.

CANADA HOME FOR FUGITIVE CUBAN NUNS

OTTAWA (CP) — A group of 17 Roman Catholic nuns, many of them aged and sick, arrived early today from Cuba and said they planned to stay in Canada indefinitely.

The only English-speaking member of the group said their convent in Cuba had been occupied recently by militia on the grounds of searching for incriminating evidence. Some of the convent's holdings had been confiscated.

Protests By India

NEW DELHI (AP) — India has lodged "several protests" in recent months against persistent violations of her territory by Tibet-based Communist Chinese planes, authoritative sources here report. Peking has denied the charges.

PRIEST TRANSLATES INTO ESKIMO

Missal Recited in Native Tongue

URANIUM CITY, Sask. (CP) — "Pray me, Father, for I have performed an evil action . . ."

The Eskimo fell to his knees in confession and, in his own tongue, began the words first set down by Rev. Jean L'Heigouach.

Father L'Heigouach is the Oblate missionary who spent three years translating the Roman Catholic Sunday missal into Eskimo. He used the opening words from the sacrament of confession as an example of the difficulty he faced.

"The original words are 'Bless me, father, for I have sinned,' but the Eskimo has no word for bless and no word for sin. We used pray for bless and had to combine the Eskimo words for evil and action to denote sin."

The result was 406 pages of hymns and prayers entitled Angadjujika, which translates literally as My Means of Praying. It is used throughout the western Arctic and at many points in the East.

The book was illustrated by Rev. Jean Colas, now at Inuvik, N.W.T., who framed each picture with the crosses and swirls that Eskimos use to decorate the hem of their garments.

A third priest, Rev. Maurice Matayer, now at Coppermine, N.W.T., collaborated on the editorial work.

"It took two years to put together,"

REV. JEAN L'HEIGOUACH . . . translates missal

Father L'Heigouach says, "It took another year to correct. There was an average of 42 errors to each page and everything had to be done by mail."

The mail came twice a month by boat to Akilavik where most of the work was done.

"There was no mail at all for a month each spring and fall."

Today, Father L'Heigouach is in charge of the Church of Santa Barbara, named for the patron saint of miners, and for a second time finds himself far from the people he knows best and loves.

The first time came more than 25 years ago when he left France to go to the Arctic as a 25-year-old missionary. The name L'Heigouach was originally Gaelic but today the family lives on the Atlantic coast near the fishing village of Douarnenez.

The second move came about six years ago, when he was moved to this uranium-mining town just across the Saskatchewan border from the Northwest Territories.

And he wants to go home—not to France, but to Paulatuk Mission, Stanton, Tuktoyaktuk and the other places he became a part of inside the Arctic Circle.

"I am still hoping to go back, but as the years go by the chances are less and less," he says.

"They do not usually send an old man up there."

NEWS OF CITY CHURCHES

Canon-Lecturer to Preach

MOST REV. W. BARFOOT . . . mind still busy

Preacher at Christ Church Cathedral on Sunday-morning will be the Rev. Hilary Butler, who is to be installed as a canon-lecturer by Archbishop H. E. Sexton during the course of the service.

Appointed under the terms of the will of the late Lt.-Col. John Albert Hall, Mr. Butler will work in the diocese of British Columbia on a program to attempt to reconcile science and religion in the minds of Christians.

A graduate of Cambridge, Mr. Butler was a chaplain in the Royal Air Force during the Second World War, and rector of Crawley in England before coming to Canada two years ago.

Until his arrival in Victoria, Mr. Butler was rector of the church of St. Edward the Confessor in Oliver, in the diocese of Kootenay.

Mrs. Norma Mickelson of Victoria will be the speaker at the Victoria Truth Centre on Sunday.

In the morning she will speak on "The Other Way Around," and in the evening on "The Many Worlds."

Spiritual foundation of divine healing will be emphasized at Christian Science services on Sunday.

Included in the lesson-sermon is the account in the gospel of Matthew concerning the healing of the man with the withered hand, and citations will be read from the works of Mary Baker Eddy.

The Right Rev. Henry D. Martin will be the preacher at St. John's Anglican Church on Sunday morning. In the evening, Rev. Colin Campbell will preach.

Summer family service is at 9 on Sunday morning.

Dr. Martin L. Gostin, of Plymouth Congregational Church in Seattle, will be the guest preacher at both services in First United Church on Sunday.

Combined evening services during July and August, which were held in Metropolitan United Church during July, will be held in First United Church during August.

He was elected to the dual role of metropolitan of the ecclesiastical province of Rupert's Land — comprising the three prairie provinces, the Northwest Territories and parts of northwestern Ontario and Northern Quebec — and archbishop of the diocese of Rupert's Land, involving Winnipeg and the surrounding area, in 1953. He retired from this post last Dec. 31 for the same health reason.

Archbishop Barfoot was succeeded by Most Rev. Howard H. Clark, who traced his steps as bishop of Edmonton, primate and archbishop and metropolitan of Rupert's Land.

During his terms in the taxing administrative position Dr. Barfoot says he "got out of touch with the latest developments in philosophy and new ideas in theology."

"Now I have lots of time to read and I plan to get up to date. I'm especially interested in getting acquainted with the moderns—such as the existentialists."

"I hope eventually to find a particular aspect of these fields to concentrate on. I'd like to do some writing, but I'm not close enough to the picture yet to do anything significant."

In the meantime, he expects to assist occasionally with pastoral work in his former diocese, giving others the benefit of his experience of 38 years in the church.

Women

Victoria Daily Times SATURDAY, AUG. 5, 1961 17

Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Schroeder of Pullman, Wash., and their two children, Thad, 11, and eight-year-old Connie, are thoroughly enjoying their stay in Victoria. Dr. Schroeder is on the staff of the Washington State University and is spending the summer lecturing on geography at Victoria College. Every weekend sees the Schroeders heading for up-Island beauty spots, determined to take every opportunity of exploring Long Beach, Port Renfrew and other places of interest.

PAT DUFOUR
Women's Dept.

One of the youngest lecturers at this summer's session at the college is Mr. Hugh Jones who came all the way from England to lecture on geography of settlement. Prior to coming to Canada, Mr. Jones was at Leicester University and, on returning this fall, will join the faculty of the University of Dundee. Seen with him on the college's grounds is Miss Phyllis Bowers who is lecturing on primary teaching methods at the summer session. Miss Bowers is a staff member of Macdonald College, education school of McGill University in Montreal.

Columbus, Ohio, is the home of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Seawall who are spending the summer months at 1725 Oak Bay Avenue while Dr. Seawall lectures on geography. At the session's close, the Seawalls will return to Ohio where Dr. Seawall is on the staff of the Ohio State University.

Out-of-Town Lecturers At the College

When the summer session at Victoria College ends, Dr. and Mrs. Burton Kurth and their two youngsters, 10-month-old Richard and Elizabeth, five, will remain in Victoria. Dr. Kurth is a graduate of the University of British Columbia, doing post-graduate work at the University of California in Berkeley, Calif. Until his arrival in Victoria this summer, Dr. Kurth was on the staff of the University of Southern California but has now accepted a position on the permanent staff of Victoria College.

Summertime, for most students, is a time for relaxing but for those attending the summer session at Victoria College—close to 900—these are busy days. Session started July 3rd and is due to end on August 18th. A total of 28 out-of-town lecturers, many of them accompanied by their families, have spent these weeks here. During their leisure time, the mentors and their families keep a tight schedule, making sure that they see as much of Vancouver Island as possible during their visit. Dr. Burton Kurth, pictured above with his family, will be one of those joining the permanent teaching faculty this fall. Others are Dr. Marion Scribner and Mr. C. M. Ogelsby. Dr. Scribner was formerly on the faculty of the Saskatchewan Teachers' College in Regina, Sask., while Mr. Ogelsby is a former faculty member of the University of Washington.

When Dr. William E. Schlosser of Northridge, Calif., lectures on children's literature he talks with great authority—there are three young critics, Bert, seven; Perri, six, and five-year-old Wade, to keep him on his toes! While here, the Schlosser family and their two dachshunds, Schatz and Lana (not seen—she shuns publicity), are busy exploring highways and byways every chance they get. Mrs. Schlosser's favorite story is of the time they were on an up-Island beach and she complained to a passing "mountie" that the spot where they were appeared to be uncomfortably rocky. The helpful constable pointed out that the "rocks" were oysters and won the Schlossers' hearts when he stayed long enough to help them shell a quart for dinner! The Schlossers return to California at summer's end so that Dr. Schlosser may be in time to resume his duties at the San Fernando Valley State College.

Thoroughly enjoying their stay on the West Coast are Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Asquin and their two children, David, two, and four-year-old Cynthia. They hail from Calgary, Alta., where Mr. Asquin is with the Western Canada High School. His subject is art education.

Keep Colored Slides Neat In Notched Plastic Tray

By PENNY SAVER

If your shutter has been clicking wildly this summer, you will be expecting reams and reams of colored slides to arrive from processing any time now. Don't get caught with a heap of undigested photographs. Organize them and file in a plastic slide tray that Penny found.

At 50 cents each, this tray is one of the best bargains in town, for it is complete with a plastic cover that usually sells separately for 45 cents.

The tray will hold 40 slides, with a space between each one to prevent scraping. Tray can be used with automatic projectors. To go with trays is a sturdy, plastic-coated carrying case in brown and white. Case will fit 12 trays of slides, and is priced at $2.95.

"Proved to be the best," says shop owner about a 35-millimeter slide viewer that is held to the eye. A series of small mirrors act to give the three-dimensional effect offered by a large screen. Viewer is selling for $2.95.

If black and white is your photographic medium, you will be interested in a storage album for negatives. Black cover has a snap tab to keep film from slipping out, and filing "envelopes" inside are of a translucent paper. There is an index in front of the book for listing your pictures. A book for 35-mm. negatives (it will hold 400) costs $1.95. Smaller cases are available for other film sizes, at $1.25.

If you would like to know the name of this shop, give Penny a ring at EV 2-3131.

THE BETTER HALF

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Teen Age Is When You Determine Your Future

There are certain times at which it is especially important to stop and take stock of yourself. I mentioned one the other day—middle age. It is important to do so at teen age, too.

Girls between the ages of 12 and 18 are not worried about growing older, but it is essential that they think about how they are growing older. This is the time to decide what kind of a woman you want to be. It is the time when your posture is susceptible to improvement, your attitudes are not "set" and your spine is still flexible. It is easier to avoid defects now than it will be to correct them later on.

The way you think, your posture, the way you care for your hair and skin and health, will determine whether or not you become the woman you wish to be or someone you never meant to be at all. You have been studying and playing so hard and growing so fast that you have not had time to stop and look your self over to see just where you are headed. This is the time to do it! You have all of the materials for lovely womanhood.

Girls today have a better chance to be attractive than their mothers did. Mostly they are more outdoors and sports minded and their mothers know much more about nutrition than their grandmothers did. More is known about skin care and permanent hair.

Generally speaking I think girls in this age group have more poise than their mothers did because they are exposed to more group activity and have more contact with their elders. I am sure that, because of this, you have already noted that popularity depends on thoughtfulness, and a friendly attitude as well as on being a good dancer and fun to be with.

Take stock not only of your physical defects and blessings but also of those which make up your personality.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Popularity" which was planned especially for young women your age, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 58. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this self-over-to-see-just-where-newspaper.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Norris, 135 Burnside Road West, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Ilene Loren, to Mr. Joseph J. Waldner, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Waldner of Morris, Man. The wedding will take place on Saturday, September 2, at 4 p.m., in Grace English Lutheran Church. Pastor William A. Williams will perform the ceremony. Miss Carol Oliver will be the bride's only attendant, and Mr. Eugene Sheplaw will act as best man. (Photo of Miss Norris by Filion Studio, and photo of Mr. Waldner by Huber.)

Square-Toed Shoes Now in Town

Its not "square" to point shape will be bought by fashionable but conservative women. Heels seem to be a trifle lower and stronger but also more shapely. The hour glass heel of years gone by will be worn again.

A half dozen shades of brown will lead the color parade with deep plum and blackened greens for added interest. Smooth leather leads in materials... suedes do not seem to be making a comeback.

Golden kid comes out after dark as do the satins and peau de sole. Later in the season boots will be a fashionable addition to the winter wardrobe.

For those who want to give the square toe a whirl without spending too much money, a well known local shoe repair shop will square off the toes of any shoes that you take in. I saw several pairs that had been done and the "operation" is very successful.

One buyer told me that only 15 per cent of his entire fall stock will be squared toes. Another buyer for a large store said 5 to 10 per cent seemed to him to be a fair ratio of the new squared toes.

Square toes, introduced two years ago by Roger Vivier, shoe designer at the House of Dior, are much more popular in walking and afternoon shoes, since the flattened square look demands a lowered heel.

Width of the toe varies from the "chisel" toe, less than an inch across, to the wider duck-bill toe.

In between this definitely squared look and the elongated tapered point is the crescent toe. A slender vamp with just a softly rounded tip, with its topline flattened and the sides straight down as a wall is built.

While the sharply squared toe will be bought by a few high fashion women with large shoe wardrobes, the crescent

DEAR ABBY

Dream Rival

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: If anybody asks you if she should marry a widower who was married in the same woman for 42 years, tell her not to.

I have been married six months to a widower who is wonderful to me when he is awake, but he calls me life in his sleep. I was married and widowed twice, and I never once called my present husband Wendell or Herbert.

If I can be careful, so can he. I am certainly not interested in a divorce at my age, but I would like to know how to handle this heartless old cuss.

DEAR HURT: It is not easy to forget a 42-year-old bitch, so be patient with him. Your husband isn't responsible for what he calls you in his sleep. (At least you know who his was.)

DEAR ABBY: The boy I like is 20, but my mother won't let me go out with him because I am only 15. My mother says this boy is too fast for me, and is only out for what he can get. Abby, he does have a bad reputation, but I have been out with him twice on the sly, and every time he started something I didn't like I put him in his place and he behaved okay again. I wish you could help me convince my mother that, if she lets me date him without sneaking, she won't have to worry about me. I want to be able to date him out in the open. I know I can handle him.

DEAR CENSORED: And what if you can't? Listen to your mother, Honey. Bad reputations are highly contagious. A 20-year-old man who would date a 15-year-old girl on the sly is bad news.

DEAR ABBY: I am at the end of my rope. I have earned (and am still capable of earning) top wages as a secretary. Instead of working out, I must stay home and care for my husband's elderly father.

Grandpa is 83, senile, and has no control over his kidneys. He puts things on the stove and forgets them. He smokes constantly, and I must watch him every minute to see that he doesn't set himself, or the house, on fire. The poor old man is very deaf and difficult to be with.

My husband says it is all right to leave him alone, but I know better. Grandpa has many other relatives, but they don't even bother to call up and ask how he is. Should I walk out and go to work? Or should I stay here and play nursemaid to my father-in-law?

THOROUGHLY DISGUSTED
DEAR DISGUSTED: From your letter it is apparent that Grandpa needs around-the-clock care. If you can't hire someone, place him in a good nursing home that is equipped to keep him comfortable and well cared for.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ABE: Abstinence DOES make the heart grow fonder. Have some.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to Abby in care of this paper. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send 50 cent to Abby, 205 Park Road, Burlingame, Calif.

White Maternity Top

Now Swim Ensemble

Dear Mrs. Farmer:

"Just thought you readers would like to know how I salvaged a maternity top of white pique."

I made a collar and cuffs on my white maternity jacket."

"This co-ordinated swim ensemble and it has been a real sensation. What a feeling of satisfaction, to make something out of nothing."

APRICOT CHIFFON PIE

One tablespoon unflavored gelatin, ¼ cup cold water, 2 cups chopped fresh apricots, ½ cup water, 2 egg yolks, slightly beaten; 1 cup granulated sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 2 egg whites, 2 tablespoons sugar, whipped cream for topping (optional).

Soften gelatin in ¼ cup cold water. Cook apricots in ½ cup of water until mushy, then force through sieve. Combine slightly-beaten egg yolks with the cup of sugar, salt, and lemon juice and apricot pulp and cook over low heat until thick, stirring constantly.

Add the softened gelatin and stir until dissolved; cool until it begins to set. Beat egg whites until foamy, gradually add 2 tablespoons sugar to make meringue.

Fold into apricot mixture and pour into baked pie shell, chilling until firm. If you're not counting calories, top with whipped cream.

Organza and Chantilly Lace Gown Worn by Miss Margaret MacLoud

Attendants gown in bouffant dresses of petal pink taffeta preceded Miss Margaret Teresa MacLoud down the aisle of Sacred Heart Church for her marriage this morning to Robert Joseph Paille. Pink and white theme was carried out in the floral decor of the church, which was decorated with baskets of pink and white gladioli. Parents of the young couple are Mr. and Mrs. Edward James MacLoud, Harrop Road, and Dr. and Mrs. George A. Paille, Montcalm Street, Vancouver.

Given in marriage by her father, the petite, dark-haired bride wore a bouffant gown of snowy white organza styled with a bodice of Chantilly lace forming scalloped Sabrina neckline and tiny sleeves. Floor-length skirt featured scalloped lace panels, caught at each side with an organza rose. An organza rose dusted with seed pearls held the chapel-length veil of illusion net, appliqued with dainty rosebuds at the hemline. A single white orchid surrounded by pale pink rosebuds and stephanotis made up her bouquet.

Maid of honor was Miss Nicola A. Butt of Kelowna, and bridesmaid, Miss Marcia Henly. Their gowns were designed with scooped necklines, tiny sleeves, and overskirts of misting pink chiffon printed with deep pink anemones. Crescent bouquets of white carnations centred with pink rosebuds completed their ensembles.

Tiny Patrice Paille, niece of the groom, was flowergirl in a full-skirted frock of white organza over pink taffeta, highlighted with a pink and white colonial bouquet. George T. Paille acted as best man for his brother, while Laurence Holoboff of North Surrey and John Gilliland ushered guests to pews marked with white and pink sprigs of heather. Fr. Bernard Hanley officiated at the ceremony, and M. Mackay played the organ.

The attractive garden of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Johns, Mt. Joy Avenue, was setting for a reception afterwards, when H. C. Gilliland proposed a toast to his niece. A three-tier wedding cake was cut by the newlyweds.

For motoring on a honeymoon, trip to San Francisco, Calif., the new Mrs. Paille chose a two-piece dress of pale pink shantung with matching pillbox hat, white accessories and a white orchid corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Paille plan to make their home in Mission City, where the groom is on the staff of the senior high school.

Exception to the Rule—Because of its outstanding style this striking gown of white deluxed satin was only Canadian-made gown to be included in the show of imported fashions at the garden party of the Women's Committee of the Victoria Symphony at the Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, this afternoon. Seen here being modelled by Nona Damstra, Times Fashion Editor, it featured "the new look" with its built-up bodice and trumpet effect skirt. Lavish touches of crystal and turquoise beading brought murmurs of appreciation from the many guests. Hugh Curtis, another of the models at the gala show, obviously approves of the inclusion of this Canadian gown in the European-inspired show. Fashions were from the T. Eaton Co.

Searching for the Right Man? Mrs. Berry May Be Able to Help

By PAT DUFOUR

A woman with the future of 1,000 men and women in her slim hands walked into our office this week. Willow, blue-eyed Mrs. Adrian Berry is here from Calgary with her husband and their two children, Kim, 8, and four-year-old Adrienne. Monday will find her back at her desk in the prairie city, running a matchmaking business she started early last spring.

Although her headquarters are in Calgary, Mrs. Berry receives letters from all over the North American continent. Ten of these have been from Victoria.

Since June she's handled 1,000 cases and so far has one marriage to her credit. The principals were an accountant and a store assistant.

Although Muriel Berry's own marriage was not "arranged" by such an agency, she's convinced that hers is a service to people who are shy, lonely, afraid of ridicule or "in a rut."

"Most marriages come about by accident, but these are built on a much firmer basis."

Apparently, the churches in her community are also convinced. "Both the Anglican and United Church ministers send people to me and there's a Roman Catholic priest who sends them from the tiny town of Taber."

Not all her "cases" stand a chance of finding their ideal mate. "I have a farmer, aged 76, who insists that his future wife be about 35. He wants to raise a family. Unless I can persuade him to 'up' the age limit his chances are pretty slim."

She started the agency after being approached by many of the students she taught at night school. They pointed out the difficulties involved in "meeting the right man." Her husband finally persuaded her to put her part-time matchmaking on an official basis.

Nurses and school teachers are, in her opinion, the most lonely people. "They have so few opportunities to meet people—especially if they work in a small hospital or country school."

Are initial interviews difficult? "Many of my clients are reticent and shy when they come to the office."

"They'll start off by asking, 'What if someone walks in?' When this question pops up, I drop the catch on the door and from then on things go much easier."

Some of her problems she has to refer to her lawyer. There's the case of the serviceman who "married" a girl in Korea and changed his mind when he came back.

"He argued that his wife had actually committed bigamy when she married him because at that time she was a member of an old man's harem."

Mrs. Berry averages about six interviews a day, besides answering a mound of correspondence. Her husband occasionally helps her "match up" applications, pairing off prospective mates.

Kim and Adrienne so far, are completely unaware of their mother's dual role.

"They leave for school the same time as I start for my downtown office, arriving back just a little later than I do."

Legal fees and stationery costs have kept Muriel's new business "in the red" to date.

"But," says this enthusiastic crusader, "it's worth it. There are so many lonely people that need help."

Mrs. Berry named her matchmaking agency the "Helen Elizabeth Marriage Foundation," combining the first names of her mother and mother-in-law. Says Mrs. Berry, "They both had such fantastically successful marriages. I felt that using their names would be a good omen."

Many guests have come from out of town to attend the marriage this morning of Miss Margaret Teresa MacLoud and Mr. Robert Joseph Paille. They include Dr. and Mrs. G. A. Paille, Mr. Roger Paille, Mr. Bernie McCabe and Mrs. J. J. Collins, all of Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Gilliland and Miss M. Gilliland of New Westminster; Miss Estelle Gelby of Winnipeg; Mr. and Mrs. D. Moyer with Marjorie and Gordon from Edson, Alta.; Mr. and Mrs. L. Holoboff and Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Paille with Yvonne and Patrice, all of North Surrey, and Mr. and Mrs. C. J. McPherson and Mr. and Mrs. G. Matheson of Mission.

Christening

Kristine Rose were the names given to the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas A. Wagg of Victoria at the baptismal service held recently in St. Mark's Church, Salt Spring Island. Archdeacon G. G. Holmes officiated. Godparents of the baby are Mrs. W. Eagles, Miss Beverley Candy and Mr. Eddie Jang. After the ceremony an informal tea was served at the North End Road home of the maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Smith. Guests included paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Wagg of Ganges.

In Crofton

Many visitors travelled to Crofton to attend the wedding this afternoon of Miss Marguerite Kathleen Rennie and Mr. William James Holgate. They included Mrs. P. M. Rennie, grandmother of the bride, from Kitimat; Mr. and

House Guest

Mr. Christopher Whately arrived by jet plane from Salisbury, Eng., recently to visit his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. F. Stacey, and another aunt, Miss B. Whately. Mr. Whately will be in Victoria for a month as the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Stacey in their home on Glasgow Avenue.

Buffet Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Denis Humphries will entertain about 40 guests at a buffet dinner in their home on Norfolk Road on Sunday evening following the close of the British Columbia Summer Invitational skating championships. Guests will be the parents of out-of-town skaters, officials and the executive of the Victoria Figure Skating Club.

Vitamins Lost

Would loss of vitamins in fruit and vegetable juices be increased by opened can storage? Vitamin C is particularly susceptible to destruction in the presence of oxygen, and the loss of this vitamin would be increased when held in an open can, even in a refrigerator.

WI Members Cross Border For Meet With Americans

Under the direction of Mrs. A. Ingram, 175 members of the South Vancouver Island Women's Institutes travelled to Port Angeles this week for the annual hands across the border picnic. Their hostesses were the 100 members of the Chatham County Homemakers Clubs.

Representatives of the American group, Mrs. M. Reid, president, and Miss R. Knutson, extension officer, met the Canadians at the boat.

During the afternoon the ladies were treated to a program of Hawaiian and acrobatic dancing, monologues, pantomimes, and music by the Chatham County Kitchen Band.

At next year's picnic, the seventh of its kind, members of the South Vancouver Island groups will be hostesses to the Chatham County ladies.

Music Drove Us Into Street

By DOUG FORRESTER

In an earlier letter I described our apartment and the district in which we lived. After about six weeks there we reluctantly decided that we would have to move.

The primary reason was the lack of a telephone. Most apartments in Tokyo, if they don't have a phone in each suite, at least have one in the owner's quarters and it is the accepted thing for all the tenants to have free access to it.

But because of a terrific backlog of unfilled orders and a local condition of a shortage of lines, we were told that since our apartment was in a new building it would be at least three years before a phone would be available! And while we had thought at first that a phone would be unnecessary, we soon found that it is almost a necessity.

The other major reason prompting our move was something I have touched on before—the fact that our immediate neighbors were so conditioned to noise that their radios, at full volume, filled the air with such a cacophony that it was often quite impossible for me to work.

Whole Block Shook

Sometimes it was so bad that the whole apartment block seemed to be jumping with five different kinds of music at once and many times we were literally driven into the streets to escape the nerve-jangling hubbub. Personally, most of these people were charming and considerate. It was just in this one area that they seemed quite oblivious of the feelings of others.

It took us about 10 days of more or less continuous searching to find something suitable. During this time, accompanied by a Japanese friend, we trailed from one real estate office to another and saw a weird and wonderful assortment of "apartos" as they are called.

One of the strange things we noticed was that while all of them had the typical big windows in the main living room, the outlook when we pushed back the paper-covered shoji screens would as often as not be onto a concrete wall only three feet away—or right into the window of the adjoining house so that we felt that we might as well be sharing every detail of our lives with the neighbors.

Lengthy Search

Finally, when we had almost reached the point of thinking that nothing suitable existed and our friend was beginning to think that foreigners were excessively fussy about trifles, we came across, our present suite.

We are in a reinforced concrete building, four storeys high, living on the top floor and no elevator. Our suite is a combination of Western and Japanese styles and quite typical of the kind of accommodation sought nowadays by white collar workers with slightly above-average incomes.

The living room is Western, with an asphalt tiled floor, but it has big sliding glass doors that open out onto our little private balcony.

The bedroom is pure Japanese with tatami matting on the floor, shoji screens facing the balcony, and attractively designed paper-covered sliding doors connected with the living room. Kitchen is Western, so-called, with much more cupboard and shelf accommodation than is usual in Japan.

This area is called Akasaka, a district of the Minato Ward which is not far from the centre of Tokyo.

Much Quieter

We now find that we can walk to Ginza in about 20 minutes and most of the places with which we do business are correspondingly close. Despite this proximity to the centre of things, it is remarkably quiet. The concrete building has something to do with this but, in addition, it just happens that our neighbours here are much quieter.

Interestingly enough, many of them are foreigners sent by the embassies and legations are hereabouts. Right next door we have the Ghana Embassy and Indian family connected with their embassy lives across the road. The embassy of the United States is visible over the roof tops and within five minutes walk there are those of at least half a dozen other nations.

So even although we are the only foreigners living in our building, the immediate neighborhood turns out to be unexpectedly cosmopolitan. I say "unexpectedly" because although Tokyo is the largest city in the world it is completely Japanese and a foreigner does not need to get very far from the centre of things before the people begin to stare in curiosity.

Unobtrusive

Within a block or so of where we live is one of the most famous entertainment areas of Tokyo. Unlike the back alleys and side roads of Ginza, where even the most imperceptible person cannot help but be overwhelmed by the fantastic number of bars, nightclubs, and cabarets, all catering to pleasure-seekers, the light life of Akasaka is unobtrusive to the casual eye.

Not exclusive to Akasaka, but certainly in greater numbers than anywhere else in the capital, are the particular kind of restaurant known as "ryoriya." These are something more than mere restaurants.

Their design is completely Japanese and, from the outside, they are quite unprepossessing since they are surrounded by a high wall that is pierced by a single gateway having sliding wooden doors.

It is to these ryoriya that the geishas come but it would be incorrect to call them "geisha houses." The geisha house is where the girls live together and study their various arts of entertainment such as singing, dancing, and samisen playing but no client would ever be admitted there. If geisha entertainment is required, an appointment is made and the girls join their customers, usually at a ryoriya.

Dainty Profile

But very often when we are out for a stroll in the cool of the evening, we see the geishas in their rickshaws on their way to their appointments. Actually, we don't see much because the rickshaws are so completely enclosed that we are lucky if we catch a glimpse of a dainty profile through the small celluloid covered side windows.

Occasionally we have happened to be on the spot when one of them arrives at a ryoriya but even here the girls alight so quickly and glide into the doorway so swiftly that we get the impression of a brightly colored bird flitting by.

With the cost of geisha entertainment being what it is, only the wealthy can afford it and when we pass these establishments we see the parked limousines, each with a dozing chauffeur who waits outside while his employer enjoys himself. From behind the lighted shoji screen of an upstairs window we hear the sound of laughter and singing and we often wonder what the chauffeurs think about as they sit alone in the darkness.

For ourselves, the evening stroll usually ends at a little coffee shop where we have a glass of cold coffee with ice cream in it. Usually there are a few young men and women who, for the price of a cup of coffee or a glass of orange juice can sit all evening, talking and watching the evening baseball game on television. Sayonara for now.

DAMAGE DONE BY rock-boring clams is shown here. Piddocks, as they are called, have gouged deep holes 1½-inch in diameter in hunk of marble found in Victoria waters. They can do the same to concrete structure set in the sea. Rock with clams was found by L. Teale, 2201 Spring Street.

CLAM CAN CHEW CONCRETE

Life Just One Long Bore

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Boatmen may complain of the damage done by teredos, sometimes called ship worms, but they can consider themselves fortunate they don't have to contend with "piddocks," a rock-boring clam found in B.C. waters and elsewhere.

If the piddock took to wood, it would bore a hole the size of a silver dollar in the bottom of a boat, but luckily he doesn't like anything softer than rock. B.C. biologists are showing an increase in interest in the rock-boring clam because of the damage it can do to concrete structures. Piddocks have been known to undermine wharves in the United States.

Dr. Clifford Carl, curator of the provincial museum, said the life history of a piddock is simply "boring" in a rock with tiny teeth. The spoon-shaped clam lives in the hole it has made.

Some clams bore right through a rock and have a front and rear door, but many don't care for a home with such frills. You can eat piddocks, but as Dr. Carl points out you need a sledge hammer and a chisel to dig them out.

It's much easier to go for the more common clams which prefer sand as an environment.

Not Many Hands, Lots of Dollars In Little Pony

A Shetland stallion pony worth $56,500 will be on display during the Pony Show at the Pacific National Exhibition starting Aug. 19.

He is Captain Topper, owned by Miss Patricia Burton of Burton Farms, Dryden, Mich.

Miss Burton bought the two-time national championship title holder for $56,500 last year at Gainsville, Texas.

Captain Topper is now retired from the show ring and out to stud for a $1,000 fee.

And Captain Topper—who stands 42 inches high—is also a movie star. He spent last winter at the Los Establos del Retiro home of author Ernest Gann at Pebble Beach, Calif.

The estate was the scene of shooting for the movie Susan Slade, to be released this fall, starring Connie Stevens, Troy Donahue—and Captain Topper.

U.S. to Follow U.K.?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) has predicted that if Britain joins the European Common Market the United States may eventually join also.

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada and India have agreed to make a joint study of the cost of building in India a large-scale multi-million-dollar nuclear power station of Canadian design. It was announced Friday.

The study, announced by Veterans Minister Churchill, minister responsible for the federal government's atomic research program, represents a major achievement in Canada's efforts to win recognition of this country's approach to the construction of big atomic power plants.

The announcement will have a major impact in a number of countries, including the United States and Britain, which are following different approaches but becoming increasingly interested in plants of Canadian design.

Disclosure of India's direct interest in building a Canadian designed plant follows sharp criticism of the Canadian approach last May before the special Commons research committee. The criticism was rejected by Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, Crown-owned atomic research agency.

The joint study, undertaken at India's request, will cost in the neighborhood of $30,000 and will be completed by the end of the year. Cost of the study will be shared by Canada and India.

Results will determine whether the Indian government will go ahead with the construction of a plant similar to one now being built by Atomic Energy of Canada.

J. L. Gray, president of Atomic Energy of Canada, said in an interview that the study is "direct evidence" that the Indian atomic energy authority and the Indian government are seriously interested in the type of large power station being built in Canada.

He said other countries besides India are becoming convinced that Canada is on the right track in the construction of atomic power plants that will produce large blocks of electricity economically.

The Canadian approach is based on the use of natural uranium as a fuel and heavy water will turn ordinary water into steam which will drive steam turbines hooked to electric generators.

Youth Facing Grave Charge

NELSON (CP)—An Ontario youth was committed to trial on a charge of rape at a preliminary hearing here, Thursday, before Magistrate R. S. Nelson.

Robert Edward Welch, a transient, is accused of having raped a middle-aged Fairview woman, July 26.

He will be transferred to Oakalla and held there until the fall assize in October.

Police allege the accused broke into the woman's house, where she lived alone, through a window, about 4 a.m.

They allege he put a knife to her throat, raped her, and threatened to kill her if she screamed or told police.

ROYAL COMMISSION ON HEALTH SERVICES PRELIMINARY HEARING

A Preliminary Hearing will be held in Ottawa, Ontario, September 27, 1961, in the Administration Building, 90 Farent Street, Ottawa, 9.30 a.m.

The purpose of this meeting will be to set out to those wishing to make submissions, the pattern of the inquiry and the procedure to be used, and also to hear from various organizations and others, their views as to the areas and problems to be covered, in line with this Commission's terms of reference. Statements of principles which various groups may feel should guide this Commission in proceeding with its inquiry are invited. It is emphasized that this Commission welcomes from the start suggestions from the public relating to the scope of its inquiry.

Since this is a preliminary hearing no briefs are asked for this meeting. Those wishing to express their views in writing, with or without appearing at the hearing, are free to do so with written communication to reach the Commission not later than September 18, 1961.

This Commission will soon announce its schedule of public hearings in the Atlantic Provinces, to be followed at a later date by a schedule for Western Canada, Ontario and Quebec.

In order that this Commission may complete its mailing list of those organizations and others who may wish to appear before the Commission to present a brief or to be recipients of any information this Commission might issue from time to time, it is most important that we be advised as soon as possible of the name and address of the organization, including that of its President or Chief Executive Officer. It will be necessary for those wishing to attend hearings to indicate whether they will be attending the preliminary hearing in Ottawa or the regular hearings in the respective provinces, or both.

Written communications should be addressed to:

The Secretary,
Royal Commission on Health Services,
P.O. Box 1178, Ottawa.

REGULATIONS PERTAINING TO PROVINCIAL HIGHWAYS

1. Outside Municipalities—All buildings must be set back at least 25 feet from the edge of the right-of-way of any Provincial Highway, Road or Street.

2. Outside Municipal Boundaries—No signs are permitted within 1,000 feet of the right-of-way of any Provincial Highway, Road or Street with the following exceptions:

a) Certain directional signs for Motorists and Bicycles may be erected on the right-of-way under permit.

b) Certain signs on business properties may be erected beyond the right-of-way boundaries. For details on this, please check with your local District Office.

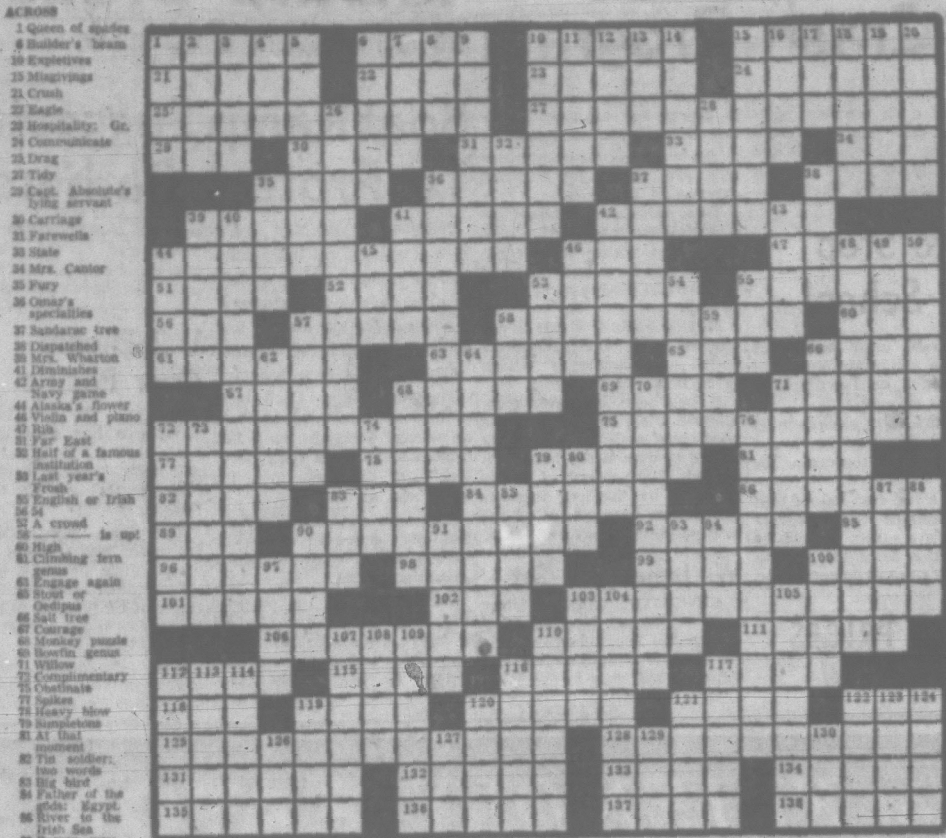

3. Inside Municipal Boundaries—No signs may be erected on the right-of-way of Provincial Highways, except under permit (reference 2 (a) above). Signs on private property are controlled by the Municipal authorities.

4. Entrances, pipes, etc., to be built within the Provincial right-of-way will require a permit from the Department of Highways.

For further details, please contact the Department of Highways District Office.

IT'S YOUR MOVE

Here is another problem devised by Millard Hopper, long-time checker titlist. White checkers, moving up the board, to move and win in five moves is the challenge. Let's see if you are equal to it.

THUMB NUMBER

Grasp the thumb of one hand with the other fingers, put the fist into the armpit of the same hand. Release the thumb. Now, remaining in the same position, attempt to grasp the thumb in the same manner again. Sounds easy, but try it. You'll find awkwardness of position makes this difficult.

COLORFUL BIRD SERIES—NO. 9

Number nine in a continuing series of bird drawings by popular illustrator Jane Niebrugge is the belted kingfisher. This bird ranges from southern Labrador and northern Manitoba south to the Gulf of Mexico. It winters in lower Florida, Texas and south of the border; also as far north as Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. The kingfisher breeds in sand banks, river bluffs and road cuts, making a long burrow with an enlarged chamber also fare on crustaceans and frogs. A coloring guide for the female kingfisher is provided at right:

1. Head, tail, bill—blue-black.
2. Eye spot, neck and belly—white.
3. Streak on breast—rusty red.
4. Legs—yellow.
(Next: Red-headed Woodpecker)

WHAT AM I?

You'll be most likely to solve this poetic enigma if you are acquainted with the fact that a certain common word has three different meanings. Though they catch me with a hook, I'm more applied to bird than beast. In form more like a snake I look. Though having sixteen feet at least.

ask henry

The writer of this weekly advice column is an 11-year-old boy. The advice he gives is strictly his own. It has not been changed by his parents or the editor. He welcomes letters from parents. If you want him to discuss your problem write to ASK HENRY in care of this newspaper.

Our 16-year-old got himself a job for the summer months, $36 a week. He doesn't think he should give any money to his father; he says he is saving it up for school books. The first week he had $6 to spend, the second $3 from his pay. As this is his second pay I don't know if this will last until his next pay. A word to him please Henry, as he gets so cross with us.

Dear 16-Year-Old:
Working Mom and Dad.
I am also saving for education. All I bought with my money so far is some gum, three turtles and a water pistol. I take pleasure in watching my bank account grow fatter. Don't let yours shrink. Henry.

Dear Henry:
My son (Jr. H) age 8 has never liked the word "work" nor anything it represents, since the day he first learned it many years ago (substitutes don't fool him). We have tried all kinds of bribes, kindness, threats, but still no luck! What do you suggest that I might do to stir up my boy's ambition?
AMBITION MOTHER.

Dear Ambitious Mother:
Try carrying out a threat. Henry.

Dear Henry:
I suppose you have had my experience of a younger sister (mine is seven) who always squeals at you and tells on you. What do you do to tame your sister? Poor Brother.

Dear Fellow Poor Brother:
I can't tame my sister or my father will tame me. Henry.

Dear Henry:
"She kicked me for nothing," says Robert, 9, when I investigate who has shifted the fight. "He was making faces at me," explains Shirley, 7. This is not the first time this has happened. What can I do to put an end to these quarrels? She Kicked Me for Nothing.

Dear "He Is Making Faces at Me":
I am very sorry. Nothing can be done. Buy ear muffs. Henry.

Dear Henry:
My father won't let me see Lucky Larson Western Time. What should I do?
Eight-Year-old.

Dear Eight-Year-Old:
Your father is bigger and stronger than you; you have to listen to him. If many parents will do the same, kids will have to form a union and think how to combat this growing problem. Henry.

AROUND THE ISLAND

4-H Teams Named To Show at PNE

Four 4-H demonstration teams were picked at Luxton fair grounds Friday to represent the lower island in competitions at the Pacific National Exhibition.

Judges had to choose between 12 teams. The PNE has prompted local eliminations because of the huge number of 4-H clubs anxious to compete in the mainland show. Judges were Ken Jameson and S. B. Peterson, district agriculturalists at Duncan and Courtenay respectively. Winners and their subjects were: Saanich Ayrshire Club, "Don't Falter With Your Halter"; Saanich Home Arts Club, "Patio Breakfasts"; South Saanich Goat Club, "Mr. and Mrs. Mink Producing"; Saanich Jersey Club, "Care of Our Calf from Birth to Show."

COMOX — Purchase of land on Knight Road, south of Comox Airport, will permit lengthening of runways to accommodate the new CF-101 Voodoo fighters which will replace the familiar CF-100 aircraft here. Main runway will be lengthened from 8,000 to 10,000 feet.

An RCAF spokesman said the force had not been officially informed of the land purchase, but that it was known the RCAF had the right of access to the land. It is not known when the project will start, but it is estimated it will take eight to nine months to complete. Last runway extension was of 2,000 feet in 1954.

LADYSMITH — Members of the First United Church Women's Auxiliary will provide lunch Sunday for 40 parades and their 40 companions. They will be aboard the E and N Railway Dayliner, which will make a 45-minute stop here for the lunch. The visitors, all members of the Indoor Sports Club in Vancouver, will travel to Victoria and back to Vancouver the same day.

PORT RENFREW — Federal and provincial fisheries officials have promised an "all-out war" against fish poachers believed responsible for taking steelhead by the hundreds from Gordon River, which flows into Port San Juan here.

It is believed the poachers string gillnets across the river at holding pools near the mouth, then drive the fish into it by throwing rocks into the river. Officials already have found one net across the river, but did not apprehend the owner.

ALBERNI — Highway between here and Tofino will be open to the public between 2:30 p.m. and 4:45 a.m. until further notice, according to the highways department here. Traffic is restricted during logging company working hours, which in this area are on early shift to avoid the hottest part of the day.

CHEMUNUS — Ports of Chemunus and Crofton were visited by 23 ships during July, which took aboard 20,888,629 board feet of lumber and 6,899 tons of pulp.

Destinations were: United States, 10,135,129 board feet; United Kingdom, 5,768,000; Puerto Rico, 1,446,500; Australia, 1,323,000; Japan, 825,000; South Africa, 446,000; Portuguese East Africa, 125,000.

Saudi Arabia, one of the world's greatest oil fields, produced 54,036,000 tons in 1953, compared with 59,136,000 in 1958.

$2.5 MILLION JOB SET BY B.C. HYDRO

West Coast Power Crash Program

PORT ALBERNI — B.C. Power Commission has announced it will make an immediate start on a "crash" program to build a $2,500,000, 52-mile, high-voltage power line to the west coast. It will link Ucluelet, Tofino, and the Kle Mines at Maggie Lake with the Vancouver Island system, and will employ a peak of 300 men. Contracts for the work were finalized this week in Victoria. Survey crews are in the field, and others are arriving. Target date for completion of the line is March of next year.

Present plans call for a connection with the Ash River line of B.C. Hydro, where power will be stepped down from 138,000 to 60,000 volts. A single wire on wooden poles will cross some of the roughest terrain on Vancouver Island to a substation yet to be built on the west coast. There, voltage will be stepped down again to power the existing 12,000-volt Ucluelet-Tofino system.

The west coast communities now are served by a diesel generating plant. To a certain extent the line will follow the West Coast Road, but where it diverges timber will have to be cut and removed to form a clear right-of-way.

Maggie Lake iron ore development will take 2,400 kilowatts. The mine is within three miles of the road. It has been in power commission planning to link the west coast with the Vancouver Island system when load warranted. The amount of power required by the iron mine is believed to have advanced the original date by several years.

Protest Too Late to Stop Workshop Next to School

NORTH COWICHAN — A request from Somenos PTA that the municipal council change its plan to build municipal workshops beside Somenos School has been rejected by council.

Reeve Donald Morton said there had been a seven-week delay between the association's passing of a protest resolution and receipt of the secretary's letter.

He said it was "most unfortunate" that the protest had not been given to council more quickly, but that the site had been cleared and architect's plans advanced. Coun. Tony Staples said noise would be kept to a minimum and that there would be little traffic danger to children.

"If council were to change its plans now it would be throwing money down the drain," he said. The PTA had complained that the workshops would constitute a grave safety hazard, be a distraction to pupils, and destroy the present beautiful aspect of the school.

W. Indies Poll Set — Premier Norman Manley has set Sept. 19 as the date for the referendum on whether Jamaica will stay in the West Indies Federation.

Boat Ramp Suggested To Protect Bathers

NORTH COWICHAN — Municipal council has indicated it will formulate a policy to meet what has been called a dangerous situation at Maple Bay, where boats are being launched in close proximity to bathers. Duncan Rotary Club complained to council, saying that on several occasions boats had broken away from their handlers and careened into the water out of control.

The club suggested installation of a concrete ramp and notices warning of launching operations. Reeve Donald Morton said that when the beach at Crofton is fully developed, then Maple Bay beach will be used almost wholly by yachtsmen. However, he said, that project will

U-2 Flights Over Pacific

TOKYO (UPI) — The U.S. Air Force has confirmed reports that U2 jet planes soon will begin "high altitude sampling flights" over the western Pacific.

The planes will be based at Okinawa, and not in Japan where their presence touched off criticism after the ill-fated flight of U2 pilot Gary Francis Powers over the Soviet Union May 1, 1960.

The spokesman said, the flights would be strictly for gathering weather data.

THESE ALMONDS WERE BITTER

LONDON (AP)—A British charter airline today reported discovering a plot to smuggle arms to African trouble spots in airfreight boxes labelled as nuts.

Officials said they suspect the Chinese Communists were behind attempts to use the airline as an unwitting carrier of arms destined for Angola and Algeria.

One of Scotland Yard's top agents, superintendent George Gale, was called in to investigate.

Ari Safaris, the charter firm, said it received an order to pick up a consignment of almonds in Libya and fly it to the Canary Islands.

The two British pilots, suspicious about the weight of one box, pried it open and found mortars, mortar bombs and grenades. All bore Chinese markings and inside each box was a book of instructions in Chinese.

The airline was forbidden to disclose from whom it received the charter.

Soviet Aid for Tunisia?

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has pledged "all forms of aid" to Tunisia to force France to withdraw from its air and naval base at Bizerte, Tunisian Foreign Minister Sadok Mokkadem said today.

Mokkadem made his remarks after discussions with Khrushchev and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. But he refused to answer reporters' questions on whether this included military aid.

"This aid will be determined by the development of the situation," Mokkadem said.

PUGWASH, N.S. (CP)

Crowds of highland dancers and pipers greeted Soviet spaceman Yuri Gagarin today when he arrived at this northern Nova Scotia village for an afternoon of relaxation.

Major Gagarin arrived here after a three-hour drive from Halifax where he landed this morning.

In the small villages and towns along the 100-mile route, small scattered groups of people waved as he went through.

The first stop was the "Thinker's Lodge" where he ate with Russian Ambassador A. A. Aroutunian and industrialist Cyrus Eaton, his host. The lodge is named after groups of scientists Mr. Eaton invites to his birthplace for conferences.

Scheduled for this afternoon was a program of Scottish music and dancing.

The big flyushin-18 airplane bringing Gagarin to Canada was 34 minutes late when it touched down at Halifax International Airport this morning.

REFUGEES POUR ACROSS

With Thanks From 'His Grace'

NEW YORK (AP) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation and local police swarmed over the offices of the Twentieth Century Travel Agency here Friday in quest of travel information.

They want information regarding the travels of Lou Bennett, 30, who until last weekend was one of the most willing and energetic employees the firm ever had.

Co-owners Harry Brown and Leonard Gold said Lou was so energetic he did them out of about $50,000. He was hired six weeks ago.

The New York Daily News said Brown and Gold told this story to police:

Lou, they said, had been living a double life — the quiet, unassuming travel consultant named Bennett on weekdays and the gasling British playboy, Sir Douglas Bedford of London, on weekends.

Bennett, it seems, armed himself with a hefty supply of time payment devices and set out on a one-man mission to improve Anglo-American relations.

BOYS FORCED INTO 'FRIDGE'; TWO PERISH

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — Two boys were found dead in a walk-in refrigerator in a school here today. A third boy found alive with them told police officers an older boy with a knife forced all three into the refrigerator.

Roger Keith Blas, 9, and Johnny Carter, 11, were dead, apparently of suffocation. Henry Carter, nine-year-old brother of Johnny, was pulled alive from the refrigerator, disconnected during the summer — and taken to hospital where he was reported in good condition.

Sheriff's officers went to the Altizer school today to check a reported breaking and entering there. A woman who went with them opened the two-door refrigerator and discovered the missing boys.

ALGERIA

Fugitive General Sounds Call

ALGIERS (Reuters) — A clandestine radio station today broke into an Algerian radio broadcast with a call by a fugitive ex-general for continued opposition to President Charles de Gaulle.

Everything was calm in Algiers capital as the voice of ex-Gen. Paul Gardy, condemned to death in his absence for his part in the abortive April military coup in Algeria, began a half-hour broadcast on the same frequency as Algiers radio.

The official station had just finished a weather bulletin and was preparing to relay a broadcast from France when Gardy's voice broke in to declare:

"Radio France... the OAS is speaking to you."

OAS are initials of the extreme right-wing Secret Army Organization.

A few seconds later a second voice began a severe criticism of de Gaulle's policy followed by references to the Bizerte crisis. Martial music followed.

The 28-minute broadcast ended with an announcer declaring: "You have just been listening to Radio France, the voice of French Algeria. Frenchmen arise. We shall stay in our Algeria..."

Algeria radio said everything was normal at the radio station. It was believed the surprise broadcast was achieved by a link-up with one of the station's regular supply cables.

Fast Start Made On Huge Project

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

The new, publicly-owned British Columbia Electric Company has borrowed $75,000,000 to make an immediate start on development of the vast Peace River power project.

The loan from the Royal Bank of Canada was announced following a meeting of the new BCE board of directors only a few hours after their appointment was made Friday by Premier Bennett.

Board chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum said the loan is the biggest single credit bloc ever extended in Canada.

The new directors, appointed to run the power utility which the government took over through legislation earlier this week, also made these decisions.

1. Agreed to apply for a water licence to develop the Peace River project.

2. Asked the present BCE executive, headed by BCE president Dr. Harry Purdy, to stay on with the company.

3. Appointed director Einar Gunderson as secretary of the BCE board.

4. Arranged payment of $110,000,000 to B.C. Power Corporation for BCE common shares.

The development followed fast on the heels of Premier Bennett's announcement Friday of the makeup of the new board headed by Dr. Shrum and of the government's intention to float a $100,000,000 BCE 5 per cent parity bond issue next Wednesday. The issue will form the major part of the $110,000,000 paid to B.C. Power Corporation for BCE common stock acquired in the government takeover.

Full complement of the new board of directors, in addition to Dr. Shrum, is as follows:

Frank M. Ross, former B.C. lieutenant-governor; Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston;

W. C. Mearns of Victoria.

Cuban Travel Ban As New Money Due

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI) — World Airways reported that Premier Fidel Castro's government halted all ship and plane travel in and out of Cuba today in preparation for the issuing of new currency during the weekend.

The currency move would make worthless all paper money brought out of Cuba by refugees from the Castro regime.

The travel ban went into effect this morning and will remain in effect until 8 p.m. Monday. Only President Osvaldo Dorticos can make any exceptions.

All plane flights were cancelled, and Pan-American

World Airways reported that it "did not know how passengers who were scheduled to leave today would be re-signed." The port of Havana was closed, with three ships waiting outside the harbor entrance.

The currency changeover means that all bills now in circulation must be traded in for new ones by Monday. But not more than 200 pesos may be exchanged immediately by any one household. Any funds above that figure must be deposited in a special account by the persons holding them, and converted to new bills a week later.

MERGER, SUSPENSION, MAGIC '600' HIGHLIGHTS

Hectic Week on Toronto Exchange

By JOHN BELANGER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It was a hectic week on the Toronto stock exchange with a merger, a suspension, and a government take-over in the news.

The suspension of Ventures came Friday afternoon after the exchange's board of inquiry labelled a July 27 Ventures statement preceding Monday's takeover of Falconbridge "misleading."

The statement said: "The directors of none of the three companies Ventures, Falconbridge, McIntyre-Porcupine have yet considered any concrete proposal prepared to go before any board."

The exchange set up the inquiry committee Tuesday, and in Friday's rebuff said: "The statement, although factual, was in fact misleading, and should not have been issued in the form in which it was."

Also in the news was the long-awaited and half-expected breakthrough to the magic and elusive "600" mark on the industrial index. The 20-stock market indicator went over the hill first at noon Friday, after setting new highs throughout most of the week. The index closed at 600.94 Friday, ahead more than 14 1/2 points on the week.

The British Columbia government's takeover of the huge B.C. Electric Company Tuesday brought on a flurry of trading in all company stocks and also produced sharp price falls. Drops ranged between $3.75 and $10 in the preferreds, while B.C. Power turned over more than 43,000 shares on the week and finished on the "most active" list. The B.C. Electric stocks were removed from the trading list Friday due to the closing of transfer facilities.

SHOWS A GAIN

Dominion Foundries and Steel featured in the steel group with a gain of more than three points, while smaller rises went to Algoma, Steel Company of Canada, Canada Iron and Pipe-Hersey. Trading in the group was light to moderate.

The senior base metals list showed a number of sharp gains. International Nickel, Noranda and Ventures all hit new highs for the week, along with Labrador. Fractional gains went to Frohisher, Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting and Mining Corporation.

Gold trading was light with Hollinger at a new high of 28 1/2. McIntyre-Porcupine gained 3 1/2 on the week in active trading.

The western oil market was generally quiet as senior issues advanced in a low range. Central Del Rio, Home A and B, Pacific Petroleum and Hudson's Bay Oil all rose fractionally.

B.C. Fishermen Reap Rich Sockeye Harvest

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia fishermen continue to reap the harvest of a rich sockeye salmon run.

In two days of fishing allowed this week they caught 277,000 fish worth about $600,000 to them, the International Pacific Salmon Commission reported. The catch is worth more than $1,000,000 to the industry as a consumer product.

This week's daily catch was slightly less than last week's average when the boats netted 460,000 salmon in three days in the Quennell River run.

B.C. and American fishing fleets have caught about 1,000,000 sockeye each in the present run, main part of which will be over in two to three weeks.

Under international rules they will be allowed to catch about 2,000,000 each, allowing the balance of the predicted 5,500,000 run to escape to the spawning grounds.

The run is expected to be worth about $4,200,000 to B.C. fishermen.

Officials are talking of the possibility of this being a record salmon year, exceeding the $30,000,000 Adams River run of 1958.

B.C. Phone Profits Up

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia Telephone Company had net profit of $3,793,383 in the six months ended June 30 compared with $3,374,953 in the corresponding period last year.

After payment of dividends on preference and preferred shares the net income per common share, totalled $1.33 compared with $1.40 in the same period in 1960.

The company had 555,509 telephones in service at June 30, an increase of 8,479 during the six months under review and 42,283 more than were in service a year ago.

Pulp, Paper Workers Reject Settlement

VANCOUVER (CP)—A conciliation officer's recommendation for a settlement that included no overall wage increase was rejected by a slim majority of 5,000 union members in 16 B.C. pulp and paper plants. Full results of the voting of the workers, members of the Pulp and Paper Workers' Union, were not released.

The companies have accepted the recommendations. Present base pay ranges from $2.03 for laborers to $2.79 for tradesmen.

Profits Decline

TORONTO (CP)—Rio Algonquin Mines Ltd., Northern Ontario uranium producer, had net profit of $7,804,000 in the six-month period ended June 30 compared with $15,201,000 in the corresponding period last year. Long-term debt at June 30 stood at $4,214,000 compared with $78,388,000 a year ago.

ried by Samuel I. Newhouse of New York, has bought the 10-year-old afternoon Oregon Journal for more than $8 million.

Separate statements released Friday night said the sale was effective immediately but that the newspapers will continue as separate publications.

The Journal will move to the Oregonian building as soon as arrangements can be made for joint production and distribution facilities, but it will remain a separate, competitive enterprise in the fields of news and editorial comment.

W. W. Knight will continue as publisher of the Journal.

The sale included the Journal's large building, formerly the firm's market, on the Willamette riverfront, and all equipment. It did not include the Journal-owned radio station KPOJ.

ASK The TIMES

Q—What year was it that a German sailing vessel was lost in the Atlantic with the loss of some 80 lives, most of them cadets? J.M.

A—The four-masted barque Pamir was sunk by a hurricane in the Atlantic on September 21, 1957. A court of enquiry found that the master of the vessel was not following accepted sailing tactics when the ship foundered, and blamed the loss on him, and on the inexperience of the first officer. Both drowned.

FROM THE LEGISLATURE

Summer Fantasy Brief, Bright

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

The midsummer night's dream is over and B.C. politics can go back to sleep for the rest of the year.

And what a dream it was; though for some it had nightmarish aspects.

Premier Bennett played Puck to the hilt, aided by his other Social Credit good fairies, Peaseblossom, Cobweb and Mustard Seed, in one of the most dramatic sessions ever held in the B.C. Legislature.

Since they gave a stirring performance as the honest workmen, the CCF must be cast in the roles of Quince and Bottom and Co.

Social Credit became the good fairy when it transferred a major CCF policy into a government takeover of B.C. Electric and the Peace River power project.

It was something the CCF had honestly worked for through all its years in existence.

In the 14½ hours of actual debate over three days this week the Secretrs "swiped" it.

Quote: "There's in Shakespeare's version of the dream."

"What poor duty cannot do."

Noble respect takes it in night."

The CCF might have added the last two words of Shakespeare's sentence: "Not Merit."

They complained Mr. Bennett had gone Socialist for the wrong reason—to do Ottawa in the eye.

There's no doubt the fate of the Columbia River plan is now very uncertain. Whatever happens B.C. will get a Peace hydro development; if Ottawa plays ball and allows power exports, then it will get both developments.

The legislative war, North Vancouver Liberal J. Gordon Gibson played a clever gag on an Empress Hotel maid the day after the takeover was accomplished.

She asked him what the army and the guns were doing on the lawn of the Legislative Buildings.

"Mr. Bennett took over the B.C. Electric yesterday; he's taking over the CPR today," said he solemnly.

(Actually they were there to fire a 21-gun salute for the Queen Mother's birthday.)

The session was a good show for the tourists. It attracted good crowds at all times in the public galleries.

The 52 MLAs didn't do too badly, either, despite the fact that only six government members spoke at all from Tuesday to Thursday. They were the Premier, Attorney-General Robert Bonner, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston, Herbert Bruch, Dan Campbell and John Tisdale.

Nearly all the CCF and all the Liberals had a go, though.

But everybody earned at least $400 for their trouble: $350 indemnity, $15 a day living allowance, plus travel expenses.

Probably the man who came off best of all was Premier Bennett.

The public power takeover seems to be popular, and Mr. Bennett always has his eye on the next election.

The wraithlike, bent old lady solemnly marched into Premier Bennett's office Friday afternoon with an envelope.

"Be sure to give this to Mr. Bennett immediately," she told his secretary. She added in a lower, confidential tone, "It's very important."

The secretary opened the envelope. Inside was a B.C. Electric light bill and a cheque.

MONTE ROBERTS

This is the time of year when My Favorite Wife is apt to pack up and leave town.

Because she is in grave danger of being exposed to a mass of steamed clams.

This is not due, actually, to the season of the year; it is due to the fact our friend Lou is in town.

Our friend Lou is a type who dearly loves to participate in all piscatorial pastimes, down to and including the pursuit of the panting clam.

I can only explain this strange behavior by stating he is (a) in the army and (b) in Edmonton, except for the time he escapes each year to return to these parts.

And as soon as he scents tidal waters, he gallops to the seashore, pulls in hand, ordering the tide to about-face so he can get with it. (Otherwise known as dig not, boy.)

Usually his endeavors are too, too, successful, and the last time he was here, I was presented with a bucket of clams calculated to care for the chowder needs of the Edmonton garrison.

Which would have been fine, had not MFW removed the lid from the bucket while the clams were having their pre-steam last meal, thus causing her to kick the bucket. (Literally, not figuratively, I am happy to say.)

Now Lou is in these parts again, gleam in eye, and bucket in hand.

I can see no hope for continued domestic bliss in our house, unless our friend from Edmonton becomes exposed to a certain waterfront character who was approached the other day by a visitor from—let's say Texas, because that covers a lot of ground.

The visitor ups to this waterfront denizen, and he says: "I'm a stranger here, and I've been told you can capture clams right out of the water."

"Could he," says the waterfront character.

"How do I go about capturing these clams?" asks the visitor.

"You get a clam gun?"

"Well, no."

"Got to have a clam gun."

"Could I rent one?"

"Nope, have to buy one."

"Where can I buy one?"

The waterfront character reeled off the names of a half-dozen sporting goods stores.

"They cost much?"

"Nope. Unless you want a silver-mounted, double-barrelled model, made to measure. Of course, double-barrel is better, in case you miss first time."

"Maybe I better get a double-barrel."

"Maybe," says the waterfront character. "Say, you got a licence to capture clams?"

"Gee, no."

"You ever captured clams before?"

"Of course not."

"Then you'll have to get a learner's licence first, and if you can pass your test..."

"How long will that take?"

"Depends. Three, maybe four days."

"Ah, shucks. I have to catch the ferry in an hour."

"Too bad."

Do you think, if our friend from Edmonton met this waterfront character... LOOK OUT, DEAR, DON'T TAKE THE LID OFF THAT BUCKET.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

City playground tennis is booming but instructors are running out of space.

The situation, according to playground superintendent Gordon Hartley, is becoming desperate. "There are literally hundreds and hundreds of children anxious for tennis instruction in the parks," he said, "and we can't provide it due to a lack of public courts."

Hartley spoke at the windup of the city tournament, which attracted 94 entries in four divisions. Winners were Linda Weicker, Barbara Maysmith, John Maysmith and Dave McNeill.

Charged with breaking and entering with intent to commit an offence, Robert William Woodford of Victoria, who is remanded by Magistrate J. A. Byers in city police court today until Monday for plea.

Harvey Moran, also of Victoria, charged with unlawful possession of transistor radio, was also remanded until Monday without plea.

The RCAF bombed Esquimalt, but not Victoria, with leaflets this morning, advertising Air Force Day at Comox Aug. 13.

An expedition aircraft was to drop the leaflets on numerous Island communities today. But Victoria was not on the list since city council did not vote to allow the drop.

Pleading guilty to careless driving, Frank Hugh Humphrey, 3771 Saanich Road, was fined $35 in Saanich police court today.

Final Rites Set Monday For Thompson

Funeral for Jack Thompson, 33, 3888 Persimmon Drive, who was killed in a freak boating accident at Elk Lake Thursday, will be held at 1:30 Monday at McCall's.

Thompson, a former member of the Victoria Shamrocks senior lacrosse club, was killed when run over by his own outboard motor boat in a water-skiing accident.

Deputy coroner H. E. Alder announced that there would be no inquest into the death. He will conduct an inquiry.

Pallbearers will be George Etherington, Jack Thomas, Earl Darling, Bud French, Bob Monaghan and Doug Campbell. Members of the Shamrocks will be present in a body.

Thompson is survived by his widow, Doreen; a daughter, Margo, 4; a son, David, 18 months; his mother, Mrs. Mary Thompson, of 124 Beachwood, and three brothers, Stan of Victoria, Aln of Haney and Robert of Seattle.

ANY RESPONSE TO OUR AD-YES, CHARLIE BROWN?

NO, I HAVEN'T HEARD A THING.

WELL, IT'S A LITTLE EARLY YET, I'M SURE SOMEBODY WILL OFFER YOU A JOB AS MANAGER, THOUGH.

I MEAN, THERE MUST BE A TEAM SOMEPLACE THAT IS SO DEEP IN LAST PLACE AND IS SO PANIC STRICKEN THAT IT'S WILLING TO TRY ANYTHING!

I DIDN'T PUT THAT VERY WELL, DID I?

NO, YOU DIDN'T!

Cartoonist His Own Model

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

One way to draw a cartoon is to caricature yourself.

That is the recipe followed by Bob Barnes in the creation of his daily husband-and-wife cartoon "The Better Half," published in The Victoria Times and some 200 other newspapers in Canada, the United States and Europe.

Bob and his wife, Ruth, regard themselves as a typical middle-class couple, in the 40-plus group—and it is the "little everyday absurdities in their domestic lives that provide the material for "The Better Half."

For instance, a crescendo of month-end bills prompted Bob to draw his little man sitting at a table sifting envelopes and saying to his wife:

"Well, we're at the bridge we were going to cross when we came to it!" (Times Aug. 2.)

In Victoria today Bob and Ruth met a local housewife who said: "You must have peeped into my bedroom."

And that is an average reaction. People enjoy "The Better Half" because they see in it a reflection of themselves.

Dark, good-humored Bob Barnes has been a cartoonist for more than 20 years. His first married-couple drawings appeared in the Saturday Evening Post more than 20 years ago but without the title. They have been syndicated as "The Better Half" since 1943.

From their home at Carmel, California, Bob and Ruth are now on a motoring tour of the Pacific Coast and everywhere they go people ask them:

"How do you become a cartoonist?"

Bob says the chief requirements are an understanding of human nature, a sense of humor, and topicality, plus power of observation and the ability to draw.

LITTLE TRAINING

"Formal art training can be very helpful," he said, "but in my case this was limited to high school and spare-time art classes."

"Most cartoonists begin by working for the smaller magazines, but they must study and practise all the time. There is no easy road to recognition and it usually takes years."

THE BETTER HALF

By Bob Barnes

"If you grew a beard people would think your head was on upside down."

Storm Whips City, Aids Northern Area

A storm which gave Victoria winds in excess of 40 miles per hour early this morning went to the rescue of a threatened sawmill community in the fire-ravaged Prince George district.

A 3,500-acre blaze on Taber Mountain, 15 miles southeast of Prince George, was within four miles of Six Mile Lake summer resort when the storm, blowing up winds of 65 miles per hour, fanned the fire in the opposite direction.

The wind change helped suppression crews hold fire guards protecting the Schlitt Brothers sawmill, but it was reported to have caused outbreaks along other portions of the fire's broad front.

The crew—part of a ground party fighting a 500-acre blaze along the Dean Channel near Prince Rupert late Thursday—was cut off from the main party by wind-driven flames.

The party took refuge on a high, sparsely-wooded knoll but the fire, for some reason, never went to the crest of the hill.

"It normally would have went right to the top," said a forest service spokesman. "It was a miracle or something like that."

There were no injuries. A helicopter air-lifted some of the men to safety while the remainder escaped after flames swept past the knoll.

Here in the Victoria area winds remained brisk today, with gale warnings for Juan de Fuca Strait and a small craft warning in Georgia Strait. Forecast calls for decreasing winds and increasing temperatures.

PIONEER PRESENTS MEMENTO TO ARCHIVES

First Victoria-U.S. Hop Recalled

By IAN SMITH

When Bob Rideout made the first flight between Victoria and Seattle on May 11, 1919, he flew a canvas-and-wood biplane that had a top speed of 70 miles-per-hour but which stalled below 60.

It made for exciting flying, to say the least.

The event was recalled today when Rideout, of Victoria and Vancouver, arranged for presentation to the provincial archives of a pictorial document commemorating the historic flight.

The trip to Seattle took all day, counting delays.

"We set out at about 10 a.m. from Victoria," recalled Rideout, "but near Port Townsend we ran into a headwind so we had to set down on Whidbey Island to avoid stalling. We landed there at about 11:15.

FARMER JOLTED

"We came down in a pea field and was the farmer ever surprised. It was the first plane he'd ever seen."

"Along about 5 o'clock the wind died and we took off. Fifty minutes later we landed in Jefferson Park Golf Course in Seattle."

He laughed. "There was a big white 'T' on the course for us to land on, but I missed it and the tail of the plane slewed around and dug a furrow on one of the greens. They weren't happy."

But, happy or not, the flight was then history.

It was the first airplane flight between Canada and the U.S. west of Toronto, and it was also the first airmail flight in the region since Rideout carried letters on board.

He landed in Cadboro Bay.

Rideout, who spent his younger years in Victoria but now lives in Vancouver, was the main participant in another historic "first" on June 1, 1919, when he made the first commercial flight in Canada, dropping leaflets advertising soap from Victoria skies.

The two events formed milestones in a flying career that carried Rideout to distant places about the globe.

Shot down twice in First World War when he started flying at the age of 18, he ended the conflict with five enemy planes to his credit.

Following the war he flew in Sumatra, China and the Galapagos Islands, to name a few of the spots he has seen from the air.

He piloted Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews of Rochester, N.Y., to the Gobi Desert in 1928, when Dr. Chapman found his famous fossilized dinosaur eggs.

In Victoria Rideout operated out of Willows race track and it was there that his most exciting experience occurred.

"We were stunting," he remembers, "taking folks up and giving them a few loop-the-loops and spins. I took this one fellow up and wanted to really give him something to remember, so I started a loop."

"Only in the excitement I'd forgotten to, do up my safety belt. We were upside down and I came right out of my seat. I would have fallen except for the fact that the control stick had a knob on it that I managed to cling against."

"I was pretty shaken," he said.

FINAL BULLETINS

Fullmer Has Weight Edge on Cuban

OGDEN, Utah (AP)—NBA champion Gene Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, weighed in at 159½ and Cuba's Florentino Fernandez at 157½ today for their 15-round televised fight tonight for the National Boxing Association's middleweight title.

Mexico Wins Another in Davis Cup

CASABLANCA (AP)—Mexico eliminated Morocco today and qualified to meet the United States in the American zone Davis Cup tennis final.

E. German Girl Sets Swim Record

VIENNA (AP)—Karin Bayer of East Germany today bettered the world record for the women's 200-metre freestyle during a swimming meet between East Germany and Hungary in Budapest. Her time was two minutes, 43 seconds.

The record of 2:43.5 is held by Britain's Anita Loughborough.

Three Killed in Alberta Car Wreck

PINCHER CREEK, Alta. (CP)—Tom McLain, 21, Alcide Theriault, 17, and Veronica Bertram, 17, all of Pincher Creek, Alta., died when the car in which they were riding overturned on a district road five miles west of here.

TALKS ON BERLIN

Ministers Map Road to Peace

PARIS (AP)—Four Western foreign ministers met this afternoon to map plans for a peaceful solution to the Berlin crisis.

The ministers, informed sources said, were considering how to propose negotiations to Moscow on the basis of the West's own timetable. There was no indication, however, that they actually had decided to take the initiative and ask Moscow to negotiate.

The Berlin crisis, while still dangerous, seems headed now toward negotiation. Informants suggested that the Western powers would be willing to make the first diplomatic move to get the Russians to the conference table if they were not rushed or bullied into it.

The start of the three-day conference coincided with intelligence reports of mounting anti-Communist unrest in Communist East Germany.

The theory was gaining ground in Western circles that Soviet Premier Khrushchev, whose threats to sign a peace treaty with East Germany touched off the current crisis, now is in some danger of running into trouble in the puppet state.

Intelligence reports indicate the rulers of East Germany are unable to contain the growing anti-Russian feeling there. The situation is even being compared with 1953 when the East Germans revolted briefly.

FEARS REVOLT—A revolt in East Germany would make the Berlin situation even more explosive than it now is. It could confront the Western powers with the problem of what to do if West German citizens seek to cross the frontier to aid their kinsmen in the East.

That is just one of the reasons, informants said, why the Western powers would be willing to negotiate with the Soviet Union if a way can be found for doing so devoid of any threats. East-West talks, either at the foreign ministers or the summit level, would provide a face saving get-out for Khrushchev.

The Western ministers—U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Britain's Lord Home, Maurice Couve de Murville of France and West Germany's Heinrich von Brentano—plan to hammer at a common course of diplomatic, political and military action.

Cuban Travel Ban As New Money Due

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI)—Premier Fidel Castro's government halted all ship and plane travel in and out of Cuba today in preparation for the issuing of new currency during the weekend.

The currency move would make worthless all paper money brought out of Cuba by refugees from the Castro regime.

The travel ban went into effect this morning and will remain in effect until 8 p.m. Monday. Only President Osvaldo Dorticos can make any exceptions.

All plane flights were cancelled, and Pan-American

BOYS FORCED INTO 'FRIDGE'; TWO PERISH

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP)—Two boys were found dead in a walk-in refrigerator in a school here today. A third boy found alive with them told police officers an older boy with a knife forced all three into the refrigerator.

Roger Keith Bias, 9, and Johnny Carter, 11, were dead, apparently of suffocation. Henry Carter, nine-year-old brother of Johnny, was pulled alive from the refrigerator — disconnected during the summer — and taken to hospital where he was reported in good condition.

Sheriff's officers went to the Altizer school today to check a reported breaking and entering there. A woman who went with them opened the two-door refrigerator and discovered the missing boys.

ALGERIA

Fugitive General Sounds Call

ALGERS (Reuters)—A clandestine radio station today broke into an Algiers radio broadcast with a call by a fugitive ex-general for continued opposition to President Charles de Gaulle.

Everything was calm in Algiers capital as the voice of ex-Gen. Paul Gardy, condemned to death in his absence for his part in the abortive April military coup in Algeria, began a half-hour broadcast on the same frequency as Algiers radio.

The official station had just finished a weather bulletin and was preparing to relay a broadcast from France when Gardy's voice broke in to declare:

"Radio France... the OAS is speaking to you."

OAS are initials of the extreme right-wing Secret Army Organization.

A few seconds later a second voice began a severe criticism of de Gaulle's policy followed by references to the Bizerte crisis. Martial music followed.

The 28-minute broadcast ended with an announcer declaring: "You have just been listening to Radio France, the voice of French Algeria. Frenchmen arise. We shall stay in our Algeria."

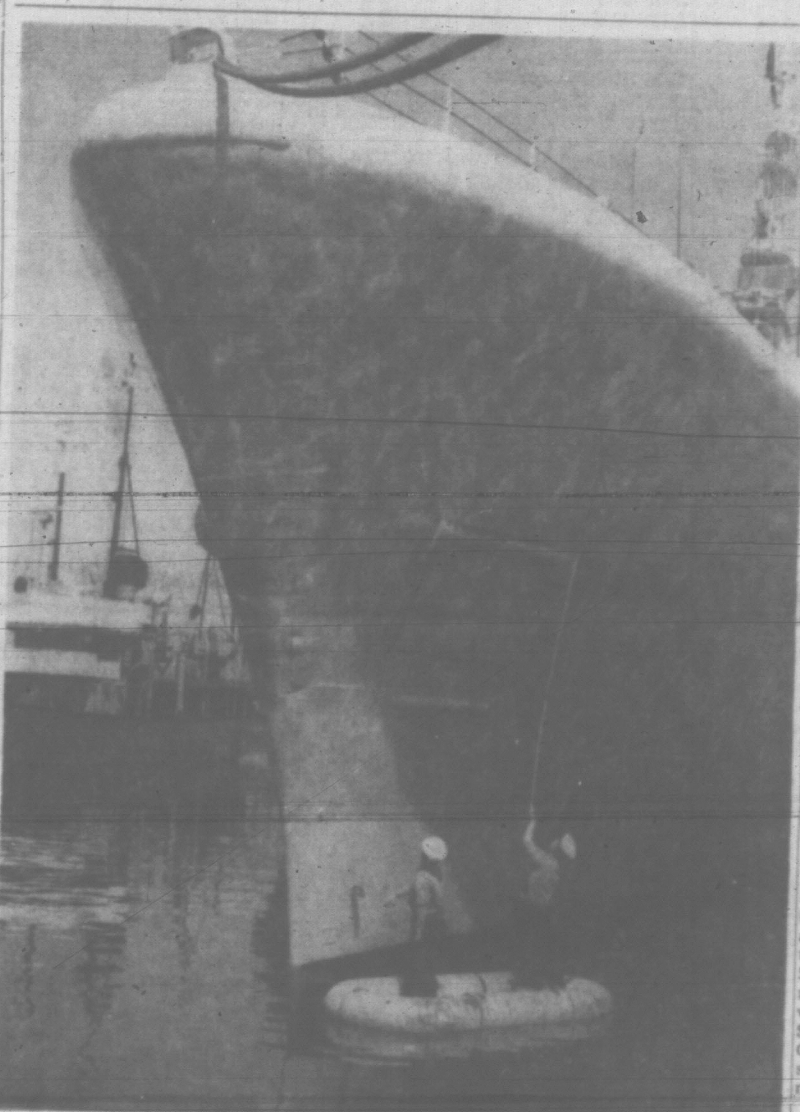

Algiers radio said everything was normal at the radio station. It was believed the surprise broadcast was achieved by a linkup with one of the station's regular supply cables.

REFUGEES POUR ACROSS

BERLIN (AP)—More than 10,000 East Germans fled to the West this week as the Communists piled on pressure to seal off the Berlin escape hatch. The total of 10,149 announced by the West German refugee ministry today was the highest for any week this year.

'Thinkers' Lodge Haven For Gagarin in Maritimes

PUGWASH, N.S. (CP)—Crowds of highland dancers and pipers greeted Soviet spaceman Yuri Gagarin today when he arrived at this northern Nova Scotia village for an afternoon of relaxation.

Major Gagarin arrived here after a three-hour drive from Halifax where he landed this morning.

In the small villages and towns along the 100-mile route small scattered groups of people waved as he went through.

The first stop was the "Thinker's Lodge" where he ate with Russian Ambassador A. A. Aroutounian and industrialist Cyrus-Easton, his host. The lodge is named after groups of scientists Mr. Eaton invites to his birthplace for conferences.

Scheduled for this afternoon was a program of Scottish music and dancing.

The big Ilyushin-18 airliner bringing Gagarin to Canada was 34 minutes late when it touched down at Halifax International Airport this morning.

$50,000 SWINDLE AROUND DOUBLE LIFE

With Thanks From 'His Grace'

NEW YORK (AP)—The Federal Bureau of Investigation and local police swarmed over the offices of the Twentieth Century Travel Agency here-Friday in quest of travel information.

They want information regarding the travels of Lou Bennett, 30, who until last weekend was one of the most willing and energetic employees the firm ever had.

Co-owners Harry Brown and Leonard Gold said Lou was so energetic he did them out of about $50,000. He was hired six weeks ago.

The New York Daily News said Brown and Gold told this story to police:

Lou, they said, had been living a double life—the quiet, unassuming travel consultant named Bennett on weekdays and the dashing British playboy, Sir Douglas Bedford of London, on weekends.

Bennett, it seems, armed himself with a hefty supply of time payment devices and set out on a one-man mission to improve Anglo-American relations.

During the Fourth of July

weekend, they learned, Bennett struck up an acquaintance with a navy warrant officer who directs a band on board the carrier Independence.

To show good will, he tossed a $300 shindig for the boys of the Independence at a New York restaurant.

On July 14, Bennett rented a chauffeured limousine and drove to Norfolk where he met his navy friends and tossed another party—all on credit cards.

He then invited the boys up to New York for a weekend party and ran up a $1,300 whiskey, food and entertainment bill.

He wrote to the hotel thanking the management for its treatment of Sir Douglas and added "your bill has been sent to His Grace and as soon as it is approved we shall see that it is paid in full." His Grace, he added, was in Honolulu.

Last Friday and Saturday, Bennett set up a couple of lavish affairs for his navy pals at swank Island Inn, Westbury, Long Island.

Friday he flew his navy friends up from Norfolk, had them met at the airport by limousines and put on a warm-up party, costing only a modest "few thousand dollars."

Saturday, he purchased a $300 cake and had $600 worth of flowers sent to the "Chief Justice and Mrs. Earl Warren," "The Eddie Fishers," "David Sarnoff" and "Tony and Margaret Jones."

He apparently got cold feet Saturday and shipped out, the agency owners said.

Immediate Start On Huge Project

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

The new, publicly-owned British Columbia Electric Company has borrowed $75,000,000 to make an immediate start on development of the vast Peace River power project.

The loan from the Royal Bank of Canada was announced following a meeting of the new BCE board of directors only a few hours after their appointment was made Friday by Premier Bennett.

Board chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum said the loan is the biggest single credit bloc ever extended in Canada.

The new directors, appointed to run the power utility which the government took over through legislation earlier this week, also made these decisions:

1. Agreed to apply for a water licence to develop the Peace River project.

2. Asked the present BCE executive, headed by BCE president Dr. Harry Purdy, to stay on with the company.

3. Appointed director Elmar Gunderson as secretary of the BCE board.

4. Arranged payment of $110,000,000 to B.C. Power Corporation for BCE common shares.

The development followed fast on the heels of Premier Bennett's announcement Friday of the makeup of the new board headed by Dr. Shrum and of the government's intention to float a $100,000,000 BCE 5 per cent parity bond issue next Wednesday. The issue will form the major part of the $110,000,000 paid to B.C. Power Corporation for BCE common stock acquired in the government takeover.

Full complement of the new board of directors, in addition to Dr. Shrum, is as follows:

Frank M. Ross, former B.C. lieutenant governor;

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston;

W. C. Mearns of Victoria, the Vancouver Island vice-president of the former BCE company;

Arthur Fouke, a Vancouver lawyer;

And Mr. Gunderson, who was briefly finance minister for B.C. and is vice-president of the PGE Railway.

Dr. Shrum warned the public not to expect a big change in electrical rates as a result of nationalization of the BCE. He predicted there would be staff changes and moves for more economical operation of

ACROSS THE PROVINCE

Police Charge Bomb Suspect

(Compiled from CP)
CASTLEGAR — John A. Makoff of Shoreacres was charged Friday with making an explosive device.
Before Makoff was remanded until Sept. 6 for preliminary hearing in magistrates' court was told the offence is alleged to have occurred "at Shoreacres or elsewhere in the Kootenays between Feb. 27 and March 6, 1960."

Bail was set at $10,000.
RCMP's arrest of Makoff at his home Thursday night culminated a year of investigation.

VANCOUVER — Civic Auditorium Commission has named a small theatre built as an annex to the Queen Elizabeth Theatre after Indian poet and artist Pauline Johnson. The commission was deadlocked for weeks over choice of the name until chairman Reg Rose cast the deciding vote. "I'm not personally in favor of the name Pauline Johnson but I think public opinion is for it," he said.

FREE FALLS ON BOYS
ENDERBY — RCMP said Friday a 14-year-old boy was killed when a tree fell and struck him on the head.

Robert Bell of the Kamloops Indian Agency died of a fractured skull following the mishap while he was playing on the banks of the Shuswap River a mile east of here Wednesday.

Another boy, Gordon Paul, about 14, suffered a bruised back when he was struck by the tree, a tall cottonwood about 18 inches in diameter, which was apparently blown over by a light breeze.

VANCOUVER — Police said Friday Vancouver narcotic addicts have been thrown into a panic by a sudden and unexpected stoppage in illicit drug deliveries.

An RCMP officer said the shortage of drugs became apparent Thursday. It was not the result of a police crackdown or arrests.

One theory is that suppliers are holding back drugs in hope of pushing up the price of capsule which usually sell at $5 each.

Potato Tariff Up, Mollifying Growers

Demand by potato growers in the interior of the province that the federal government protect them from competition from United States growers who can sell American potatoes in Canada, cheaper than Canadians can grow them have been met with a directive today from Ottawa ordering a higher tariff.

The prime minister's office sent a telegram today to British Columbia agricultural minister Frank Richter saying that the "fair value for duty" on potatoes has been raised to $2.78 per 100 pounds in Canadian tons.

Application for a tariff was made June 14 by the marketing board of the B.C. interior through the Canadian Horticultural Council, as farmers threatened to leave between 800 and 1,200 tons of potatoes in the ground unless government protective action was taken.

The $2.78 value will be used at all customs ports from Port Arthur, Ontario, through all the western provinces.

LIFE SENTENCE LAW URGED

Crackdown on Hijackers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration asked Congress Friday to meet the menace of "air drunks, flying fools and spies in the sky" by passing a law to make airline hijacking punishable by life imprisonment.

This would put airline hijacking in the same class of crime as piracy on the high seas.

Najeeb Halaby, federal aviation administrator, cited Thursday's abortive plane hijacking in Texas.

He said that, if Congress passes the new law, no longer would "a defenceless girl, a preoccupied crew, or local police" be the only barriers against would-be hijackers.

At present, no federal law covers such hijacking. Leon Bearden and his son Cody were charged with violating the federal kidnapping law. It also is difficult to charge hijackers under state law. For one thing, it is very hard to figure out where the plane was flying when the crime was committed.

For another, the arrested man likely would land in a state different from the one in which he committed his crime, making extradition action necessary.

Halaby, discussing the recent series of hijackings, said the last three cases evidently were carried out by "foolish men who felt by some heroic act they could make some progress in their individual lives — psychopathic as they may be."

GIRL GIANT INJURED IN FALL OVER CURB

TORONTO (CP) — A 16-year-old Collingwood, Ont., girl seven feet, 10 inches tall and weighing more than 350 pounds was brought to hospital here Friday night after she tripped over a roadside curb and fell in front of her home.

Carol Hare suffered severe facial lacerations and hospital officials suspect broken neck vertebrae. After the fall, she was conscious but paralyzed in her arms and legs.

A Collingwood ambulance was too small to accommodate the girl and she was placed in an enclosed furniture truck. A hospital bed had to be extended with boards.

Carol left public school two years ago measuring seven feet tall. Two brothers are of normal height.

5,000 Die

LUCKNOW, India (Reuters) — Officials today blamed annual religious fairs for the spread of a cholera epidemic which has killed more than 5,000 persons in the two north Indian states of Uttar Pradesh and Bihar this year.

Many of the millions of Indians attending these fairs contract the disease and then carry the infection home to their villages, the officials said.

But they added that the peak of the epidemic was now over and hoped it would be possible to curb it in the next few weeks.

the giant utility to which the government handed the job of developing the Peace.
At the same time Dr. Strum disclosed that he will also carry on as chairman of the B.C. Energy Board.

The board in a recent report found electric rates for both the Peace and the stalled Columbia River project would be almost identical in the vicinity of four mills per kilowatt hour if developed publicly.

The Columbia project is stalled for want of agreement of financial arrangements between the federal and provincial governments.

Dr. Strum told the Times he will seek the services of consulting engineers on the Peace project Monday.

During his first day as chairman of the new public utility he called two meetings and received their authority to negotiate with Iplex Engineering of Vancouver.

If the firm, which has already done work on the Peace is hired, it will advise exactly where to start on the $500,000,000 hydro project.

Dr. Strum said he thought first steps would be to build roads to the Portage Mountain damsite in northwestern B.C. let clearing contracts and then build a tunnel to divert the river.

He summed up his attitude to building the Peace this way: "I never like to have a job and foot around it."

Speedy go-ahead on the Peace raises grave doubts that the Columbia River scheme will be built at all.

This depends now entirely upon a change of policy by the federal government, which at present opposes export of the downstream benefits.

Dr. Strum said there will be "some economies" in B.C. Electric operations as a result of public ownership.

Dr. Strum said he had asked the president of the old company, Harry Purdy, to see all employees carry on as usual for the time being.

However, there will be some staff changes "up near the top," he added.

The rank and file employees probably would not be much affected.

Economies Hinted
"I have great admiration for the way B.C. Electric has been run. It will be my hope we can run it as efficiently," he said.

"Under public ownership there are some economies that can be effected."

Department which will be reviewed include public relations, personnel formerly dealing with the Public Utilities Commission and the federal income tax which was paid by the private company.

Dr. Strum did not offer an opinion on the future of BCE bus services in Victoria and Vancouver.

"This we have to study," he said.

Would they be turned over to the cities?
"Somebody has to run them,"

Dr. Strum summed his approach to his new job this way: "It is a new and exciting adventure."

The adventure began when Premier Bennett announced Friday that a $100,000,000 parity bond issue goes on sale next Wednesday to finance the government's takeover of the company, approved at the special session of the legislature which ended Thursday.

He said the B.C. government will never again use the government-guaranteed parity bond method of financing.

One Shareholder
Mr. Bennett said he as premier will act as the sole official shareholder representing the people's ownership of the company.

Mr. Williston has resigned his post as a member of the B.C. Power Commission, the other big power utility. Miss Minister Kiernan, already a member, will remain as the government's representative there.

Mr. Bennett said the new directors agreed that the balance and its members offer great breadth and experience. "I am confident that they will provide excellent direction for the employees of the

B.C. Electric said for the first time in its history, it has no shareholders. The new shareholders of the company, in carrying out the development projects which it should.

The $100,000,000 bond issue will be used to finance the development of the Peace project and will mature in 1981.

It will be the last offering of public development bonds. The last offering was in 1957 when the company issued $100,000,000 in bonds.

Only refinancing of present loans will be made in the future, he said.

The other bond issue will be used to finance the development of the Columbia River project, which is also being financed by the federal government.

HOPPER-FULL GULLS CLOG AIRPORT

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — Hopper-stuffed seagulls were waging an aerial war with airplanes landing and taking off at Lethbridge Airport.

Airport manager Andy Conner says one of the birds met a fair end when sucked into the engine of a CP100 jet and many others have been hurt or killed by the whirling blades of propeller-driven aircraft.

The birds are attracted to the free and available diet of trashhoppers at the airport during a current migration in the area.

There have been as many as 2,000 birds on the runway.

Attempts to drive the birds off using trucks, screaming down the runways with stream blasters have proved, temporarily successful, but the birds always return.

LATIN TALKS

Politics Before Economics

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (Reuters) — Delegates from 21 nations in the western hemisphere prepared for the start today of the inter-American economic and social conference.

With the conference hardly under way, politics was already seen as superceding the formal agenda of the meeting which will include the launching of President Kennedy's "alliance for progress" program of aid for Latin America.

When U.S. Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon arrived in Montevideo on his way here Friday a crowd of 2,000, led by Cuban industrial Minister Enrique "Che" Guevara, all turned their backs.

When Guevara, the bearded No. 2 man in Cuba, arrived shortly after Dillon the crowds cheered wildly.

Last Friday night police in Montevideo raided the Communist youth centre and found guns, propaganda materials and cocaine.

Then from Buenos Aires, a government spokesman announced that the Cuban consuls there and in Montevideo had asked for political asylum from the Castro regime.

The conference, which ends Aug. 26, is being attended by all the independent nations in the western hemisphere with the exception of Canada. Canada, which is not a member of the Organization of American States, sent seven observers.

After the conference, the Cuban consuls will be asked to leave the country.
